

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

The making of genealogies is as old as the history of Adam. With it, Moses begins the history of his race. The reverence for ancestry, the love of kindred, and the care of offspring are inherent in human nature and fostered by civilization. Though the love of parents and children leads the affections in divergent lines, yet some subtle connection seems to make them one. With development of either they both increase, and our debt of gratitude to noble ancestry inspires us to repay it in fuller measure to our children and contribute our proper share in the progress of the race.

The guiding power of surrounding conditions in selecting and fixing the peculiarities of animal species, is alike potent in imparting race types to man. The great mass of recently emigrated population has sprung from a past in which slavish obedience under monarchical rule has stifled every tendency to independent progressive thought. They have been taught no ambition beyond material prosperity, and have failed to learn the lesson of self-government on which our country must depend for its honorable perpetuity. Far different have been the influences at work along those lines that run to the early English pioneers. To them America's golden allurements were political and religious freedom. These were the ambitions of the people from which they came; then the Puritans revolted against the tyranny and licentiousness of the Stuarts, and England was preparing the civil war which resulted in the dethronement and beheading of Charles I.

Having been nurtured with these tendencies, they crossed the mysterious ocean when the paths were as yet untried when the goal itself was unknown, and America held out but the opportunities to grow the fruits of liberty. The wild freedom of a new country was poison to the unaccustomed. From it Weston's men were forced to flee; and even to those who had acquired a taste, it at first brought many evils; but they were evils whose final correction came by continued freedom.

Thus reared with an ardent love of liberty, John Balch left Old England for the New, and with this bias he and his associates and their descendants helped to lay deeply and well the foundations of our Nation. It should therefore be a matter of proper pride to know that the family line dates back to a sturdy, liberty-loving ancestry and passed through generations of industry, thrift and New England hardihood, calculated to produce a self-reliant capable manhood. For the most part the families have led quiet uneventful lives. They have lived long and left small estates, but for their descendants they have given that best dower of all, a constitution free from inherited diseases, a far better factor for happiness and usefulness than inherited wealth.

The earliest efforts, so far as known, in the preparation of a genealogy of the Balch family was made about a century ago by Benjamin Balch, of Essex Co., Massachusetts. Seven hundred words comprised all that he recorded. Next followed some additions to this by Dr. William F. Balch, and the whole was published in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register for July, 1855. A few years later David M. Balch took up the subject and worked at it, until about 1876. In this he was assisted by Frank W. Balch, and together they explored the early records in Essex county, and vicinity, and collected considerable material. In 1884, I commenced a search for records of direct ancestors. The work proved a fascinating one and quickly led into all the other family branches.

Genealogical investigation is beset with many difficulties, and some of the solutions have been reached in curious and unexpected ways. In several instances, slight clues concerning members of the family would be found which baffled every effort at systematic investigation, but whose records were traced through unexpected channels. One of these was 63 Josiah<sup>6</sup>, another was 357 Cyrus<sup>7</sup> and a third was 382 Samuel Williams<sup>7</sup>.

After the record of the latter had gone into type two of his daughters, both over eighty years of age, were found to be living within a few minutes' ride of the office of the writer's son. From them it was ascertained that their father was United States Minister at Rio Janeiro, Brazil, in the early part of this century. There are a few puzzles, similar to the above which have as yet resisted solution. They belong to the Maryland family and are appended as "broken families."

Acknowledgments are due and are hereby made to William Lincoln Balch, of Boston, for his contributions of the chapters on Name, Arms, and English records; to David M. Balch, and Frank W. Balch, for kindly placing their manuscript notes at my service; to Augustus A. Galloupe, of Beverly, who, though no relative of the family, has given valuable assistance, and to all the members of the family, both of the North and South, who have so kindly aided me in the preparation of this work.

THE NAME.

The task of tracing the descent of any of the millions of families inhabiting this planet is not, under the most favorable circumstances, an easy one, but is beset at every step with various difficulties. The present inquiry into the origin and history of the Balch family, while simplified by the peculiarity of the name and the comparatively small number who have borne it, is, at the same time, rendered more difficult by those very conditions, especially as few of the name have ever achieved more than local distinction, though they have always been respected in the localities where they have lived.

John Balch [the first in America] came from Somerset, England, to Massachusetts, in 1623. With this central fact the Balch genealogy in America begins, and its branches have been traced out down to the present day. But to go even one step backward from that point has not been so easy, and it must be confessed at the outset that the missing links between the Balches who came to America and those who remained in the old country have not been found.

The search, however, has brought to light the names of many Balches in England and much information in regard to them which cannot fail to be of interest to all who bear the name in this country, for there can be little or no doubt that they were all related to each other in the same way that the American Balches are related.

The subject of the origin of the name of Balch opens an ample field for philological discussion, which has not been covered to any extent, for the reasons already indicated. It seems tolerably certain that the name is of Teutonic derivation, and as an English patronym, therefore, might have come in with the Saxons, about A. D. 500.

Mark Antony Lower, one of the first to write analytically on the subject of British surnames, says in his "Patronymica Britannica," that the name is an abbreviation of Balchin, a very old Teutonic personal name—in old German Baldechin. In his "Essay on Family Nomenclature," however, he says that Balchin, in the middle and western counties of England means an unfledged bird.

Robert Ferguson, in "English Surnames and their place in the Teutonic Family," after supposing a relation between the name of the great Italian poet, Dante Alighieri, and the English name Alger, observes: "Other of the Italian poets have names more certainly Teutonic, as Alamanni, Baldacchini," etc. "These correspond with the old German names Alaman, Baldechin, etc., and with our Allman, Balchin," etc. Further on, in speaking of names derived from mental and moral qualities, he says, "Thus we have Bold and its patronymic Balding—Ball, the patronymic Ballinger, the diminutive Balchin, Baldock, etc.”

How far the imagination enters into comparative philology is seen when it is observed that another writer on “English Surnames,” Charles Wareing Bardsley, while not taking cognizance of Balchin at all, derives Ballinger from boulangier, a baker, and Bald and Ball not from bold, but from the very prosaic characteristic of baldness of the cranium !

William F. Balch [1100] devoted considerable time in the early fifties to an investigation of the origin of the family, and he mentions in a paper published in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register for July, 1855, that he found the name of “Balchman of Bodeherstegate” on the roll of “Battle Abbey” [A. D. 1066]. The name of Balchi, he also says, is to be found in “Doomsday Book,” the great survey of England, which was made by order of William the Conqueror, in 1086, and to have been recorded therein the bearer of the name must have been of at least Thane’s rank. He also states that a John Balch was Sheriff of Somerset in 1392, and, starting with that name, he constructs a pedigree ending with John Balch who came to America in 1623.

Now all these assumptions can be shown to be erroneous, and though it is only just to say that they were not put forth as being absolutely correct, it seems proper to call attention to them, as they are in print [in the Historical and Genealogical Register,] and copies of the false pedigree are in existence in possession of members of the family and might prove misleading.

In the first place, the document, usually called the “Roll of Battle Abbey” was a list of those Normans who took part in the conquest of England, and of course one would not look there for a Saxon name. The list referred to in the article in question was really of the names of residents of the settlement which sprang up around the Abbey while it was building, to commemorate the battle of Hastings, composed of those brought there from surrounding counties for that purpose, together with the amount of tax, or the kind of service, which they were to render for their houses and lands, which they held under feudal tenure. These persons were, of course, the Saxon inhabitants, but the name, No. 104 on the list, which the compiler mistook for "Balchman" of Bodeherstegate was really "Blacheman" and he was no more likely to have been an ancestor of a Balch than No. 26, "Blacheni, the cowherd."

The "John Balch" who, he says, was sheriff of Somerset in 1392, was, by a similar error in the eyesight, really John Bache, probably of Dorset, as those two counties had but one sheriff before 1566.

That disposes of the foundation of the pedigree, and as for the second step it is certain that no George Balch, between the years 1362 and 1420, was "the founder of St. Andries, the seat of the family in Somersetshire," as that estate, which is one of the best known in the county, did not come into the possession of a Balch until long after John Balch had come to America.

The earliest mention of a Balch in Somerset records, which is at present known, occurs in a tax list compiled in the first year of the reign of Edward III, 1327, and it is remarkable that at that early date it takes the simple form of Balch, while in the meantime it has, at different periods, and in individual instances, lapsed into such odd orthography as Balche, Balsh, Balshe, Baulch, Bawlch, etc.

But in 1327 at least two persons in Somerset were taxed under that name. "Willelmo Balch, xii d., "Purye" [perhaps Puriton Hundred] and "Roberto Balch, i i j S., v. d.," in "Manerium de Wryngton" [manor of Wryngton]. There also appears on the same roll the name Balth, Blatche, Borliche, Barlich, Balrich, Bolde and Bald—any or all of whom might have been Balches, since other and far more common names, such as Baker, Brown and Smith, appear with almost as peculiar variations.

It would be strange indeed, at a time when the English language was not yet crystalized, when only "clerks" and priests could write, and official documents were drawn up in a medley of Latin, Norman-French and Anglo-Saxon, if such a name had escaped variation. One can well imagine the queer twists that spelling would take, when the Norman tax gatherer attempted to set down the name of a "Zummerzet" rustic as given to him with a broad west country accent.

Barlich and Barliche would certainly not be improbable metamorphoses under such circumstances, and, indeed, the fact that these forms have not survived would seem to be evidence that they were merely clerical errors. Some of the forms which we know the name to have assumed at later dates were evidently phonetic, and point to the probability that the "a" in Balch had a very broad sound, much broader than it has at present as pronounced in this country.

It is of interest in this connection to remark that some of the name in London pronounce the "a" sharp, as in "bat," and also to note that, out of the more than four million people in the British metropolis, there are but six of the name of Balch registered in the Post Office Directory of London of a recent date—both "court" and "commercial" divisions included—while there are an equal number of Balchins, one Baulch, one Balck and one Baldach.

It thus appears that Balchin remains a surname in England today, and seems, like Balch, to be a shortening of the earlier form—Baldechin. It has been spelled Balchen, Ballchen and Balchan. In 1744 Admiral Sir John Ballchen was lost in his ship, the Victory, off Alderney.

Baldachin is defined by Johnson's Cyclopaedia—and the definition is retained by our modern American dictionaries—as "The canopy carried over the Host in processions. The term is derived from Baldach, a corruption of Bagdad, the early seat of the manufacture [of the stuff of which the canopy was made] and was originally applied to the canopy carried over an Oriental prince."

It has been objected to by a scholarly member of the Balch family that the deduction of Baldach from Bagdad is untenable on philological grounds, and he remarks that "the old Persian city Balkh bears exactly our family name." But whether Balkh or Baldach furnished the root of the word, it appears to have come from the Orient. The Teutons came from the East, their language, culminating in modern German, had many Oriental affinities, and it is not too improbable to suppose that the Teuton who took, or more likely had bestowed upon him, the name of Baldechin, might have been one of the bearers of a princely or ecclesiastical canopy.

The stuff of which these canopies, and priestly vestments, generally, was made, was a very rich fabric of silk and gold embroidery, and in old English records the word is variously found written baudekin, bawdekin and even bodkyn and bodkin, certainly as wide a departure from baldachin in orthography as is Balch.

THE COAT OF ARMS.

Though perhaps not really germane to the subject, it seems interesting to note that in the reign of Edward IV, the baudekin reserved by sumptuary law for the use of royalty was woven of blue and gold stripes, which happen to be the chief colors of the Balch coat of arms. Those colors, with the red in which the "bend" crossing the shield is emblazoned, are esteemed as among the most noble in heraldry, and the simplicity of the coat itself would seem to be an evidence of antiquity. There is nothing however, to show that it was granted at a very early date. It appears in the visitation of Somerset in 1623, the very year in which John Balch came to America.

The visitation of the counties by the King's stewards and officers-at-arms, under special warrants of the sovereign, for the purpose of collecting and recording the pedigrees and arms of the nobility and gentry resident therein, is of very ancient date, and the genealogies and arms thus collected are well known by the name of "Visitations." These records are preserved in the College of Arms, London, from the year 1523 to 1686.

There were visitations of Somerset in 1531, the 22d year of the reign of Henry VIII.; by Benolte, Clarencieux King-of-Arms, in 1573, the 15th year of Elizabeth; by Brooke, Clarencieux, by his deputies, Henry St. George, Richmond herald, and Sampson Lennard, Bluemantle pursuivant, in 1623 by the last mentioned, and in 1672, 23d year of Charles II., and the last visitation, made by Bysshe, Clarencieux.

The arms of Balche, of Horton, as illustrated in the frontispiece to this volume, and accompanied by a pedigree which forms the basis of the sketch of early English Balches, which follows, are thus described in the Visitation of 1623:

"Barry of six, Or and Azure; on a bend, engrailed, Gules, three spear heads, Argent."

No crest is described with this shield.

Sir Bernard Burke, the English authority, in his "General Armory of England, Scotland and Wales," edition of 1883, describes the arms of Balche of Horton as above, and adds:

"Balche [Virginia, Maryland and Philadelphia, North America], the same arms. Crest, out of a al coronet, Or, a demi-griffin, ppr.
[ottoes — Ubi libertas, ibi patria
here liberty is there is my country].
ot laws of man, but laws of God."
another motto which has been at-ted to the arms, as used by the Philaphia branch, is, "Coeur et Courage out l'ouvrage,"—Heart and courage do the work.

It has been stated that some of the southern Balches, being allied to the Macgregors, use their crest, a lion's head proper, crowned with an antique crown.

Culleton, a London heraldic engraver, gives the Balch arms as already described, and the motto as being, "Fait Devoyr," "Do your duty."

E. de Vermont, in his "American Heraldry," copies Burke.

Daniel Balch, of Newburyport, Mass., in his will, dated March 9, 1789, left to his eldest son, Daniel, Jr., "my coat of arms." That he inherited his copy from his father, Rev. William, or his grandfather, Freeborn, or that John brought it with him to America, in 1623, is a matter of mere conjecture. To a copy in the possession of a descendant of Daniel is attached the note: "The above are the arms of Balche of Horton, in the county of Somerset, as they appear recorded to that family in the Herald's visitation of that county, made in 1623. Albert W. Woods, Herald." As Sir Albert W. Woods is at present (1896) Garter King of Arms of the Heralds' College, it is evident that this copy is comparatively recent.

The crest and motto found with a copy of the Balch arms, published by a descendant of Daniel—William F.—in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, in 1855, have been a puzzle. The crest is a mailed arm and gauntletted hand, grasping broken spears or javelins. The Latin motto accompanying this crest—"Usus a Punctum"—seems to refer to the spears, but, with its grammatical incorrectness, leaves a doubt whether it was meant to convey the admonition to "use to the point," or the boast that the spears had been so used, as their broken condition would suggest. Nothing is known in the history of the family in England to justify such a warlike blazon.

A variation of the coat of arms, in which the spear heads are replaced by golden disks, or "bezants," a word derived from Byzantium, the ancient Constantinople, and applied to gold coins of that country, appears in the church of St.

Mary, in the parish of Poorstock, in Dorset. In the chancel is this escutcheon: "Barry of six, Or and Azure; on a bend, indented, Gules, three Bezants." Under it, "Scutum Gulielmi Balch, obiit 39 die of Januarii, anno Dom., 1681." The shield of this William Balch is thus nearly the same as the one already described, except that the "bend" has serrated, instead of scalloped edges—which might have been merely the result of imperfect workmanship or imperfect description—and the silver spear heads are changed to golden disks. The peculiarity of the inscription, in giving the date of the bearer's decease as the 39th of January, may, perhaps, be accounted for by an attempt to reconcile the "old style" and "new style" of chronology, between which there was then a difference of ten days.

As to the crests and helmet used by the American Balches there appears to be no old authority. The helmet used by William F. Balch in the Historical and Genealogical Register is that belonging to royalty, so it must be wrong. The helmet should be that of an esquire.

EARLY HOME OF THE FAMILY IN SOMERSETSHIRE.

John Balch, the earliest ancestor in America of the New England branch, the first of his name to come to the New World, was undoubtedly a member of a family once numerous and well known in Somerset. He is said, in Felt's "Annals of Salem" and in Hubbard's History of New England, to have come "from near Bridgwater," which is in the very heart of Somersetshire, and one of its largest and most ancient towns. It is doubtful if he ever resided there, and a recent search of the well preserved parchment records of the church of St. Mary Magdalen, from the year 1575 to a date later than that of his emigration to Massachusetts, failed to reveal any mention of the baptism, marriage or burial of a Balch. The name, however, appears in Bridgwater at a later date, and may still be traced upon the worn memorial stones with which the church aisles are flagged.

Benjamin Balch, who left a brief genealogical manuscript of the family more than a century ago, said that, according to family tradition, John Balch came from Horton. At all events, it is extremely probable that he was a member,—and as is shown by his becoming a pioneer in the westward migration of his countrymen beyond the sea, doubtless one of the younger and dowerless cadets—of an old family in one of the most ancient corners of Saxon England.

Somerset, the English home of the Balches, bears upon almost every square mile of its topography, on every page of its history, and in all its wealth of legends, quaint nomenclature and curious customs, traces of the tidal wave of conquest that surged over it in early days, and, retreating, left upon the land their indelible impress.

Briton, Gaul, Roman, Saxon, Dane and Norman in turn possessed and made for themselves a home of the fair southwest of England, and left behind them the tokens of their prowess, language, laws, religion and civilization.

While the Britons, who may be regarded as the aboriginal inhabitants, were in possession, the Belgæ, a warlike people of Celtic origin, from Gaul, descended upon the country about 850 years before the Christian era, and overran that portion which is now known as Somerset, Dorset and Devon, together with parts of Cornwall, Wiltshire, Hampshire, Sussex and Middlesex. They gained such a foothold that the portion which they held was formally divided off from that retained by the British by an immense trench and earthwork, 80 miles long, called Wansdyke, portions of which still remain running across the country to the Bristol channel. When they were securely in possession they were joined by a large accession of their countrymen, under Divitiacus, King of Soissons, in France, who came over about B. C. 63.

Then came the Romans, about A. D. 40, who drove out the Cangii, a posthumous tribe of the Belgæ, and retained possession for 400 years, leaving everywhere fortifications, roads, temples, baths and other substantial evidences of their occupation.

About half a century later the Saxons came upon the scene, landing on the shores of Hampshire under the leaders Cerdic and Cynric, in A. D. 495, and spreading slowly through Hampshire, Dorset, and Somerset, for some years, if not generations, stopping at the rivers Parret [ancient Pedred] and Upper Axe, which were an understood boundary between the Saxon English and British races.

Then the Danes invaded the country, keeping it for generations in a state of seige, until they were finally conquered and expelled, and the Saxon heptarchy grew and strengthened, only to fall into the hands of the Norman Conqueror, A. D., 1066.

The neighborhood in which we know that Balches have dwelt for more than 500 years, and very likely for a thousand, is intimately connected with the legendary history of the British hero, King Arthur, and the Saxon hero, Alfred the Great.

Cadbury Castle, the site of an ancient stronghold, is said to be the far famed Camelot or Camalet, which was one of the stations of the famous Round Table of King Arthur, the other principal places where it was set up being Winchester and Hampshire and Caerleon, in Monmouthshire, the latter county being formerly in Wales.

At Glastonbury Abbey, according to ancient writers, was the tomb of King Arthur, where he was buried after his last and fatal battle.

Of all the Arthurian legends the most widely known is, perhaps, that of the Holy Grail, which has figured largely in modern literature, art and drama, and with Glastonbury Abbey is connected the legend of the Holy Grail and Holy Thorn. This remarkable story is to the effect that Joseph of Arimathea, the wealthy man who offered his own tomb as a sepulchre for Jesus of Nazareth, with his own hands washed and prepared the body for burial. Afterward, at the command of the angel Gabriel, he left country, home and kindred, to preach the gospel to the heathen of distant lands. Joseph took with him on his mission the Holy Grail, that miraculous chalice, made of a single precious stone, brought from heaven by angels, from which Christ drank at the last supper, and in which the Arimathean caught and saved the last drops of His blood as he came from the cross. In another vessel were the blood and water which he preserved when he washed the body of his lord, and he also carried with him as a staff a piece of thorn tree from the Holy Land.

Combwich, in Somerset, on the river Parret, was the landing place in Britain of Joseph of Arimathea, according to this legend, and when he reached Glastonbury he planted his staff in the ground and established there the first Christian church. The thorn took root and flourished, and, in proof of its origin, blossomed miraculously at Christmas ever after. This legend is thus narrated in some curious old verse.

“ The good saint Arimathean Joseph, borne by the Parret’s tide
To Combwich, o’er the Mendips; at length he came to Glaston’s Hide;
‘ Here I’ll build a wattle church ’ He planted a Christian staff.
‘ Twas Christmas now—at Xmas time the staff with blossoms laugh;
A miracle—a miracle—a miracle it turned to be
That Christian churches from that time should cover the whole country.
The staff was a thorn brought from the Holy Land—’tis known.
The Christian churches throughout England—from its branches they have grown.”

“ Even as late as James II.’s time ” says a Bridgwater antiquary, “ the blossoms were esteemed such curiosities by people of all nations that Bristol merchants made a traffic of them and exported them to foreign parts.”

The flowering of the miraculous thorn tree is noted in the Gentleman’s Magazine, for 1753. People were then under some embarrassment as to dates, owing to the change made in the calendar from Old to New style ; “ A vast number visited the noted thorn on Christmas day, new style, but there was no bloom. So they watched till January 5, the Christmas day of old style, when, true to tradition, it bloomed once more."

1ERSETSHIRE. (FROM THE

Another interesting legend of Glastonbury Abbey is that its first abbot was St. Patrick, A. D. 533, who was succeeded by St. Benignus or Benedict, a pupil of St. Patrick, who was also his successor in the archiepiscopal see of Armagh, Ireland, A. D. 601. The 27th abbot, according to this legendary history, was the famous St. Dunstan, afterwards primate of England, who had a personal encounter with the Evil One and put him to flight by seizing him by the nose with a pair of tongs.

In the Saxon era Somerset was a central part of the important Kingdom of Wessex [West Seaxe] other Kingdoms of the heptarchy being Essex [East Seaxe] Sussex [South Seaxe] and Middle Seaxe. It was in the Isle of Æthelingey [isle of Nobles] now known as Athelney, at the junction of the rivers Tone, from which comes the name of Tonetown—[Taunton] and Parret, in the parish of Lyng, about seven miles from Bridgwater, that tradition says that in 879 the great Aelfred was sheltered from the Danes by the herdsman Denwulf, whose goodwife has passed into history from having scolded the King for neglecting to watch the cakes by the fire while she fed the pigs. When later, by strategy, Alfred surrounded and totally defeated the Danes at Ætheldune, now Edington, seizing the Danish banner with its magically wrought raven, it was at Aller church, near Langport, that Guthrum, the vanquished Danish chieftain, allowed himself to be baptized Edelstane, Alfred standing as sponsor.

Cannington, which is mentioned in the English chronological notes as being, among other places, a locality in which "Nicholas Balche, de Horton, generosus" (that is, well or nobly born), owned property, was the birthplace of the "fair Rosamond" Clifford. Cannington was once the abode of the Cangii, a tribe of the Belgæ, and the legions of the Emperor Claudius are said to have passed that way at the time of the second Roman invasion.

The river Parret, which, the earlier legend tells us, bore Joseph of Arimathea to Combwich, and which a later, if not more veracious tradition says bore John Balch to the ocean, on his way to America, flows completely across Somerset, through a rich and fertile country.

Running in the same general direction as the Parret, a few miles to the westward, are the Quantock hills, which rise at their highest point to about 1200 feet, and enjoy a local reputation for picturesque beauty.

The Quantocks are truly picturesque, and where they terminate, near the Bristol channel, are located East and West Quantoxhead, names which are to be found in connection with the manor of St. Audries, the seat for many years of a branch of the Balch family, and that from which the southern branch in this country claims its descent.

A "History and Antiquities of the County of Somerset" was published by the Rev. John Collinson, vicar of Long Ashton, in 1791, to which Robert Everard Balch, Esq., and George Balch, Esq., of St. Audries, were subscribers, and in its pages the estate is thus described:

"St. Audries, or West Quantockshead, lies eastward from St. Decumans, close under the steep western head of Quantock, sheltered from the east and northeast winds, with the sea within a mile to the north and northwest, and a very rich and beautiful country to the south and west.

"This manor was given by the Conqueror to Sir William de Mohun, and is thus recorded in the survey [Doomsday Book]: William himself holds Cantocheve. Elnod held it in the time of King Edward, gelded for three hides and a half. The arable is eight carucates. In demesne are three carucates, and seven servants and ten villanes, and four cottagers, with six ploughs. There are sixteen acres of meadow and fifty acres of wood. Pasture one mile long and one mile broad. It was worth three pounds, now four pounds.

"It was held in the time of King John by William de Punchardon, of Dunster Castle. It then passed into the family of Malet, and continued in that family, in a regular descent, until the time of Henry VIII. In the time of Charles I. Arthur Malet sold it to Thomas Malet, who died in 1664, leaving two sons, Sir John and Sir Michael. Sir John's grandson, William, was the last of the family that possessed St. Audries. The manor now [1791] belongs to Robert Everard Balch, Esq., who has an elegant little seat.

"The church is dedicated to St. Ethelred, or Aldred, from whom the parish received one of its appellations, of which that now used is a flagrant corruption."

In 1836 it was the residence of Rev. Elias Webb, and in 1873 of Sir A. Hood.

Some brief explanation of the old Saxon terms used in describing the above estate will form a fitting conclusion to this chapter. As regards the measures of land recorded in Domesday Book, Sir H. Ellis says: "The truth seems to be that a hide, a yardland, a knight's fee, etc., etc., contained no certain number of acres, but varied in different places," but it has been described to be "as much as was sufficient to the cultivation of one plough."

"The carucate, which is also to be interpreted the plough land, was as much arable land as could be managed with one plough and the beasts belonging thereto in a year, pasture and houses for the householder, and cattle belonging to it," and it appears that "the hide was the measure of land in the Confessor's reign, the carucate [Latin, caruca, a team], that to which it was reduced by the Conqueror's new standard."

The hide is generally supposed to have been equal to 120 acres, though Sir R. W. Eyton, in "Domesday Studies, an Analysis and Digest of the Somerset Survey," says that the Somerset hide was 299 2-3 acres. "Glaston's Hide," referred to in the verses relating the legend of Joseph of Arimathea, is that division of the country called "Glaston Twelve Hides," and was therefore anciently a description of the locality by measurement. Money mentioned in Domesday records is generally estimated as at thirty times its present value, so that the revenue of St. Audries, in the Conqueror's time, £4, was equivalent to at least $600. The term "hundred," to designate a division of an English county, had this origin, as defined by Blackstone: Ten families of freeholders made up a town or tithing, so ten tithings composed a superior division called a hundred, as consisting of ten times ten families.

SOME PRE-AMERICAN BALCHES.

The earliest glimpse we have of the Balch family in Somerset is afforded in a tax roll of that shire made in 1327, the first year of Edward III., the hero of Crecy, the father of the Black Prince, who there began his brilliant military career. It was toward the end of his reign that law pleadings in English were first permitted. The tax roll in which the Balches are inscribed is in Latin and is thus headed: "Collecta XX<sup>me</sup> domino Edwardo tercio, post conquestem Regi Anglie concessa facta, per Johannem de Clyvedon et Johannem de Erle, anno domini Regis primo."

The list includes all those in the county, worth 10 shillings or more, and among them are Willelmo Balch, Thrubbewelle, iiii s., Willelmo Balch, Purve, xii d., Roberto Balch, Manerium de Wryngton, iii s., and others.

A gap of 168 years intervenes before we find the next mention of a Balch. In May, 1495, three years after the discovery of America by Columbus, Richard Balch died in Farnham, Surrey. He made his will in Latin on the 12th of that month, and it was proved in the prerogative court of Canterbury on the 27th. He directs his body to be buried in the ancient chapel of the blessed virgin Mary, within the parish church of St. Andrew of Farnham, next the body of his father. He leaves to Matilda, relict of William Balche, a tenement in which she is living for the term of her life, and after her death to Nicholas Balche, son of the said William and Matilda. Other legatees are his wife Isabella, his daughter Florence [wife of Henry] Quynby, and John and Margaret Balch, children of William Balch before mentioned. In this document the name is spelled both with and without the "e."

There is nothing to connect the interesting family group thus faintly outlined with any earlier or later Balches in the West of England.

It will be observed that this was in the days when England was still Catholic, the authority of the Roman Pontiff was acknowledged, and ecclesiastical institutions were liberally endowed with lands.

In the declaration of the rental and possessions of the chantries, colleges and free chapels in the county of Somerset, [Land Revenue Records, vol. 97], is the numeration of those in the deanery of Crewkerne, was included, in 1528, the chantry of St. Katherine, within the parish church at Ilminster, founded by John Wadham, "esquire." There was no monastic establishment at Ilminster, but the manor belonged to the abbey of Muchelney. The manor of Ilminster [the church on the river Ile] with the whole place, was given by Ina, King of the West Saxons, to the abbey of Muchelney, founded by King Athelstan in 939.

In 1528 its lands and possessions were "leased to farm for divers years and given for the fee or stipend of three chaplains or priests [John Rippe, Thomas Thorne and William Webbe] celebrating in the Ilminster parish church.

Among the tenants of these lands were a John and George Balche. The lease from the abbot reads in part as follows:

"All those messuages, lands, tenements, meadow pasture and feed, with their appurtenances, in the tithing of Winterhay, in the parish of Ilminster, called Modies tenement, by John Sherbourne, abbot, formerly of the monastery of Muchelney aforesaid, and the convent of the same place, leased to farm to Henry Dawbeny, Kt., lord de Dawbeny, Thomas Speke, Hugh Paulet, Nicholas Wadham, Jr., esquire, John Pool, Thomas Michell, John Battyn, clerk, John Bonvyle, John Balche, George Balche, John Chyke, his son, Thomas Hawker, John Barfote, John Radbere, clerk, by deed of the same abbot and convent, given in their chapter house, under the seal of the convent aforesaid, the third day of November, 1528."

This John and George may have been, and probably were sons of the William Balche who figures next in our chronology as being "of Higham," Somerset, who died on the 20th of March, 1533, and as appears by the "inquisitio post mortem" taken at Wells in Somerset on the 8th of November, 1534, in the 25th year of the reign of Henry VIII. [the year in which popery was abolished in England], was a person who had acquired a large amount of landed property in the county. He was regarded as the founder of a family, and his name heads the family tree recorded in the Somerset visitation of 1623.

The inquisitio post mortem, or escheat, was instituted to enquire, at the death of any man of fortune, the value of his estate, the tenure by which it was holden, and who was the heir, and of what age, thereby to ascertain the value of the "premier seizin," or the "wardship and livery" accruing to the King thereupon. The court of wards and liveries, which was instituted in the reign of Henry VIII., was abolished, with other feudal customs, on the restoration of Charles II. Some idea of the contempt into which the practice had fallen may perhaps be gathered from the fact that the word cheat is derived from escheat.

The inquisition into the affairs of William Balche of Higham—which may have been the locality now known as High Ham—and which was conducted with a view, if possible, of putting money into the coffers of the bluff King Hal, by Thomas Horner as escheator, states that William, at the time of his death was "Seized of 200 acres of pasture, 100 acres of Arable and 40 acres of meadow and 30 acres of woodland, with the appurtenances, etc., in East Coker, etc., held of Sir William Courtenaye, Knight, as of his manor of East Coker, and the said William Balche died so seized; after whose death the said pasture and land and meadow and wood, with the appurtenances, etc., descend to John Balche, as son and heir of the said William. And the said William was seized of one messuage, 20 acres of land, meadow and pasture, with its appurtenances, in Witencomb, in the said county of Somerset, etc., held of Robert Pike, as of his manor of Pykkeseighe, etc., also of the moiety of a messuage, 20 acres pasture, with its appurtenances, in Aldon, and 20 acres in Fydington, next Stokegursey, etc., held of Sir William Tarrant, as of his manor of Fydington, etc., all of which descended to John Balche, as above. The jurors found the said William Balche died 20 March, 24th of Henry VIII., and John Balche is the son and heir of the said William, and is 36 years of age and more."

Two years later, April 1, 1536, this John Balche in turn made his will, though he did not die until 1552. He and his descendants are described as being of "Horton," a hamlet, a mile and a half west of Ilminster church. To his daughters, Anne, Alice and Agnes, he bequeathed £10 each upon their majority. It appears from another source—the visitation of Somerset of 1531—that he had an elder daughter, Joan, who had probably received her portion upon her marriage with Robert Hyett, of Street. Agnes wedded Christopher Bourman [Bowerman or Boreman] of Wells. His son John received a legacy of £10. His sons Thomas and Anthony are mentioned, and to George, his son and heir, is bequeathed his bay gelding in Donyett Park. There is also a bequest to St. Andrews church at Wells. Hugh Balche, another son, is not mentioned in the will, but the residue of the estate is given to Isabell, the widow, who is made executrix, with John Walys and William Balche overseers.

This William may have been a brother, a son of William of Higham, and he is an interesting personage if he was, as would appear, the William Bawlche of West Chinnock, husbandman, who died in 1611, for he must have been at the time of his decease a centenarian.

Sir Nicholas Wadham, of Muryfelde [Merrifield] Knight, left by his will, which was proved in 1542 and directed his burial to be at Ilminster, the sum of £3, 6 shillings and 8 pence, besides their wages, to each of his servants, Roger Fontleroy, John Balche, William Bevyn and Anthony Bolleyn. That they were esteemed and trusted is shown by the fact that two of them were among the executors of the will, and it is to be remembered, in judging of the value of the properties mentioned in those ancient documents, that the sums named had many times the purchasing power of the money of these latter days.

It is possible that this John Balche was the son of that name mentioned in the will of John Balche, and it may have been this same John who, ten years later, in 1549, the third year of the pious young King Edward VI., was made one of the trustees of the noted Ilminster free grammar school, which, upon the dissolution of the chantries, an act of reformation which took place in 1547, was endowed with the lands formerly dedicated to their support. The possessions of the chantries passed to the crown, and those of the four connected with Ilminster church were purchased of the King by Giles Kaleway, of Stroud, in Dorset, and William Leonard, a merchant, of Taunton, Somerset, and by them conveyed to Humphrey Walrond, of Sea, in the parish of Ilminster, commonly called the founder of the school, and Henry Greenfield, for the consideration of £126. They "tendering the virtuous education of youth in literature, and godly learning, whereby the same youth, so brought up might the better know their duty as well to God as the King's majesty, and for divers other honest and godly considerations," assigned over all the premises acquired, including "Mody's tenement," before referred to, in May, 1549, to John Balche, gentleman, and others to the number of eighteen, for the purpose of choosing a proper school master. Humphrey Walrond was the preceptor chosen, and a house called the Cross house was appointed for his use.

George Balche, of Ilminster, gentleman, was the next representative of this well-to-do family at Horton. Born about 1524, he died June 23, 1569. His will was dated June 21 of that year, and proved August 6th by Nicholas, his eldest son. In it he directs that he be buried in the southern aisle of the church at Broadway. This village, a few miles from Ilminster, took its name from its situation, being originally a few huts built on each side of a broad path cut through the woods of the forests of Neroche. This forest was named from a very ancient Roman encampment, called Roche castle, on the edge of Blackdown hill.

Bequests are made in George's will to his wife Margery, his daughter Katherine, to whom he left £60, and his sons Nicholas, George and John. His brother Hugh is mentioned. His widow Margery Bery, daughter of Bery, of Bery Nabor, Devonshire, was his third wife, and the mother of his youngest child, Walter of Tavistock, Devon, who left two children, George and William. His second wife, named Katherine, was probably the mother of the Katherine to whom he left £60, while his first wife, Jane, daughter of Nicholas Ashford, of Ashford, Devon, was the mother of his eldest son and heir, Nicholas, and of George, John and Maximilian, the three last named dying without issue [obiit sine prole] as they are marked on the genealogical chart of the visitation of 1623.

George had lands in Horton, East Coker, Martock and Cannington as appears by the inquisitio post mortem taken at Yeovil, October 29, 1569, the 11th year of Queen Elizabeth, Stephen Brent being the escheator. Nicholas, the heir, was not yet 18 years of age at the time of his father's death.

It was about this period in history that desperate attempts were made by the adherents of the church of Rome to bring England again under the domination of the papacy, and the country was for a long time threatened with a Spanish invasion. Elizabeth came to the throne in November, 1558, and for thirty years from that time, until the great Armada was finally repulsed and scattered in July, 1588, the whole south of England was in a constant state of watchfulness and preparation. During that time the English militia system was first organized and developed.

In September, 1560, two years after Elizabeth's accession, the "mowster mayster" [muster master] of the county of Somerset, George Broughton, with a commission consisting of seven Knights and eleven esquires, returned a most quaintly spelled and worded "certyffycathe unto the quenes ma<sup>tie</sup> and here honorable counsell, of all syche abell men and armures as ys within the countey afforsayde," by which it appears that the total strength of the militia in the county was close on to 7000 men. The account from which this extract is taken "The Preparations in Somerset Against the Armada," by Emanuel Green, states that there were twenty-one "captaynes" of the "abell" men of Somerset, and that "each captain had 300 men, except William Balche, who had 200 only, the total available being about 6,939."

No place in this genealogy of the Balches, of Horton, can be assigned to this particular Captain William Balch. The company of "byllmen," which he commanded was credited to the hundred of Mark and Bempstone, on the northern edge of the county. William, the farmer of West Chinnock, on the southern edge of the county some 25 miles away, was then about 60 years of age. Nicholas had a cousin William, the son of his uncle Hugh, but he was then a mere infant, if indeed he was yet born.

Twenty-three years later, however, Nicholas, then 31 years old, and just about a year married, was among those gentlemen of the county whose means rendered them liable to furnish and equip a "light horseman" for the service.

On the 30th of September, 1583, the commissioners for Somerset certified that, according to their orders of the 26th of August, they had reviewed the demi-lances and light horsemen, and found them in readiness, according to their certificate, and such as since the last certificate had died or gone away were replaced. Where men were wanting to serve on the horses, time was given to the first of November to supply them.

Under the head of the hundred of Abdick, in which Horton is situated, they note that "Nicholas Balche, gent. made defalte and hath daye given him to furnish one l. h. as aforesaid."

In the hundred of Somertom, on the same date, Thomas Balche was one of two light horsemen furnished by James Hodges. It is possible that Thomas was cousin of Nicholas. Three years afterwards, March 14, 1586, in a return of "the names of those persons charged to find horses in the west part of Somerset," Nicholas was again set down to furnish one light horseman.

In the same year two other Balches, also possibly cousins of Nicholas, for he had cousins of their names, were included among "The names of the CCC Shott and Pyckes, trayned by Sir John Stawell, Knight, at Bridgewater, the viiith of October in the xxviiiith year of her ma<sup>ties</sup> Raigne, anno Dom. 1586." These were William Balche, corporal of "shott," in the hundred of Langport, Muchelney and Pitney, and John Balch of the "pyckes" of North Curry.

After all this drilling and training for thirty years, the men of Somerset were not destined to strike a blow. The Spaniards never succeeded in landing, and when, in 1588, the great Armada finally appeared in English waters, it was chased up the channel so far out to sea that it could not be seen from the Dorset coast, and no beacon was fired. Still, as the enemy was known to have passed, the militia of the counties moved with him toward London. Following the pre-arranged plan, 3000 men from Dorset marched into Hampshire to protect Plymouth, and a similar number from Somerset were sent into Dorset. From Dover to Gravesend every man was astir, but, except as a prisoner, no enemy was allowed to land.

During all these stirring years, Nicholas Balche—described in the inquisition taken after his death as "generosus," that is, well born, of good extraction—was apparently leading a quiet and prosperous life. In him the fortunes of the family seem to have culminated. At about the age of 29 he married Sarah, the daughter of Robert May, of Charterhouse Hidon, near Chedder, in Somerset, then deceased, who probably brought him large landed property in addition to that inherited from his father and grandfather. A deed in Latin, executed by him in 1582, soon after his marriage, under the name Nicholas Balche de Horton, for the benefit of his wife and children, makes mention of houses and lands, in Ilminster, East Coker, Martock, Cannington and Fidington. At his death George Balche of Horton, 23 years of age, also described as “generosus” was his eldest son and heir.

It was this George, who, in 1623, being then 39 years of age, subscribed to the genealogy and coat of arms recorded in the “visitation” of that year. He was then a bachelor, and there is no evidence that he ever married, but reason to suppose that he was single to the day of his death at the age of 74, in 1658.

During his long life Elizabeth had died, James had reigned, Charles met his unhappy fate, Cromwell ruled, and the restoration of Charles II., in 1660, was near at hand.

George Balche was loyal to the King, and his property was sequestered by the victorious Puritans, “for his delinquency that he adhered to the forces raised against the Parliament,” and on January 11, 1648, he was constrained, much against his will, perhaps, to make a petition in which he, “Humbly prayeth to be admitted to a favorable composition for his said delinquency.” Nearly a year elapsed, and then, December, 23, 1648, some of his friends petitioned in his behalf, but with what success does not appear. It would seem very likely, however, that these efforts were fruitless, and that much of his large estate was alienated, and that, perhaps, little remained to be administered upon by his niece, Dorothy Warre, his executrix, when he died ten years later. With him and his brother Nicholas, who died a month earlier, the fortunes of this branch apparently ended.

pedigree of Balch of County Somerset.

It was during the lifetime of this George, and in the year in which he subscribed to the Balch genealogy and arms, apparently as the recognized head of the family, that John Balch, five years his senior, went to America. John may have been a grandson of the first George Balch of Horton, and a son of either Thomas, Robert or William, but no evidence of such a descent is found, except a family tradition that John Balch was of Horton.

Much interesting data remains, relating to the English Balches of a later date, but not sufficiently connected to form a narrative. It is to be hoped that some one of them of the present day, with the facilities which the examination and publication of ancient documents now afford more abundantly than ever before, may undertake the task of compiling a family history which shall show exactly the relationship of all the Balches of Southern England.

For a number of years a branch of the family owned the manor of St. Audries, previously alluded to, and the "Gentlemen's Magazine" of March, 1814, contains this notice.

"Died, at St. Audries, George Balch, Esq., last male descendant of an ancient family.

FIRST GENERATION.

1. John Balch,<sup>1</sup> heads the family which is now scattered across the United States and along the Pacific coast. While it has been possible to learn with much accuracy his own history since he landed in September, 1623, all efforts to trace him and his ancestry prior to his settling in America have met with but slight success. But it is known that he came from Somerset county, England, and early family tradition says from Horton.

He came with a colony in charge of Captain Robert Gorges, son of Sir Fernando, who had a grant of a large tract of land which he wished to colonize. They landed at Wessagusset, now known as Weymouth, Massachusetts. It is learned from British archives that Capt. Gorges was commissioned Governor of New England.

Concerning this place prior to his landing some interesting facts deserve attention. Palfrey tells us in his history that early in the year 1621 Mr. Weston of London sent over two vessels, the Charity and the Swan, with some fifty men, to settle a plantation for him in the Massachusetts Bay. Concerning them Bradford of the Plymouth Colony received warning from Cushing and Pierce, in England, that they were base in condition and unfit for an honest man's company. These men located at Wessagusset, and stole vegetables from the gardens of the Plymouth Colony. During their second winter their condition became desperate, and, under the leadership of their chief man, Saunders, they took food by force from the Indians. The Plymouth Colony remonstrated in the strongest terms against this robbery, and because of it the Indians formed a plot to exterminate not only Weston's company, but the Pilgrims as well. This would have probably succeeded, if the Plymouth Colony had not been warned by a friendly Indian. In the spring of 1623 the settlement was abandoned by Weston's people.

Next came the Gorges company, of which John Balch was a member, to the deserted settlement, in the fall of 1623. This was the first direct from Great Britain to form a nucleus for a permanent settlement in New England. The Plymouth Colony and the Weston company were indeed earlier, but the former came by way of Holland, and the latter dispersed.

Independence of religious thought and a disposition from the first to break away from the Church of England characterized the Gorges company. An Episcopal clergyman named Morrell, who came with them, finding no opportunity to exercise his ecclesiastical authority, returned to England. The vessel, that brought them over, shortly afterward sailed with passengers to the Virginia Colony, while Capt. Gorges made an exploration to the north, and soon returned to England. After he left, the settlers were joined by some disaffected and expelled members of the Plymouth Colony, among whom was the Rev. John Lyford and Roger Conant.

About this time English capitalists formed the Dorchester Company, with these settlers as its agents and employees. The object was to carry on a fishery, and in 1624 the colony removed to Cape Ann for this purpose. They had about two hundred servants. An attempt had been made the year before to establish a plantation at Cape Ann, with Thomas Gardner as overseer, with small success. Roger Conant, who was described as "a religious, sober, and prudent gentleman," was appointed Governor of the Dorchester Company, and Lyford was the minister of the place.

Cattle were received from England in 1625. The fishing business not succeeding, most of the servants were returned to England, and the colonists determined to change their vocation from fishing to agriculture. The location at Cape Ann was ill adapted to the new occupation, and in September, 1626, they removed with their families, stores and cattle, to the Sagamoreship of Naumkeag, a densely wooded peninsula, where the Boston & Maine R. R. now crosses onto the bridge over the harbor from Salem to Beverly. These first settlers were :

Roger Conant,	John Woodbury,	John Balch,
Peter Palfrey,	Rev. John Lyford,	Thomas Gardner,
William Allen,	Thomas Gray,	Richard Norman, Sr.
Richard Norman, Jr.	Walter Knight,	John Tilley,
Capt. William Trask, and others.

Some were married and had children, and there were in all between twenty-five and thirty souls. The rock on which this noble band of pioneers stepped ashore at Naumkeag can be seen from the cars as they cross Beverly harbor. It is known as Forefathers' Rock.

Here was a tribe of Indians, much reduced in numbers by pestilence and wars, who gladly received the settlers for the protection they might afford.

In the following year Lyford, who seems to have had a restless disposition, planned to remove the colony to Virginia, but Rev. John White, a Puritan, known as the patriarch of Dorchester, learning of the contemplated move, wrote a letter from England on behalf of the Dorchester merchants who had organized the company, which deterred most of the settlers from leaving. In it he exhorted Conant not to desert the business, and faithfully promised him that if he, with John Woodbury, John Balch and Peter Palfrey, whom he knew to be honest and prudent men, would stay at Naumkeag, he would provide a patent for them. White was unable to keep his promise. It was evidently on these four men that the projectors of the colony relied for the energy and intelligence requisite for the success of their enterprise. The four came to be known as "the Old Planters." None of them or their descendants are known to have been among the persecutors of the Baptists, the Quakers, or the Witches, but, on the contrary, a descendant of Woodbury kept a horse saddled and a lantern lighted to aid any accused of witchcraft to escape, and a grandson of John Balch dared to sign a remonstrance against their persecution.

Carpenters among the settlers at Naumkeag built a frame house for Conant, and assisted the others in the construction of snug huts, so that they were enabled to pass the winter in comfort. For two years they thus prospered, attended to their cattle, and raised maize and hunted in common with their Indian friends. Their various doings are set forth at length in the papers by Geo. D. Phippen, in the Historical Collections of the Essex Institute, Vol. I.

In the meantime the Dorchester Company in England sold their interest in the colony to the Massachusetts Bay Company. The description of the Bay Colony's grant shows how meagre the geographical knowledge of America was at that time, for its bounds are given as three miles north of the Merrimack, three miles south of the Charles, and running west from the Atlantic to the South seas.

John Endicott was sent over as governor of this new company. On September 6, 1628, he landed at Naumkeag with his Puritanical band, and then it was that Conant's party learned of the change in their governors. Although the original settlers desired accessions to their colonies, they were not pleased with the followers of Endicott, for they quickly perceived in them that stern religious intolerance which was so soon to develop into the cruel persecutions that have stained the pages of New England history.

The winter's stores were inadequate for the double colony. The sad scenes of the Pilgrims' first winter at Plymouth were repeated at Naumkeag, and many died before spring.

Early in the following summer many more settlers arrived, abundant supplies were received from England, and the colony was firmly established. The differences between the adventurers (as the first settlers were often called) and the Puritanical followers of Endicott were amicably adjusted, and to commemorate the event, the town was incorporated in July 1629, and named Salem, the Hebrew word for peaceful.

John Balch and about eighteen others, being members of the church, were made freemen, May 18, 1631, that is, given the right to vote and hold office. This is the first date on which freemen were made in America. Early in the year 1635 the Massachusetts Bay Company gave to the several towns within its grant the right to give grants of land. The town of Salem, in order to exercise this right, at once appointed five overseers and layers out of land for its precinct, and one of these was John Balch. His name frequently appears in this capacity upon the records. On November 25, 1635, the town granted a thousand acres in what was then known as the Bass River District, to be divided between Roger Conant, John Woodbury, John Balch, Capt. Trask and Peter Palfrey. They divided it to suit themselves. This land was located between the head of Bass river and Wenham pond. It afterwards became known as the "Old Planters' grant," and was included in the town of Beverly, incorporated in 1668.

John Balch, in 1638, built a two story frame house upon his land, in which he spent the remainder of his life. In it his son Benjamin<sup>2</sup> and Benjamin's grandson 23 Benjamin<sup>4</sup> lived and reared their families. From this last Benjamin it passed to his daughter 78 Deborah<sup>5</sup> [Balch] Dodge in which family and name the house has continued to the present time. The Balch house, although subjected to some changes, is still standing in a good state of preservation. Roger Conant and John Woodbury also built houses near by, but Conant's is now entirely obliterated, and only the cellar hole remains to mark the sight of the one reared by Woodbury.

The first thirteen executive rulers of Salem were chosen

January 26, 1636-7, and in June following the number was twelve selectmen. The name of John Balch appears in both lists. Both his name and that of his wife Margary are in the list of the first members of the first church in Salem. The organization of this church was completed August 6, 1629, and was the first Congregational church completely formed and organized in America. The Plymouth church was the first, but it was formed and organized at Leyden, in Holland, during the temporary sojourn of the Pilgrims there, on their way to this country. So large a part of it was transferred, that it was considered the church to the new colony in America.

John Balch was twice married, Margary was the given name of his first wife. There is no record of her parentage or the date of their marriage, but it is not improbable that theirs may have been the first and perhaps only marriage in the Naumkeag settlement.

To them were born three sons.

His second wife Agnes or Annis [Patch] gave him no children.

John<sup>1</sup> died at his estate on Bass river, in May, 1648. His will was duly made and filed among the Essex County records, where it now is. A printed copy and a fac simile are appended. The inventory of John Balch's estate rendered by Benjamin Balch, February 2, 1648-9, amounted to 220 £ s.13. d.4.

Agnes the second wife of John Balch<sup>1</sup>, left a will which was declared illegal. In Nov. 1657, her stepson Benjamin Balch<sup>2</sup> brought into court a statement signed by several of his neighbors that all her estate was not sufficient to satisfy his demands upon it.

SECOND GENERATION.

2. Benjamin,<sup>2</sup> eldest son of 1 John<sup>1</sup> and Margary Balch was born in the Sagamoreship of Naumkeag during the severe and trying winter of 1628 and 9 which followed the arrival of Endicott.

The evidence which conclusively fixes his birth in this winter was collected by David M. Balch and published in the Salem Gazette on May 10, 1878, and in Balch Leaflets, Nos. 1-8. Twenty-two years after the death of Benjamin's third son John<sup>3</sup> the tradition of the family was committed to writing, that Benjamin<sup>2</sup> was the first born male child in the Massachusetts Bay Colony. Since it was in September, 1628, that the Naumkeag settlers learned that they were the Massachusetts Bay Colony, and the name of the place was changed to Salem in the following July, the tradition is interpreted as indicating that Benjamin's birth was between these dates. April 10, 1706, he gives his age in a sworn deposition as about 77. This places his birth prior to April, 1629, and fixing it in the winter above mentioned. The word male presented in the tradition seems to hint that a female was born in the Colony before him.

Claims conflicting with the tradition that Benjamin<sup>2</sup> was the first born have been held by the descendants of others, and it will therefore be important to notice them in passing.

After the place took the name of Salem, Roger Conant, Jr. was born, and when ten years old was granted 20 acres of land as the "first born child in Salem." He died in 1672. This left John Massey entitled to describe himself as the oldest planter living in Salem who was born there. He was, however, as several depositions show, two years younger than Benjamin Balch<sup>2</sup> who lived in Beverly.

Benjamin<sup>2</sup> received at his father's death half of the farm and sundry other goods. From his brother John<sup>2</sup> he purchased his share in the old homestead on Bass River, and in 1658 secured possession of his brother Freeborn's<sup>2</sup> share in his father's estate. He lived in the old home from its building when he was nine years old, and in it all of his children were born.

His independence of the rigid puritanical notions of the times appears in several instances. For entertaining and giving a night's lodging to a stranger on foot, he was arrested and fined, and he left the baptism of his children to their own desires.

Previous to Benjamin's last marriage he gave part of his farm to three of his sons, and after his last wife's death he deeded the home lot for a maintainance in his old age to his grandson Benjamin<sup>4</sup>. He executed other deeds to his sons, and the last of these which has been found was given January 31, 1714-15, and shows that he completed his 86th year. He left no will as most of his property was disposed of while living. The date of his death is not known.

Benjamin<sup>2</sup> was married first about 1650, to Sarah, the eldest daughter of Thomas Gardner, the overseer of the first Cape Ann Plantation. They had the following children, of which the ten eldest were baptized April 10, 1670.

5*	SAMUEL, <sup>3</sup>	b.	May — 1651;	d. Oct. 14, 1723.
6*	BENJAMIN, <sup>3</sup>	b.	1653;	d. Spring of 1698.
7*	JOHN, <sup>3</sup>	b.	1654;	d. Nov. 19, 1738.
8*	JOSEPH, <sup>3</sup>	b.	1658;	d. Sept. 16, 1675.
9*	FREEBORN, <sup>3</sup>	b.	Aug. 9, 1660;	d. June 11, 1729.
10*	SARAH, <sup>3</sup>	b.	1661;	d. prior to 1717.
11*	ABIGAIL, <sup>3</sup>	b.	1663;	d. Apr. 30, 1706.
12*	RUTH, <sup>3</sup>	b.	1665;	d.
13*	MARY, <sup>3</sup>	b.	1667;	d. Mch. 12, 1787.
14	JONATHAN, <sup>3</sup>	bapt.	Apr. 10, 1670;	probably d. y.
15	DAVID, <sup>3</sup>	b.	July 9, 1671;	d. u. m. Apr. 17, 1690.

Benjamin's wife Sarah died April 5, 1686, and February 5, 1689, he married Abigail, widow of Matthew Clarke, of Marblehead. She died in January, 1690, aged 55 years. His third and last marriage was to Grace Mallet. The ceremony was performed on March 15, 1691-2 by Simeon Bradstreet, Esq. To Benjamin and Grace were born two daughters.

16* DEBORAH,<sup>s</sup> b. June 6, 1693. d. May 5, 1717.

17* LYDIA,<sup>s</sup> b. Aug. 28, 1695.

His wife Grace probably died before 1704, since he signed a deed alone in that year.

3. John,<sup>s</sup> son of 1 John<sup>1</sup> and Margary Balch, was born at Salem, Mass., about 1630. He was drowned by the upsetting of a skiff in a storm when crossing the ferry between Salem and Beverly, June 16, 1662. He married Mary, daughter of Roger Conant. They had only one child.

18 MARY,<sup>s</sup> died young.

John's widow married William Dodge, "ye yonger." The inventory of his estate is given in a quaint old document which is here copied entire.

HILLYARD VERENS.

4. Freeborn,<sup>2</sup> son of 1 John<sup>1</sup> and Margary Balch, was born in Salem, Mass., about 1631. He was probably named to commemorate the event of his father being made a free-man that year. Family tradition says that he went to England and died there about 1657. His estate in Salem was purchased in 1658 by his brother Benjamin, from Walter Price, a shopkeeper of that place, who was his executor and administrator. [Essex Reg. Deeds, Vol. 1, p. 82, Jan. 20, 1659.]

It is probable that at the time of his death Freeborn was in debt to, or in Price's employ, and it may be assumed that he was a mariner and was lost at sea. His brother Benjamin purchased his inheritance from Price, and paid for it £20 and 2½ acres in the "Old Planters Marsh." The deed shows that Freeborn's death was uncertain, for it recites, "alwaise Provided y<sup>t</sup> if the above sd. Freeborne Balch appears to be alive, then this bargain to be voyd." On May 26, 1660, Price gave his receipt for the money and the land was deeded, and it is to be presumed that then, either because Freeborn had not appeared for two years, or on account of information of his death, that his estate was settled up.

"The Old Planters Marsh" referred to was located on the peninsula where they first landed, in the present city of Salem.

THIRD GENERATION.

5. Samuel,<sup>3</sup> eldest son of 2 Benjamin<sup>2</sup> and Sarah (Gardner) Balch, was born in the old homestead, at the head of Bass river, in May, 1651, and died October 14, 1723. He was married, October 27, 1675, to Martha, daughter of John and Martha (Gould) Newmarch, of Ipswich, Mass. She died July 7, 1720, aged 67 years. They had seven sons and three daughters, all born in Beverly.

- 29 THOMAS,<sup>4</sup> b. Apr. 1, 1692; d. Aug. 15, 1699.

He married again, November 23, 1721, the widow, Martha Butman. She died in 1745, without issue.

When nineteen years of age he was baptized, at his own desire, and united with the First church of Beverly, of which he afterwards became a deacon. He was chosen town clerk of Beverly, and took the oath of office, June 27, 1693. This office he held for seven years. He was several times chosen a representative of the town, and was evidently honored and respected by his neighbors as a man of integrity and ability.

By a conveyance recorded April 25, 1692, his father deeded to him one-half of a 40 acre lot, which was bounded easterly with Samuel's own land, west with country road, north by the Raiments, southerly with Peter Woodbury. It is evident from this and other deeds that he was quite a land owner near Wenham pond.

His will, dated November 30, 1722, making his son John sole executor, was probated at Ipswich, October 23, 1723. [Reg. Essex Prob., Vol. 13, p. 359.]

6. Benjamin,<sup>3</sup> son of 2 Benjamin<sup>2</sup> and Sarah (Gardner) Balch, was born in the old homestead, about 1653, and baptized at his own desire, April 10, 1670. He died in Beverly in the spring of 1698.

He was married October 11, 1674, to Elizabeth, daughter of John and Elizabeth Woodbury, and granddaughter of the old planter, John, and his wife, Agnes Woodbury. She was born Aug. 15, 1654, and died a short time after her husband. Their children were:

- 30* ANN,<sup>4</sup> b. about 1673; d. Aug. 23, 1726.
- 31* JOSEPH,<sup>4</sup> b. Sept. 26, 1677; d. Aug. 14, 1712.

- 34 ELIZABETH,<sup>4</sup> b. July 6, 1688; d. y.
- 35 RUTH,<sup>4</sup> b. Aug. 29, 1691.

He received 25 acres from his father, by a deed dated February 25, 1688-9. This land is bounded north by a birch tree on the way from Beverly to Ephrim Herrick's, south by country road to Wenham, and east by Jno. Raymond, Jr. The deed also conveyed one acre of meadow in Wenham. [Essex Deeds, Vol. 21, p. 20.]

From the Essex County records it appears that his oldest surviving son Joseph was appointed executor June 27, 1698. These records note that Benjamin<sup>3</sup> was a Mariner.

7. John,<sup>3</sup> son of 2 Benjamin<sup>2</sup> and Sarah (Gardner) Balch, was born at the old homestead about 1654, and died at Beverly, November 19, 1738. No record of his birth has been found, but several depositions among the County Court papers give his age at various times and thus enables the year of his birth to be determined. One of these is as follows. "The deposition of John Balch (son to Benjamin Balch), age 16 years or thereabouts that he saw Wm. Barnes, Mr. Thorndik's man coming out of Goodin Lambert's house at y<sup>e</sup> window on y<sup>e</sup> last day of y<sup>e</sup> weeke wch was before y<sup>e</sup> Generall trayning when they trayned at Beverly. Taken upon oath 28, & 9 mo. 1670." It was the custom in those days at stated times known as training days to gather together all the militia of the County at one town or another to be drilled.

He was married to Hannah Veren, December 23, 1674. She was the granddaughter of Philip Veren of New Sarum (Salisbury), a roper by trade, who came over in the James from Southampton, and arrived in Boston in 1635, bringing his wife Dorcas and ~~four~~ sons, Philip, Hilliard, Nathaniel and Joshua.

Robert
John

Philip Veren Jr. was admitted to Salem Church, January 3, 1640-41. He was a wheelwright by trade, and his wife's name was Joanna. Their children were: Bethrah, bapt. Nov. 14, 1641; Dorcas, bapt. April 16, 1643; Philip, bapt. March 23, 1644-5; Hannah, b. 1655; Adoniram; Mary, b. Aug. 10, 1659; and Deliverance.

John<sup>3</sup> and Hannah Balch lived to celebrate their 64th wedding day. The farm on which all their wedded life was spent was a portion of the old Planters' grant. Part of it came from his father by a conveyance recorded April 25, 1692, which recites, "Benjamin Balch yeoman of Beverly to son John, etc. half my 40 acres where he now dwelleth, his portion to be next the Country road, and the land to be eaqually divided between my two sons Samuel and John."

Unto John and Hannah, were born 14 children.

He a was carpenter or "housewright," and also a farmer. He was admitted to full communion, in the first parish church of Beverly, June 2, 1680. March 23, 1686-7, his wife Hannah was also admitted to full communion. On May 19, 1680, He was made a freeman. He held the following offices: March 15, 1682-3, Surveyor of highways; March 15, 1685-6, Tythingman; Dec. 9, 1690, Grand Jurymen; 1693, Tythingman; 1694, Sergeant; 1694, Constable; 1695 to 1699, Selectman; 1700, Ensign; 1705, Lieutenant; 1711, Representative.

Just a month before his death, his long will was drawn up and signed. His son Caleb was named as sole executor. It notes minutely the provisions for the widow; and among other privileges it specifies "also y<sup>e</sup> Liberty of Gathering so many Beans in y<sup>e</sup> field as she may have occasion of for her own use both for summer and winter" [It seems Beverly did not neglect her staple even in those early days]. "Twenty bushels of Good Indian Corn five bushels of Malt. Two hundred Pounds of Beef Out of which Quarter of y<sup>e</sup> Beast She Pleaseth to have it. Two Barrell of Cyder, with Apples Sufficient for her use, and fifteen pounds of flax from y<sup>e</sup> Swingle." "To keep for her use both Summer and Winter Two Cows & four sheep" "y<sup>e</sup> Service of my Indian Woman Called Quando & y<sup>e</sup> Privelege of a Horse to Ride upon for her necessary occasions."

The will mentions sons Caleb, Joshua, Israel, David, grandson Andrew son of John deceased, daughters Sarah Richardson, Hannah Leach, and grandchildren of his daughter Rebecca Dodge, deceased.

Among other things the inventory mentions, 1 Negro man value £95, and 1 Old Indian Woman £18. He died Nov. 19, 1738, and his wife soon followed March 7, 1738-9. His estate was proved Dec. 11, 1738, but his widow was too feeble to attend the court.

8. Joseph,<sup>3</sup> son of 2 Benjamin<sup>2</sup> and Sarah [Gardner] Balch, was born in the old homestead in 1658. He was a soldier in Capt. Lathrop's company and was slain at the famous Indian battle of Bloody Brook, September 18, 1675, in King Phillip's war. Palfrey's History gives an account of the battle.

Deerfield was abandoned, before the inhabitants had secured their harvest. "From Hadley, twenty miles distant, the headquarters of the troops, a party was dispatched to finish threshing the grain and bring it in. Eighteen wagons, with their teamsters, were convoyed by a company of ninety picked men, led by Capt. Lathrop."

On their return after securing the crop they were surprised at a small stream in the township of Deerfield. Here as they were crossing, a large force of Indians suddenly fell upon them and slew all but seven or eight of the company. The stream was named Bloody Brook from this disaster.

9. Freeborn,<sup>3</sup> son of 2 Benjamin<sup>2</sup> and Sarah [Gardner] Balch, was born in the old homestead at Beverly, August 9, 1660, the year following the incorporation of the town. He died in Beverly, June 12, 1729. His death was probably quite sudden, for his long will was drawn up and signed the day that he died. His gravestone stands on a hill in the cemetery near Wenham

Freeborn Balch,

Lake with those of his mother-in-law, Sarah Fairfield, and his two children, Skipper and Sarah.

Freeborn was a farmer, and lived on a portion of his father's estate in North Beverly, on the East shore of Wenham Lake. His thrifty husbandry reared the finest apple orchard in the county, which he willed, together with his cider mill and cider house, to his son William. He married first, late in the Autumn of 1682, the widow Mirriam Bachelder. She was born in January, 1657-8, and was the daughter of Robert Moulton, Jr., and his wife Abigail [Goode?]. She first married Joseph, son of John Bachelder, October 8, 1677. By him she had two children, Joseph, b. July 18, 1678, and Abigail. Bachelder was a mariner, and died or was lost at sea, probably late in 1681. There is no record of her marriage with Freeborn, but as she signs her name as a witness to a deed dated November 13, 1682, "Mirriam Bachelder" their marriage must have been subsequent to that time. There is no record of Mirriam's death which probably occurred in 1688.

Mirriam Moulton was a granddaughter of Robert Moulton, who came to this country in 1629, with six ship-builders, of whom he was chief. The first fishing and trading boats built in Salem were built by him and his men. He died in April, 1655, leaving a son Robert and daughter Dorothy. Robert Moulton, Jr., married Abigail Croad, a niece of Emanuel Downing, by whom he had eight children, Robert, Abigail, Samuel, Hannah, John, Joseph, Mirriam, and Mary. He died in September, 1665.

Freeborn and Mirriam had three children.

52* BENJAMIN,<sup>4</sup> b. April 17, 1688; d. Jan. 23, 1741-2.

The Essex County Court Records give the marriage of Freeborn Balch and Mallis, February 20, 1688-9. She must have died soon after for no other record is to be found.

Freeborn's third marriage was on April 30, 1690, to Elizabeth Fairfield, daughter of Walter Fairfield, and his wife Sarah [Skipperway] of Wenham. She was born August 9, 1666, and died January 31, 1736-7.

They had seven children.

10. Sarah,<sup>3</sup> daughter of 2 Benjamin<sup>2</sup> and Sarah [Gardner] Balch, was born about 1661, and died prior to 1717. She was married, December 20, 1680, to James Patch, son of James and Hannah Patch. He was born in Salem, June 21, 1655, and died at Ipswich in February, 1732-3. In June, 1717, he married again, this time to Mary Thorne, who was the daughter of Bernard Thorne, and widow of David Thorne.

Sarah and James Patch had five children: James, d. unm. in 1714; John, b. 1699, d. May 30, 1775; Mary; Bertha, m. Samuel Whipple, June 20, 1726; Hannah, m. Nathaniel Potter in Oct., 1710.

11. Abigail,<sup>8</sup> daughter of 2 Benjamin<sup>2</sup> and Sarah [Gardner] Balch, was born in 1663, and died April 30, 1706. She was married February 8, 1680-81, to Cornelius Larcum. Their children were: Jonathan, b. Mar. 8, 1690-91; Cornelius, b. Feb. 15, 1697-8; Benjamin, b. Feb. 6, 1699-1700; David, b. Oct. 28, 1701.

On March 28, 1707, the year after Abigail's death, Larcum married Margaret Low. He died June 9, 1747, aged 94 years, and Margaret died, Dec. 10, 1756, aged 85 years.

12. Ruth,<sup>8</sup> daughter of 2 Benjamin<sup>2</sup> and Sarah [Gardner] Balch, was born at Beverly, Mass., about 1665, and was baptized April 10, 1670. She was married to Joseph Drinker, who was born at Exeter, England, March 31, 1653. He emigrated to America, in July, 1655, with his father and mother, Philip and Elizabeth Drinker, in the ship Abigail, Robert Hackwell, master. They resided at Beverly, where Joseph and Ruth were married. A deed signed by her Oct. 15, 1731, shows that then she was a widow, and living in Boston.

They had three sons:* Joseph, d. in 1742; m. July 9, 1708,

She was married February 8, 1710-11, to William Raymond, Jr., a brother of Daniel, who married Abigail Balch, and Paul, who married Tabitha Balch, daughters of Deborah's brother Freeborn Balch.

It appears that they removed to Rochester, Mass., as Raymond was clerk of that town, 1738-1737, and held various other town offices. He was a member of the Congregational Church. Their children were : William Raymond, b. Beverly, Feb. 7, 1711-12 ; Benjamin Raymond, b. Rochester, Dec. 4, 1714 ; Daniel Raymond, b. Rochester, March 27, 1717.

Wm. Raymond married, 2d, Tabitha Edwards, by whom he had several other children. He lived at "Raymond's Landing," which was afterwards set off to Wareham.

17. Lydia,<sup>8</sup> daughter of 2 Benjamin<sup>2</sup> and Grace [Mallet] Balch, was born in Beverly, August 28, 1695.

She married Samuel Bowles, and lived at Rochester, Mass. A deed, executed November 18, 1748, in which she joins with her husband, Samuel Bowles, of Rochester, in Plymouth county, is a conveyance to a sheep pasture in Beverly, which is referred to as a common right unto the heirs of Benjamin Balch, senior, deceased (our honored father). This deed is in the possession of Wm. F. Abbot, of Worcester, Massachusetts.

FOURTH GENERATION.

20. Martha,<sup>4</sup> daughter of 5 Samuel<sup>3</sup> and Martha [Newmarch] Balch, was born in Beverly, Sept. 13, 1676, and married about 1698 to Thomas Hovey, of Ipswich [now Topsfield]. Nothing further is known concerning her.

21. Samuel,<sup>4</sup> eldest son of 5 Samuel<sup>3</sup> and Martha [Newmarch] Balch, was born in Beverly, May 16, 1678, and died in the same town in 1754. He married first, September 23, 1702, Eleanor, daughter of William and Martha Cleves. She died Dec. 12, 1708, aged 30 years. Three children were born in Beverly.

60 MARTHA,<sup>5</sup> b. Aug. 14, 1703; d. March 5, 1703-4.

61 THOMAS,<sup>5</sup> b. Aug. 15, 1705; d. unm. abroad in 1728.

62 SAMUEL,<sup>5</sup> b. June 1, 1707; drowned in Exeter river Oct. 12, 1728, unm.

He married second, Sept. 3, 1710, Mary, widow of Jonathan Baker, of Salem. Their children were as follows:

63* JOSIAH,<sup>5</sup> bapt. Oct. 28, 1711.

64 EBENEZER,<sup>5</sup> bapt. Jan. 24, 1713-14; d. May 15, 1714.

65* MARTHA,<sup>5</sup> bapt. Oct. 30, 1715.

66* NATHANIEL,<sup>5</sup> born Oct. 18, 1717.

He was a deacon in the church in Beverly, a mariner, and later in life a farmer.

22. Joseph,<sup>4</sup> son of 5 Samuel<sup>3</sup> and Martha [Newmarch] Balch, was born in Beverly, April 26, 1680, and drowned December 9, 1732. He married in Boston, October 23, 1712, Mary, daughter of Timothy and Deborah Osgood, of Andover. She was born February 11, 1690, and died in Boston Oct. 22, 1752. They had six children, all born in Boston.

67* JOSEPH,<sup>5</sup> b. Jan. 18, 1714-15; d. unm. Aug. 20, 1738.

68* MARY,<sup>5</sup> b. March 4, 1716-17.

69* DEBORAH,<sup>5</sup> b. Sept. 8, 1719.

70* EBENEZER,<sup>5</sup> b. May 14, 1723; d. April 28, 1808.

71* TIMOTHY,<sup>5</sup> b. May 28, 1725; d. April 11, 1776.

72* SARAH,<sup>5</sup> b. April 13, 1728.

Joseph was a sea captain, and resided in Boston. The following account of his death is an extract of a letter printed in the Boston News Letter, January 25, 1732-3, from Mr. David Linzey, mate of brigantine "Robert," and is dated at St. Christophers, December 13, 1732, via Rhode Island:

"Sir, this comes to acquaint you of the dismal misfortune that has hapened, Viz., the loss of Captain Balch. He was knocked overboard with the gaft seventeen days after we left Boston, about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, in lat. 17° 3' N. We reckoned ourselves four leagues to the east'd of the Island of Antigua." Antigua is one of the Caribbean islands, belonging to Great Britain.

23. Benjamin,<sup>4</sup> son of 5 Samuel<sup>3</sup> and Martha [Newmarch] Balch, was born in Beverly, March 29, 1682, and died January 8, 1749-50. He was married June 27, 1705, to Mary Leech, daughter of John and Mary Leech, and granddaughter of John and Sarah [Conant] Leech of Wenham. They had seven children, all born in Beverly.

73 MARTHA,<sup>5</sup> b. Dec. 9, 1706; d. y.

74* MERCY,<sup>5</sup> b. Feb. 4, 1708-9.

75 MARTHA,<sup>5</sup> b. Feb. 2, 1712-13; d. Aug. 18, 1714.

76* MARY,
77* MARTHA,<sup>5</sup> } twins b. Jan. 9, 1715-16.

78* DEBORAH,<sup>5</sup> b. Aug. 20, 1720.

79 BENJAMIN,<sup>5</sup> b. Sept. 22, 1725; d. Aug. 4, 1736.

Benjamin was a farmer and a deacon in the church. He lived with his grandfather (2) Benjamin,<sup>2</sup> on the old homestead. This appears from a deed of gift, dated January 4, 1703-4, as follows: "Benjamin Balch, to grandson, Benj. Balch, Jr., who dwell with me for good will," etc., "conveyes dwelling house, barn, orchard, upland, salt marsh, 6 acres, 7 acres more, 10 acres to mill, 25 acres beyond to geo. Trow's on the south, after my decease." The will of Benjamin [23], dated Sept. 4, 1749, is in the Essex County Probate Records.

24. John,<sup>4</sup> son of 5 Samuel<sup>3</sup> and Martha [Newmarch]

Balch, was born in Beverly, March 29, 1682, a twin of Benjamin<sup>4</sup>. He died probably in December, 1756, in Beverly, and his will was probated at Ipswich, January 3, 1757. He was married first, December 24, 1708, to Mary, daughter of John and Rachel Tuck. She was born in 1682, and died February 20, 1741-2. John and Mary had five daughters. He was a farmer in Beverly.

 83 SARAH,<sup>5</sup> bapt. April 15, 1716; d. y.
 84* DEBORAH,<sup>5</sup> b. Dec. 19, 1717.

John married second, December 25, 1743, Eunice, the widow of Samuel Kimball, of Bradford. She died in 1770, without issue.

25. Phebe,<sup>4</sup> daughter of 5 Samuel<sup>3</sup> and Martha [Newmarch] Balch, was born in Beverly, April 1, 1684. She married Samuel Chapman, and removed to Greenland, N. H. Nothing more is known of her.

26. Peter,<sup>4</sup> son of 5 Samuel<sup>3</sup> and Martha [Newmarch] Balch, was born in Beverly, May 6, 1685, and died in Framingham, December 27, 1755, of a cancer of the hand. He married Elizabeth Dwight of Medfield, Mass., a daughter of Timothy Dwight. The ceremony was performed by Mr. Joseph Baxter. Peter Balch was a deacon in the church in Medfield, and on removing to Framingham was made a deacon in the church there. In 1744 he was elected selectman of Framingham. He was a cordwainer by trade. His will, recorded in the Middlesex County Records, shows that he left a slave, Flora, and children. Temple's History of Framingham mentions a slave negro child name Phebe sold by Elizabeth Balch, August 13, 1767. Children of Peter and Elizabeth:

27. Cornelius,<sup>4</sup> son of 5 Samuel<sup>3</sup> and Martha [Newmarch] Balch, was born in Beverly, May 1, 1687, and died after 1730, at which time he was living in Topsfield. He was a cooper by trade. In 1711 he married Mary Shaw. They had two children.

89 MARY,<sup>5</sup> b. Feb. 22, 1714-15; bapt. Mar 6, 1714-15; d. in childhood.

Cornelius' widow married Feb. 5, 1753, Dr. Mical Dwinell, of Topsfield. Two entries in the Topsfield Church Records conclude their history: "Died, September 19, 1770, Mical Dwinell, an aged man, who died suddenly." "Died April 14, 1774, widow Mary Dwinell, who died suddenly, a very aged woman, upwards of 90 years."

30. Ann,<sup>4</sup> daughter of 6 Benjamin<sup>3</sup> and Elizabeth [Woodbury] Balch, was born in Beverly about 1675, and died August 23, 1726. She married first a Mr. Rich and probably had no children, as none are recorded. She married second Nathaniel Wallis, April 20, 1698. He died in 1762 at a very advanced age. His ancestry is appended to the record of 13 Mary.<sup>8</sup> Among their children were the following: Margaret, b. Nov. 11, 1699, who married December 26, 1725, David Ellenwood, whose first wife was 96 Joanna,<sup>5</sup> daughter of 89 John Balch,<sup>4</sup> Jr., and had five children. Nathaniel, b. Nov. 11, 1700. Anna, who married Richard Wittredge. Josiah, bapt. Aug. 26, 1711. Mary, bapt. June 20, 1714, who married Benj. Rayment.

31. Joseph,<sup>4</sup> son of 6 Benjamin<sup>3</sup> and Elizabeth [Woodbury] Balch, was born in Beverly, September 26, 1677, and died August 14, 1712. His gravestone still stands in

Beverly's old church
yard. On March 21, 1696-7, he was published to Sarah

Joseph Balch

Hart of Salem, who was a daughter of Jonathan Hart, and his wife Lydia [Neal] and grand-daughter of John Neal of Salem. Joseph was a weaver by occupation. His widow married, December 25, 1716, William Mellowes [now spelled Mellus], a farmer of Scituate, and moved there with her children. Joseph was appointed administrator of his father's estate, as already noted under 6 Benjamin.<sup>8</sup> The children of Joseph and Sarah were the following:

91* BENJAMIN,<sup>5</sup> bapt. Oct. 18, 1702; d. 1758.

92* ELIZABETH,<sup>5</sup> b. Dec. 11, 1704.

93* LYDIA,<sup>5</sup> b. Apr. 7, 1707.

94* SARAH,<sup>5</sup> b. Dec. 1, 1709.

95* JOSEPH,<sup>5</sup> bapt. June 22, 1712.

32. Ebenezer,<sup>4</sup> second son of 6 Benjamin<sup>8</sup> and Elizabeth [Woodbury] Balch, was born in Beverly, June 6, 1680. He is the first male in the family whose descendants, other than a daughter, if there were any, it has not been possible to find and trace for this genealogy. The following from Essex Land Records, Vol. 28, p. 212, is all that is certainly known concerning him. "May 7, 1714, Ebenezer Balch, sayler, with wife Ann, for 250 deeds 6½ acres of land in Beverly to people of 'the precinct, and bounded on one side by land of my uncle Samuel Balch." They probably had a daughter Ann who married in 1731, one James Butler, of Boston.

33. Abigail,<sup>4</sup> daughter of 6 Benjamin<sup>8</sup> and Elizabeth [Woodbury] Balch, was born in Beverly, May 17, 1682. She was married in 1705 to Edward Rainsford, a weaver.

36. Rebecca,<sup>4</sup> daughter of 7 John<sup>8</sup> and Hannah [Veren] Balch, was born in Beverly about 1675, and baptized July 25, 1680. She died September 24, 1704. She was married November 28, 1695, to Joseph Dodge, of Beverly, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. John Hall. Joseph Dodge was a descendant of Richard Dodge, who with his brother William, came over from England prior to 1638. Richard, in his will dated September 14, 1670, mentions his wife Edith, sons Richard, Samuel, John, Edward and Joseph, daughter Mary Herrick, and daughter Sarah. Joseph married Sarah Eaton, February 21, 1671-2. A son, Joseph, was born to them about 1675. Rebecca and Joseph had six children living and mentioned in the will of their grandfather 7 John Balch<sup>3</sup> in 1738.

37. Hannah,<sup>4</sup> daughter of 7 John<sup>3</sup> and Hannah [Veren] Balch, was born in Beverly, about 1676, and was baptized, with her sister Rebecca, July 25, 1680. The date of her death is not known, but in April, 1739, she was a widow, and living at Ashford, Ct. She received her share of her father's estate from her brother Caleb, who was executor. Her marriage to Richard Leach, of Wenham, was performed by Rev. Thomas Blower, March 7, 1703-4. Leach died at Wenham in June, 1719. He descended from Lawrence and Elizabeth Leach, who came to America with their children. One of their sons was Capt. Richard Leach, b. 1618. His son John married Sarah Conant, in 1648. Their son John, by his wife Mary, had a son Richard, and a daughter Mary, who married 22 Benjamin Balch.

Richard and Hannah [Balch] Leach had the following children, all born at Wenham: John, b. May 12, 1705, m. Feb. 1, 1727-8, by Rev. Robert Ward, to Lydia Machintyre, of Ipswich, Mass.; Hannah, b. May 28, 1707; Deborah, b. May 21, 1708, m. March 3, 1724-5, to Nehemiah Wood, of Ipswich; Mary, b. June 17, 1710; Richard, b. July 11, 1711, m. Rebecca Bugbee; Ebenezer and Ruth, twins, b. June 10, 1714; Sarah, b. Aug. 17, 1715; Abigail, b. June 4, 1718, m. June 4, 1739, James Agard, of Windham.

Of the above children Richard and Ebenezer, and possibly some of the others, removed to Ashford, Windham county, Connecticut, and Richard removed later to Torrington, Connecticut. In the history of that town some of his family are mentioned. Among his descendants was the director of the mint, under President Benjamin Harrison.

39. John,<sup>4</sup> son of 7 John<sup>3</sup> and Hannah [Veren] Balch, was born about 1679, in Beverly, and died about 1723. He was married in October, 1700, to Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Ober. She

Israel married second, Aug. 23, 1727, Ann Coe of Wenham. She died in 1770. "The Sabbath in Puritan New England," by Alice Morse Earle, tells of a Bay Psalm Book published in 1709, which Israel undoubtedly owned. With the characteristic indifference of our New England forefathers for tiresome repetition, or possibly with their disdain of novelty, he had inscribed on every blank page of the book:

"Israel Balch, His Book.

God give him Grace therein to look,
And when the Bell for him doth toal
May God have mearcy on his Sole."

What the diction lacked in variety is quite made up, however, in spelling, which was was painstakingly different on each page.

41. Sarah,<sup>4</sup> daughter of 7 John<sup>3</sup> and Hannah [Veren] Balch, was born in Beverly, March 20, 1682-3. She was living in 1739, and received her share of her father's estate from her brother Caleb Balch, his executor. Richard Richardson and Sarah Balch were married by Eben Pemberton, March 3, 1711-12, according to the Boston records. These give the following children of Richard and Sarah: John, b. Aug. 29, 1713, d. Sept. 17, 1713; Sarah, b. July 16, 1714; John, b. Oct. 11, 1716.

45. Joshua,<sup>4</sup> son of 7 John<sup>3</sup> and Hannah [Veren] Balch, was born in Beverly, Nov. 5, 1688. November 11, 1725, he married Rebecca Brown of Boston. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Thomas Foxcraft, pastor of the First Church, Boston. By her he had two children and possibly more, but beyond the record of the birth of these two nothing has been learned regarding Joshua and his family.

He was married April 29, 1713, to Hannah, daughter of Thomas and Sarah [Wallis] Perkins. She was born February 10, 1692-3, and died in Topsfield, January 1, 1747-8. They had three sons.

David had no children by his second wife Ester Dwinell, whom he married November 14, 1752. She was born May 1, 1720, and died January 13, 1815-16. She was a daughter of Thomas and Mary [Perkins] Dwinell of Topsfield.

50. Mirriam,<sup>4</sup> daughter of 9 Freeborn<sup>3</sup> and Mirriam [Moulton] Balch, was born at Beverly, August 2, 1683, and died at Wenham in 1743. She was married first, February 22, 1704-5, to Richard, son of Joseph and Elizabeth [Hutton] Fowler, of Wenham. December 17, 1707, the Fowler Genealogy states that Richard received from his father land in Wenham upon his marriage with Mirriam. They lived at Wenham, and Fowler died in that town, January 24, 1717-18. They had six children, all born at Wenham: Elizabeth, b. Feb. 19, 1705-6, m. Thomas Perkins, of Ipswich, Feb. 8, 1830-31; Abigail, b. Jan. 4, 1706-7, m. Josiah White, Aug. 19, 1729; Mirriam, b. April 28, 1712, d. y.; Martha, b. Mirriam married second, Ezikiel Day, of Nutfield, by whom she is not known to have had children. Of her children only Joseph and Elizabeth survived her and shared her estate.

51. Freeborn,<sup>4</sup> son of 9 Freeborn<sup>3</sup> and Mirriam [Moulton] Balch, was born in Beverly, November 25, 1685, and died in that town in March, 1770, aged 85 years. He was married first in Boston, June 19, 1712, to Susanna Woliston. The ceremony was solemnized by Rev. Cotton Mather. Susanna was living in 1732, but there is no record of her death. The issue of this marriage was seven children, all born in Boston.

He was married second, January 23, 1736-7, to Mary Hubbard, who died in 1753, without issue. His third wife, Mrs. Sarah Dodge, was married to him November 5, 1753. She died before him, without issue, and at the time of his death only two of his children were living. He was a cordwainer by trade, and lived in Boston some fifteen years. Upon the death of his father, in 1729, he removed to Beverly, and thereafter resided on his portion of the inheritance.

52. Benjamin,<sup>4</sup> son of 9 Freeborn<sup>8</sup> and Mirriam [Moulton] Balch, was born in Beverly, April 17, 1688. He was married in Cambridge, Massachusetts, January 4, 1710-11, to 125* MARY,<sup>5</sup> b. June 4, 1714; d. April 29, 1782.

Benjamin was a blacksmith, and lived in Charlestown, Massachusetts. After his father's death he returned with his family to the house built by his father, near Wenham line, and lived in it with his brother Freeborn. The following is taken from the Essex county records: March 3, 1730-31, Benjamin Balch, of Beverly, and Mary, his wife, for £143, sell to John Conant his part of house, barn, cyder mill, &c., "according to y<sup>e</sup> division made with my brother, Freeborn Balch, of the estate of our father, Freeborn, deceased."

A gravestone still standing in the old Cambridge cemetery, opposite the college, is inscribed as follows: "Here lyes Buried y<sup>e</sup> Body of Mrs. Mary Balch, wife to Mr. Benjamin Balch, who Departed this life Jan. 28, Anno Dom., 1741-2, in the 64th year of her age." She was born January 4, 1678-9.

53. Skipper,<sup>4</sup> son of 9 Freeborn<sup>8</sup> and Elizabeth [Fairfield] Balch, was born in Beverly, July 25, 1692, and died in 1714 as shown by the following, copied from his tombstone near Wenham Lake.

"Here lyes buried the body of Mr. Skipper Balch who departed this life the 13 September, 1714 in y<sup>e</sup> 23d year of his age."

Between the graves of Skipper and that of his father is another which reads; "Here lyes buried the body of Mrs. Sarah Balch who departed this life y<sup>e</sup> 30 September, 1714 in y<sup>e</sup> 15th year of her age."

The monogram "15th" means 15 to 16. The three stones are still well preserved. The title Mr. was applied, according to the custom then prevailing, to captains and mates of vessels, military captains, eminent merchants, schoolmasters, doctors, magistrates, clergymen, persons who had received a degree at college, and freemen. It appears also that not only the wives but the daughters as well of such men, even when unmarried, were given the title Mrs. Sarah Balch was given this title because her father was a man of quality and not on account of marriage.

54. Elizabeth,<sup>4</sup> daughter of 9 Freeborn<sup>8</sup> and Elizabeth [Fairfield] Balch, was born in Beverly about 1696, and died May 1, 1718. She was married April 20, 1715, to John Elliot, born May 16, 1693 and died April, 1751, by whom she had two sons. Skipper, b. Jan. 1, 1715-16; John, b. Mar. 10, 1717-18.

Both sons were living in 1764, Skipper in Newburyport, and John in New Hampshire.

He died in 1745, aged about 59 years, while in the expedition against Canada. His eldest son whose name is not known, also died while on this expedition. The following children of Daniel and Abigail (Balch) Raymond were born at Concord, Massachusetts. Abigail Raymond, b. Mch. 1, 1730-31; Paul, b. Apr. 5, 1733; Elizabeth, b. Dec. 25, 1735; Mary, b. Rev. William Balch married, second, Abigail Blodgett, no issue. She died April 10th, 1793, aged 88 years. William Balch graduated from Harvard in 1724, then he studied Theology, and was settled over the just organized parish of East Bradford, June 7, 1727, and held the place for nearly 65 years. He is said to have possessed strong powers of mind, was mild and conciliatory in manner, and universally beloved by his flock. He was a man of great learning.

“Rev. Mr. Chipman, of Beverly, his old pastor, with Rev. Mr. Wiggleworth, published a controversial pamphlet directed against Rev. Mr. Balch, whom they accused of Arminianism. In reply to Chipman, he says: “It is the grief of my Soul to see the Bible so much neglected and other books so much made the standard. I cannot help miserably bewailing the state of the reformed churches who stick where they were left by the Reformation.”

He was very fond of agriculture. Beside his homestead farm, in part presented him by the parish, he inherited from his father, Freeborn, a good estate in North Beverly, on which there was an apple orchard of six acres; moreover, his wife Rebecca inherited a considerable estate from her father. The fruit from his orchard was considered the best in Essex county, and his cider bore the best price in the market. They called it “Arminian cider.” His large landed property should have made him quite independent of the meagre salary paid country ministers in those days, which made life with many of them a struggle for existence.

59. Mary,<sup>4</sup> daughter of 9 Freeborn<sup>3</sup> and Elizabeth [Fairfield] Balch, was born in Beverly, June 5, 1707, and died in Amesbury, Mass., Oct. 10, 1788. She was married Dec. 12, 1727, to Rev. Paine Wingate, of Amesbury, who died in Amesbury, Feb. 19, 1786. He was the son of Col. Joshua and Mary [Lunt] Wingate, of Hampton. They had twelve children: Mary, b. Dec. 17, 1728, d. ## FIFTH GENERATION.

63. Josiah,<sup>5</sup> son of 21 Samuel<sup>4</sup> and Mary [Baker] Balch, was born in Beverly, Mass., and was baptized October 28, 1711. He married in 1735, Patience, daughter of Joseph Chamberlain, one of the first settlers of Oxford, Mass., from which place he had moved to Keekamooching, in the town of Dudley. Patience probably died before 1755, as she is not named in a deed signed in that year by her husband, and recorded in the Essex records, vol. 116, p. 166. In this deed he is designated as Josiah Balch, house-wright, of Douglas, Worcester county. It appears that after leaving Beverly he located in Thompson, Connecticut, and from there moved into Worcester county. In 1744, with his brother-in-law, Ebenezer Chamberlain, he bought 320 acres of land from the state. It was in the wilderness, on one of those bits of land known as gores, which in the crude surveys of early times were sometimes left unsurveyed between the boundary lines of towns which were intended to join. This territory was called the South Gore, but being near Douglas, Josiah became known as Josiah of Douglas. In the partition of the purchase he took the south part, near the Connecticut line, where he probably died. In 1759 he deeded his farm to his son. The South Gore was subsequently taken into the town of Oxford.

Josiah and Patience had but two children, both born on their farm in the South Gore.

133 MARY,<sup>6</sup> b. July 27, 1737.

The connecting of Josiah with his descendants now living was one of the difficult problems in the preparation of this genealogy. For a long time it was not possible to trace him beyond his giving of a deed in 1755, and there was no evidence of his marriage. Inquiry of the town clerk of Douglas and the county clerk of Worcester elicited no information concerning him. However, the name Josiah appearing again, 60 years later, in a family living at Athens, Vermont, led to suspicions of family ties, which it seemed impossible to complete. These suspicions were strengthened, because the Christian name Josiah occurred in only these two instances in the genealogy. The family in Athens traced its ancestry back to a grandfather Samuel, but knew not the name of his father. Assistance to complete the chain came curiously through chance inquiry of the writer, concerning an old resident of Yonkers, who formerly lived in Oxford, adjoining Douglas, Massachusetts. This led to communication with Mr. George F. Daniels, a resident of Oxford, who was engaged on a history of his town. He was able and willing to supply the information needed to complete the broken chain.

65. Martha,<sup>5</sup> daughter of 21 Samuel<sup>4</sup> and Mary [Baker] Balch, was born in Beverly, Massachusetts, October 30, 1715. She was married October 3, 1735, to Nathaniel Raymond. He was born April 1, 1712. Their children were all born at Beverly. Hannah Raymond, b. May 1, 1736; m. John Porter, Jr., of Danvers, July 22, 1755; they removed to Lyman, Me. John Raymond, b. May 29, 1757; m. Mehitable Green; they had five children.

66. Nathaniel,<sup>5</sup> son of 21 Samuel<sup>4</sup> and Mary [Baker] Balch, was born in Beverly, October 13, 1717. He married Joanna Dodge. They were published March 4, 1737-8. About 1744 they removed from Beverly to Haverhill, Mass., and some dozen years later to Wakefield, N. H. They had eleven children. The first three were born in Beverly, the others in Haverhill. Nathaniel was admitted to full communion in the Haverhill church, June 1, 1746,* by dismissal from the Second church of Beverly. Wakefield, N. H., was incorporated in 1774. The town was settled under the name of Easton, in 1767. Nathaniel Balch was the first deputy in the Provincial Congress of New Hampshire, from Wakefield, being elected in 1775. A deed, on record in Exeter, from John Horn to Nathaniel Balch, dated 1773, shows that he lived on Witch-trot road, between John Horn and Eliphelet Quimby. Nathaniel was a prominent man in the church and town. He moved from Wakefield over the line into Maine, and the Balch mills in Acton took their name from him. Nathaniel and Joanna had the following children:

*[At the time of Nathaniel's baptism question was raised in the Haverhill Church regarding the Orthodox belief of Mr. Balch. It was proven that he did not regard all parts of the bible equally, that he denied the doctrine of original sin, of eternal damnation, and that Christ was God. His position was substantially that of the Unitarians to-day. The church found that his opinion in all the points but two could not prohibit his partaking of communion with them. Of these two, the identity of Christ with God was debated and twice postponed without action, but upon the question of the "eternal torments of Hell" he was suspended from the church. But, it was voted that his children might be baptized. This was in 1753, long before the Liberal Unitarian movement came to the surface, and shows him to have been a remarkable man for his time.—See Balch Leaflets, Vol. I. E. P.]

70. Ebenezer,<sup>5</sup> son of 22 Joseph<sup>4</sup> and Mary [Osgood] Balch, was born in Boston, Mass., May 14, 1723, and died in Hartford, Conn., April 28, 1808.

He was married twice, his first wife was Miss Sarah Belden, daughter of Capt. Jonathan Belden, of Wethersfield, Conn. The marriage ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. James Lockwood, at Wethersfield, on June 28, 1750. Sarah died April 3, 1756 in the 29th year of her age. Their three children born in Hartford, were the following:

146* SARAH,<sup>6</sup> b. Apr. 1, 1751; d. Mar. 4, 1823.

147* MARY,<sup>6</sup> b. Nov. 17, 1752; d. Sept. 16, 1852.

148* JONATHAN BELDEN,<sup>6</sup> b. Nov. 14, 1754; d. Feb. 16, 1825.

Ebenezer married for his second wife, Miss Lois Belden, a cousin of his first wife, and daughter of Ezra Belden, of Wethersfield. The ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Elnathan Whitman, November 29, 1756. She died May 27, 1793. Their seven children were born in Wethersfield.

149 LOIS,<sup>6</sup> b. Feb. 27, 1758; d. Aug. 15, 1760.

150* JOSEPH,<sup>6</sup> b. Feb. 16, 1760; d. Dec. 5, 1855.

151* LOIS,<sup>6</sup> b. Dec. 20, 1761; d. 1852.

152* LUCY,<sup>6</sup> b. Dec. 21, 1763; d. July 17, 1854.

155* WILLIAM,<sup>6</sup> b. May 17, 1778; d. Mar. 31, 1857.

This family was remarkable for their great longevity, for the average ages of Ebenezer and the nine children that grew to maturity was nearly 84 years. Two were between 70 and 75 years; two between 75 and 80; two between 80 and 85; two between 90 and 95; and two between 95 and 100.

Ebenezer was a goldsmith and clock-maker by occupation. When he came to his majority, he left his home in Boston and went to Hartford, but removed to Wethersfield 12 April, 1756. A letter written by him to his mother and now in the possession of Rev. Manning B. Balch, of DeSoto, Wis., shows his deep religious sentiment and his love for his mother. There was no regular mail service between Boston and Hartford in those days, their letters being carried by chance travellers. From this letter it would appear that his mother married a second husband. In the Town Clerk's office in Hartford, Vol. 9, p. 46 is a record of a deed from Ebenezer Balch, to James Cadwell of a tract of land and buildings in the city of Hartford near Great Bridge. The sum paid was 3000 pounds in money of the old Tenor Bill of Credit; it is dated Nov. 19, 1755, 29th y. of the reign of George the 2nd. A fragment of a diary kept by Ebenezer Balch is now in possession of his descendant, John Watson Case, and has been printed in Balch Leaflets, Vol. I.

71. Timothy,<sup>5</sup> son of 22 Joseph<sup>4</sup> and Mary [Osgood] Balch, was born in Boston, May 28, 1725, and died in Newport, R. I., Apr. 11, 1776. He married Nov. 29, 1757, Sarah, daughter of Capt. Joseph Rogers of Newport. She was born October 18, 1735, and died July 24, 1811. They had six children all born in Newport:

156 SARAH,<sup>6</sup> b. Sept. 20, 1759; d. Sept. 9, 1765.

158 JOSEPH,<sup>6</sup> b. Sept. 16, 1764; d. Sept. 16, 1765.

159* JOSEPH,<sup>6</sup> b. Oct. 25, 1766; d. July 20, 1845.

160 TIMOTHY,<sup>6</sup> b. July 5, 1769; d. unm. Oct. 29, 1822.

161* JOHN ROGERS,<sup>6</sup> b. May 18, 1772; d. Apr. 2, 1848.

72. Sarah,<sup>5</sup> daughter of 22 Joseph<sup>4</sup> and Mary [Osgood] Balch, was born in Boston, April 13, 1728. She married Capt. John Malcom.

74. Mercy,<sup>5</sup> daughter of 23 Benjamin<sup>4</sup> and Mary [Leech] Balch, was born in Beverly, February 4, 1708-9. She married John Lovett, Jr., in 1729. They had five children. Ann Lovett, b. July 19, 1731; Mary, b. Sept. 3, 1733; Thomas, b. Sept. 17, 1735; Benj. Balch, b. Dec. 13, 1737, was in the French and Indian War; John, b. Dec. 21, 1739; Peter, b. June 26, 1741; Simon, b. May 28, 1743.

76. Mary,<sup>5</sup> daughter of 23 Benjamin<sup>4</sup> and Mary [Leech] Balch, was born in Beverly, January 9, 1715-6. She was married at Ipswich, Mass., May 9, 1734, by Symonds Epps, Esq., to Mihill Woodbury, who died in England, in 1755. Their three children were born in Beverly. Myhil Woodbury, b. Oct. 8, 1734, d. Aug. 29, 1738; Myhil Woodbury, b. Oct. 25, 1739, d. Jan. 14, 1741; Mara Woodbury, b. Oct. 5, 1741.

Mara Woodbury married Richard Butman, at Beverly, March 16, 1761, and they had nine children, as follows: Richard Butman, b. Mar. 6, 1762; Myhil, b. Jan. 26, 1764; Mary, b. Feb. 3, 1766; Hannah, b. Apr. 30, 1767, m. Issachar Thissell, Feb. 5, 1785; Benjamin, bapt. Nov. 6, 1768, d. y.; Benjamin, b. Oct. 22, 1769; Samuel, b. Sept. 3, 1771; Thomas, b. June 13, 1774; and Joanna, b. Mar. 16, 1776.

Mihil Woodbury was a lineal descendant of William Woodbury, a brother of the "Old Planter" John Woodbury. William settled in a beautiful location on the north shore of Beverly harbor, now Beverly Farms, three miles east of the home of his brother John, at the head of Bass River.

77. Martha,<sup>5</sup> daughter of 23 Benjamin<sup>4</sup> and Mary [Leech] Balch was a twin sister of Mary. She was married June 5, 1735, to William Trask. Their children were: Martha Trask, b. 1737; William, b. 1740, d. y.; Deborah, b. 1744; William, b. 1747, d. y.; Osman, b. 1749; William, b. 1751; Barnabas, b. 1754; Mercy, b. 1757.

78. Deborah,<sup>5</sup> daughter of 23 Benjamin<sup>4</sup> and Mary [Leech] Balch was born in Beverly, Aug. 20, 1720. She was married April 13, 1743 to Jonathan Dodge.<sup>4</sup> They had five children born in Beverly. Previous to 1759, they removed from Beverly to Ipswich. Cornelius Dodge, b. Jan. 7, 1744; Benjamin, b. Jan. 17, 1745, d. y.; Miall, b. Mar. 20, 1748; Benj. Balch, b. June 3, 1753; Abner, bapt. Mar. 30, 1753.

Cornelius Dodge, eldest son of Deborah<sup>5</sup> and Jonathan Dodge inherited the John Balch homestead. He had four children, Azor, Jessie, Seth and Bethia. Azor, the eldest son of Cornelius, married Elizabeth Foster and had ten children. Azor, Benjamin Balch, Joshua Foster, Joseph, Bethiah, Lydia, Elizabeth, Joanna, Mary and Caroline.

Joshua Foster Dodge inherited the old homestead with about eight acres of land. He married Mary Porter and had two children, Martha and Adie Frances. She has outlived him and two additional husbands. Her daughter Martha died young, and her second daughter, Adie Frances married Charles Herrick, and now owns the old homestead.

82. Abigail,<sup>5</sup> daughter of 24 John<sup>4</sup> and Mary [Tuck] Balch, was born in Beverly, October 5, 1712. She was married May 11, 1731 to Nathaniel Brown of Salem. Record exists of the birth of but one child, Mary, who was bapt. Sept. 24, 1732.

84. Deborah,<sup>5</sup> daughter of 24 John<sup>4</sup> and Mary [Tuck] Balch, was born in Beverly, December 19, 1717. She was married July 13, 1738, to William Dodge, Jr. They had ten children born in Beverly. Mary Dodge, b. 1739; William, b. 1741; Samuel, b. 1743, d. y.; Huldah, b. 1745; Samuel, b. 1748; Martha, b. 1750; John, b. 1753; Thomas, b. 1755; Cornelius, b. 1758; Sarah, b. 1761.

86. Elizabeth,<sup>5</sup> daughter of 26 Peter<sup>4</sup> and Elizabeth [Dwight] Balch, was born in Medfield, Mass., in 1729. She was married in Framingham, Mass., Sept. 22, 1748, to Daniel Adams.

88. Sarah,<sup>5</sup> daughter of 26 Peter<sup>4</sup> and Elizabeth [Dwight] Balch, was born in Medfield, Mass., in 1734. She was married in Framingham, to John Pike, of that town. Nothing further regarding the families of these two daughters of Peter<sup>4</sup> has been found.

90. Cornelius,<sup>5</sup> only son of 27 Cornelius<sup>4</sup> and Mary [Shaw] Balch, was born in Boxford, Mass., and was bapt. in Jan. 17, 1717-18, and died in Topsfield, Mass., Dec. 20, 1749. He was married in Boxford, January 24, 1739-40 to Martha, daughter of Joseph and Martha Robinson, of Topsfield. She was born July 16, 1720, and died in Topsfield, June 11th, 1815, aged 94 years, 10 months, and 24 days. Their five children were born in Topsfield.

162* MARY,<sup>6</sup> b. Feb. 15, 1741.

166 CORNELIUS,<sup>6</sup> b. Dec. 23, 1748; d. Sept. 22, 1749.

The gravestones of Cornelius, and his three children still stand in the old graveyard, at Topsfield and are among the oldest legible.

Martha [Robinson] Balch, married again, April 16, 1752, to John Cree, by whom she had three children. Asa Cree, b. Feb. 10, 1755. Elizabeth, b. July 24, 1757. Cornelius, b. Sept. 9, 1759.

91. Benjamin,<sup>5</sup> son of 31 Joseph<sup>4</sup> and Sarah [Hart] Balch was baptized Oct. 18, 1702, grew up in Scituate, where he had removed with his mother upon her second marriage, and practised his father's trade of a weaver. He seems, however, to have subsequently changed his occupation for that of a sailor, as he is mentioned as a "marriner" in 1733, just after his removal to Boston. Drew's History of Scituate, states that he resided in Scituate for several years "near the North Meeting House, 50 rods south."

He died in 1753.

September 8, 1726, he married Nazareth, daughter of Judge John, and Deborah

[Loring] Cushing. She was born Sept. 11, 1703. [Judge Cushing was descended from Peter Cushing of Hingham, Norfolk Co., Eng., whose son Theophilus, b. 1579, settled in Hingham, Mass., in 1663, and Nazareth was a cousin of the Margaret Cushing who married May 30, 1717, Admiral Wm. Fletcher, b. in Sussex, Eng., March, 1668, whose daughter Mary, b. June 20, 1730, married (170) Nathaniel<sup>6</sup> Balch.]

The children of Benjamin, and Nazareth were at least six in number.

- 173 ELIZABETH,<sup>6</sup> bapt. July 25, 1742.

The five last children were baptized at the New South Church, Boston, as children of Benjamin and Nazareth Balch.

92. Elizabeth,<sup>5</sup> daughter of 31 Joseph<sup>4</sup> and Sarah [Hart] Balch, was born in Beverly, Dec. 11, 1704. She was married February 25, 1727-8, to Alexander Thorpe.

93. Lydia,<sup>5</sup> daughter of 31 Joseph<sup>4</sup> and Sarah [Hart] Balch, was born in Beverly, April 7, 1707. She was married January 28, 1723, to Israel Cowen.

94. Sarah,<sup>5</sup> daughter of 31 Joseph<sup>4</sup> and Sarah [Hart] Balch, was born in Beverly. She was married December 7, 1732 to David Cole, son of Ambrose Cole of Cohasset. He was born in 1704. They had five children.

Lydia Cole, b. 1733, William, b. 1735, David, b. 1737, Elizabeth Cole, b. 1739, Abigail, b. 1743.

95. Joseph,<sup>5</sup> son of 31 Joseph<sup>4</sup> and Sarah [Hart] Balch, was born in Beverly, and baptized June 22, 1712. Whether he ever married and had children has not been learned. In October, 1733, he was a cooper and living in Plymouth, Mass. In the list of persons who settled in Machias, in 1765, as given in the "Historical Sketch of Machias, Maine, Memorial of the Centennial anniversary of that town May 20, 1863," is the name Joseph Balch, does it mean him?

96. Joanna,<sup>6</sup> daughter of 39 John<sup>4</sup> and Elizabeth [Ober] Balch, was born in Beverly, April 30, 1702, and died May 23, 1725. She was married Dec. 23, 1719 to David, son of Benjamin and Mary Ellengwood, a mariner. He was born August 17, 1699. The issue was three children. David, b. Oct. 17, 1720, d. Oct. 30, 1720; David, b. Sept. 17, 1721; Joanna, b. Oct. 29, 1722, d. Jan. 25, 1824.

Ellengwood married second, Margaret Wallis, who was born Nov. 1, 1699. She was a daughter of Nathaniel and 30 Ann<sup>4</sup> [Balch] Wallis. They were married Dec. 26, 1725, and had five children.

97. Andrew,<sup>5</sup> son of 39 John<sup>4</sup> and Elizabeth [Ober] Balch, was born in Beverly, Feb. 27, 1706-7. His death occurred near Keene, New Hampshire, but its date is not known. He was married first Jan. 1, 1728-9, to Bethiah Lovett, by whom he had at least five children. Bethiah died Sept 15, 1745, aged 37 years. Their children, born in Beverly, were as follows :

174 ELIZABETH,<sup>6</sup> b. Apr. 6, 1733, d. May 16, 1736.

177* CALEB,<sup>6</sup> b. Oct. 16, 1740.

178 JOANNA,<sup>6</sup> b. Sept. 9, 1744.

Andrew was married to Ruth Woodbury, January 21, 1745-6. Only one son seems to have been the issue of this second marriage, and the tradition in the family says he was born at Dedham, Mass.

179* BENJAMIN,<sup>4</sup> born 1747 or 8.

Daniel F. Secomb's History of Amherst, N. H. states that in June, 1735, Andrew was a landholder in that town. He was at Keene, N. H., in 1773, when he signed the Alarm list.

Andrew, with his sons Benjamin and John signed the following pledge of the Committee of Safety dated at Keene, N. H., Mar. 14, 1776.

"We the subscribers do hereby solemnly engage, and promise, that we will to the utmost of our powers at the Risque of our Lives and Fortunes, with Arms oppose the Hostile Proceedings of the British Fleets and Armies against the United American Colonies."

98. Jonathan,<sup>5</sup> son of 40 Israel<sup>4</sup> and Ruth [Dodge] Balch, was born in Beverly, April 17, 1709.

He was married Nov. 18, 1733, to Esther, daughter of William Hall, of Mansfield, Ct. She was born in Mansfield, Ebenezer learned the trade of goldsmith and clock-maker with his father, but did not follow the trade. In 1800 he moved with his family, which consisted of his wife and four children, to Plattsburgh, N. Y., and soon after purchased two tracts of land, together containing 240 acres, and situated four miles west from the village, and bordering on the north side of the Saracac river. Immediately upon his occupancy of the tract of land he built a log house. In 1806 he built a frame barn, and in 1812 he built a two-story frame house, which for those days was considered very fine. All the nails used in its construction were made by him. There were no machine-made nails in those days. In this house he and his wife both died. For several years he was engaged in shipping timber to Quebec, Canada, by rafts, and by reason of this venture he became financially embarrassed, and sold his farm to his sons, Ebenezer and Alvah Burchard. He was a man of intelligence, uprightness of character, and honor. Both he and his wife were members of the First Presbyterian Church of Plattsburgh. He helped to build the church edifice in 1806. It was a historical structure in connection with the battle of Plattsburgh, September 11, 1814. In 1867 it burned down, and from it started the great fire of Plattsburgh.

Ebenezer was a member of a militia company called the "Silver Grays," and as such participated in the battle of Plattsburgh. His character is well summed up in the text of the sermon preached at his funeral. It was Psalms xxxvii., 37: "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace."

154. Timothy,<sup>6</sup> son of 70 Ebenezer<sup>5</sup> and Lois [Belden] Balch, was born at Hartford, Ct., October 26, 1768, and died at Plattsburg, N. Y., November 22, 1842. He married Ann, daughter of John and Ann [Skinner] Whitman. She was born at Hartford, Ct., May 23, 1775, and died at Plattsburgh, N. Y., April 11, 1848. About 1802 he located on a farm a short distance to the north east of the farm belonging to his brother Ebenezer. He and his wife were members of the first Presbyterian church in Plattsburgh.

He was married early in 1750 to a Miss Bourne (?) who was a niece or cousin to Gen. Joseph Warren. She married for her second husband a British officer, and went to live in Halifax, Nova Scotia. It was reported that she left property to her son, which he never received. Hart Balch had by his wife a posthumous son.

333* HART,<sup>7</sup> b. Nov. 9, 1751; d. Feb. 15, 1846.

169. Benjamin,<sup>6</sup> son of 91 Benjamin<sup>5</sup> and Nazareth [Cushing] Balch, was born at Boston, Mass., March 4, 1732-3, and was baptized at the New South Church. The rolls of the French and Indian war show that he was a lieutenant in Captain Abel Keen's company, Colonel Joseph Thatcher's regiment, and that he was 23 years of age, by occupation a cooper, born at Boston, and residing at Scituate, that he entered the service February 18, 1756, and served until December 5, 1756. This company of men was raised for the expedition against Crown Point. From the same rolls it appears that he re-entered the service March 23, 1757, as second lieutenant, to go on an expedition to Fort William Henry, under the command of Colonel Frye, and was at its capitulation, August 9, 1757. It is not known whether or not he was killed in the massacre that followed. The Plymouth County Probate Records show that his estate was administered upon before the close of the year.

170. Nathaniel,<sup>6</sup> son of 91 Benjamin<sup>5</sup> and Nazareth [Cushing] Balch, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, May 7, 1735. He died in Boston, September 18, 1808. 888* SARAH,<sup>7</sup> b. Dec. 5, 1774.

Nathaniel was a hatter, and carried on his business at No. 72 Cornhill, now Washington street, where he also resided. Under the title of "An Old Gentleman's Recollections," in Harper's Magazine for May, 1877, is the following reference to Nathaniel and his neighbors: "We had a medley of eccentric tradesmen in Boston in 1788, who were a compound of flat simplicity in manners and acute cleverness in conversation, shrewd, perhaps somewhat cunning, often witty, always smart and intelligent. Such was Copley, my tailor; Billings, of the same trade; but, above all, Balch, the hatter. His shop was the principal lounge, even of the first people in the town. Governor Hancock, when the gout permitted, resorted to this grand rendezvous, and there exchanged jokes with Balch and his company, or, as sometimes happened, discussed grave political subjects, and tout em badinant settled the leading principles of his administration."

According to family tradition, Governor Hancock one day said to Balch, "Come up and see a Savage I have locked in my garret." He complied, and found that the Governor was protecting a portrait painter named Savage from arrest for debt. Savage was engaged on a portrait of the Governor, and at the request of Hancock, also made one of Balch. The latter is now in the possession of Nathaniel's great-grandson, William L. Balch, of Boston.

172. Joseph,<sup>6</sup> son of 91 Benjamin<sup>5</sup> and Nazareth [Cushing] Balch was born at Boston, Feb. 10, 1738-9, and died at West Cambridge, September 1, 1826. He was captain of a company in Colonel Thomas Craft's artillery regiment. As such he is referred to in the records of the Massachusetts Archives, Vol. 38, from January, 1776 to December, 1777. The orderly book of the regiment preserved in the Essex Institute also refers to him. He was married August 25, 1760, to Abigail Audebert, who was baptized December 30, 1739, and died at Billerica, Massachusetts, January 7, 1802. She was a granddaughter of William Palfrey, sail maker, of Milk Street, Boston, to whom Joseph Balch was apprenticed. Abigail was one of the children of Mr. Palfrey's daughter Lydia, and Philip Audebert, Jr., son of a French Huguenot. Philip and Lydia died young, and Abigail's grandfather Palfrey, was appointed her guardian in 1752. She grew up in his family, together with Joseph Balch. They had nine children.

In 1759, John enlisted in Captain Bayley's company for the French and Indian war. In 1776, he was one of the petitioners to the New Hampshire legislature, remonstrating against inoculation with small pox virus. It appears that the belief was then current, that small pox would be more managable if given by inoculation than if contracted in the usual way. It was therefore the custom to perform such inoculations when the spread of the disease was feared. This was twenty years before the discovery of cow-pox vaccination by Jenner. Revolutionary war rolls of New Hampshire, John Balch enlisted as a private May 1, 1777, and served for three years in Captain William Ellis' company, third New Hampshire. John was a member of the foot company of Keene, in 1773. He declared himself on the side of the colonies by signing the pledge above given in the account of his father Andrew.

177. Caleb,<sup>6</sup> son of 97 Andrew<sup>5</sup> and Bethiah [Lovett] Balch, was born at Beverly, Mass., October 16, 1740, and died about 1794. He married Elizabeth M. and to them were born five children, all at Keene, N. H., as shown by the records of that town.

After the birth of Bethiah, Caleb moved to Westmoreland, N. H., and may have had more children. The roll of Captain Ephraim Stone's company for the year 1780, contains Caleb's name and shows that he was paid 589 pounds, 16 shillings. The roll also states that his son Cyrus received 621 pounds, and one shilling. Caleb served in the Eighth company of Colonel Reed's regiment, New Hampshire Volunteers, Jacob Hinds was the Captain and Isaac Street, Lieutenant. This regiment was at the battle of Bunker Hill. Hind's company was called out on various occasions for short terms of service. It consisted of 65 men. After the fight at Bunker Hill, it was credited with 39 men fit for duty.

179. Benjamin,<sup>6</sup> son of 97 Andrew<sup>5</sup> and Ruth [Woodbury] Balch, was born at Beverly, Mass., in 1747, or 1748. When about 21 years of age he married Miss Elizabeth Blake, by whom he had seven children. Elizabeth died in 1785.

About 1800, Benjamin left Keene, and went to Lunenburg, Vermont, bought a tract of forest land, and built a log cabin and barn. The following winter he moved his family, the only conveyance being a long sled drawn by a yoke of oxen. Upon the sled they piled all their household goods, wife and babies. The older boys followed with two cows and two pigs. These pioneers knew well the meaning of hard work and scanty fare. By trade, Benjamin was a wooden bottle maker. The New Hampshire town papers show that Benjamin signed the petition against inoculation with small pox, described above in the account of his brother John. He owned a pew in the meeting house at Keene. He was a member of the foot company of Keene in 1773, and signed with his father as one of the Committee of Safety in 1776. He was generally known as Lieutenant Benjamin Balch. He enlisted as a private in Capt. David Howlet's Co., January 29, 1777, and was discharged July 11, 1777.

180. Ruth,<sup>6</sup> daughter of 98 Jonathan<sup>5</sup> and Esther [Hall] Balch, was born at Mansfield, Ct. She was married November 4, 1772 to Elijah Abee, who was born at Ashford, Ct., July 7, 1753. The issue of this marriage was one child, born December 15, 1773, it died the next day.

Elijah Abee always lived at Mansfield near 421 Thomas

Rev. Manasseh Cutler was a man of high abilities and reputation. He was born at Killingly, Conn., May 3, 1742. [His grandfather was John Cutler, who removed to Killingly from Lexington, Mass., about 1700. His father was Hezekiah, born in 1706; married in 1730, Susan Clarke; died 1793, aged 87 years.] He graduated at Yale in 1765; married Mary Balch, 1766; then engaged in business at Nantucket. Studied law, afterwards theology, with his father-in-law; was ordained at Ipswich Hamlet [now Hamilton], Sept. 11, 1771. He served one year as chaplain in the Revolutionary war, and afterwards as surgeon. He gave great attention to botany, and soon became noted for his scientific attainments. In January, 1781, he was elected a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences ; many communications from him are printed in their volumes ; was also a member of the leading scientific societies of this country and in Europe. In 1791 he received the honorary degree of LL. D. from Yale. He, in connection with Gen. Rufus Putnam, who has been called the "Father of the Northwest," was very active in promoting emigration to the west, secured the grant from Congress of a large tract of land in Ohio, and won for himself the title of Prince of Lobbyists. [See Harper's Monthly for September, 1885.]

In 1800 he was elected to Congress, and served two terms as Representative. He died at Hamilton, July 28, 1823, in his 82d year.

239. Benjamin,<sup>6</sup> son of 124 Thomas<sup>5</sup> and Mary [Sumner] Balch, was born at Dedham, Mass., February 12, 1743. He was graduated from Harvard College in 1763. He studied theology with his father, and evidently commenced preaching quite early, for while occupying a pulpit at Machias, Maine, one of his auditors, a pretty Irish girl, caught his eye and fancy, and in 1764 they were married.

This young woman was Miss Joanna O'Brien. She was born at Scarboro, Maine, and died at Barrington, N. H., September 1, 1820. Her brothers Jeremiah, John and Joseph, were all noted privateersmen, during the Revolution.

Rev. Benjamin returned to Dedham, with his wife, soon after their marriage, and he there temporarily occupied a pulpit. He then made a contract with the congregation of Mendon, South Precinct, and was settled over that church.

Benjamin remained as the pastor of the Mendon church for five years, when some differences arose regarding his salary, and he left them quite abruptly, and sold his property to a Quaker. This was almost an unpardonable sin in the eyes of the people.

In 1772 he established his home at New Mills, a part of Danvers, Mass., now known as Danversport, and here his family lived for eleven years. He was settled over no church but filled supplies in the vicinity, when not away in the service of the Army or Navy.

Benjamin Balch was admitted to Jordan Lodge of F. and A. M. of Danvers.

As Lieutenant of a Danvers Company, Capt. Edmund Putnam, commander, he marched with it to Lexington, April 19, 1775, and participated in the battle on that day.

He served in turn as Chaplain in Colonel Ephrim Doolittle's Regiment; the Frigate Boston, Captain McNeil, and other vessels.

In 1781 he was with the Frigate Alliance, Captain John Barry, when she conveyed the U. S. Ambassador to France. This vessel was in a severe engagement with a British ship and brig, which they captured off Halifax. The fierceness of the battle so excited the chaplain that he seized a musket and fought with such ardor that his exploits earned for him the sobriquet of "The Fighting Parson."

Benjamin's son Thomas was with him in the Alliance, and served as powder monkey. After the battle he met his son with great joy and exclaimed, "What, Tom, are you alive!"

In August, 1784, he was settled over the church at Barrington, N. H., where he preached over thirty years, greatly beloved by his people. The Barrington records show that he performed the ceremony at nearly all the weddings in the vicinity.

Death came to him suddenly, on May 4, 1815. But a few days before, old age had led him to preach his farewell sermon and bring his thirty years pastorate to a close. He fell dead while walking through the town. He was buried in the woods about 40 rods to the northwest of his home, where he for so many years had lived. Tradition says that his faithful little dog refused to forsake him even in death, and died upon his grave.

Benjamin and Joanna had twelve children. The two eldest were born at Dedham, the next two at Mendon, the next five at Danvers, and three at Barrington.

257. Daniel,<sup>6</sup> son of 130 Daniel<sup>6</sup> and Hannah [Clemens] Balch, was born at Newburyport, March 1, 1761, and died at the same town, October 13, 1835. He followed the occupation of his father, a watchmaker, at Newburyport. He was a man of strong common sense, just and honest, quite irascible, and when aroused apt to use expressions more forcible than polite. He was a Federalist, and very vituperative of Andrew Jackson. Pecuniarily he was in moderate circumstances, and dependent on his trade. He had a comfortable home, with considerable land, on which he raised hay and vegetables. He was a great lover of tulips, the border of the middle path of his garden back of his house was gay with them in their season. Among them were the Dutch tulips, which he esteemed as rare.

He was of an inventive mind. From the upper story of his house, attached to clockwork, he suspended a cord with a weight attached, so that when wound up it would turn the spit on which was the turkey or goose to roast.

He attended the Unitarian Church, but was not a communicant, and, in fact, was skeptically inclined, finding the origin of the universe and the destiny of man subjects too vast and mysterious to cope with.

He married first, November 27, 1783, Miss Lucy Hodge, daughter of Charles Hodge. She was born at Newburyport, April 6, 1760, and died December 27, 1797. The issue of this marriage was six children:

519* HANNAH,<sup>7</sup> b. Oct. 14, 1784; d. March 20, 1828.

Nathaniel Balch was a man of medium stature, but strongly built. In his early days, like most New England boys, he enjoyed wrestling, and was somewhat of a champion in that sport. He was an industrious, temperate, Christian man, retiring in disposition, but of a quick temper. He held the office of selectman for the town of Athens in the years 1831-32 and in 1842-43. He and all his sons were Democrats. He was a lover of education, and gave to his children all the advantages for its acquisition that his circumstances would permit. He removed from Athens to Kalamazoo in 1850, and since all of his children had found homes in the then far West, he lived with his son, Royal T., near Kalamazoo, until his death.

The children all inherited their father's Christian and temperance principles, and only one of this large family ever used tobacco in any form. All of them lived to grow up save the youngest, who died of scarlet fever in his third year. As a family they were strong and robust, imbibing into their very natures the ruggedness of their native mountains, and dearly they loved to recall their feats of strength and daring adventures, together with the merry makings incident to early New England life, as apple parings and husking bees.

283. Coben,<sup>7</sup> son of 134 Samuel<sup>6</sup> and Susan [Aldrich] Balch, was born at Guilford, Vt. He married Miss Patty Patch. Vistus was a quiet and unostentatious man, a good citizen, and exemplary Christian, W. Balch whom to know was to honor and respect.

By profession he was an engraver, and much of his time during the prime of life was spent in New York, devoted to his chosen vocation, in which he became proficient. Many large and beautiful steel engravings bear his imprint, but his work was generally confined to bank bills. For many years he was an elder in the Presbyterian church.

He was married three times. His first wife was Miss Rachel Buel Wells, daughter of John and Rachel [Buel] Wells, of Litchfield, Ct. They were married in February, 1828. She was born at Lanesboro, Mass., February 9, 1802, and died at Utica, N. Y., January 10, 1837. She was a lineal descendant of Rev. Benjamin Woolsey, of Desoris, L. I. They had no issue. Here, with his father, he worked in clearing land and upon the farm until about twenty-two years of age, when he went to Pittsfield, Mass., and entered the office of Dr. James M. Brewster, and with him studied medicine. He settled as a physician in Sandisfield, Mass. The Springfield Union of March 7, 1879, says of him: "Ebenezer Balch was a man of strong individuality, some eccentricity, and much medical reading and skill, whom the Berkshire Medical College faculty pronounced equal to any in the county."

Ebenezer married Ann, daughter of Parson Stores, of Sandisfield. She was about twenty-one years his senior. She died May 22, 1851, and the Doctor died February 19, 1861. They were both buried in Sandisfield. They had no issue.

308. Sarah,<sup>7</sup> daughter of 153 Ebenezer<sup>6</sup> and Sarah [Burchard] Balch, was born at Wethersfield, Ct., April 19, 1794, and died at Schuyler Falls, N. Y., September 15, 1871. She was married to Elijah Weston, of Schuyler Falls, November 15, 1825. She was Weston's third wife. They lived upon a farm in Schuyler Falls, and had three children, two of whom died in infancy.

He married Mary, daughter of Charles and Lovica (Jones) McArthur, March 15, 1821. She was born at St. Andrews, Canada, April 11, 1801, and died September 21, 1873. They both were buried in the Riverside Cemetery at Plattsburgh, N. Y. Alvah B. was a soldier in the war of 1812-14. He followed the occupation of a farmer, although he learned the carpenter's trade. He was a man of remarkable character, although of most quiet, unassuming manners. His tastes were of high intellectual order; his disposition mild and peaceful in the extreme. Nothing ever ruffled his temper. Although he talked very little on religious subjects, his life was eminently "an epistle known and read of all men." He lived on the earth as though not of it, yet faithfully attending to all the small details of daily life, and when the sudden summons came was in entire readiness to meet his Master. Early in life he joined the Masonic lodge at Plattsburgh, and always lived a consistent Mason. His life was spent upon the farm his father settled. Both he and his wife were members of the First Presbyterian Church of Plattsburgh.

John Rogers attended the public and private schools of Providence until he was fourteen years old, when he entered the house of Cook & Brown, cotton merchants, Providence, R. I. He remained with this firm twenty-three years, until its dissolution, in 1845. He then entered the employ of the Providence and Worcester R. R. Company, in which he remained to the day of his death. May 17, 1847, he was made assistant treasurer of the road, under Isaac Brown, treasurer. May 19, 1851, he was appointed treasurer, which position he held to the time of his death. Since 1851 all the records of the treasurer of the railroad company have been kept in his handwriting. During his period of service, covering in all about forty years, he exhibited an unusual sound judgment in the transaction of the business of the road, and his long experience rendered his knowledge of railroad matters very important. He invariably declined political office and public duties, because of his preference for the duties of his railroad position. In early life he took an active interest in politics. He was a Whig, and later a Republican. In 1827 he joined the First Light Infantry Company, and at the time of his death was a member of the Infantry Veteran Association.

The following tribute was paid to him by the Providence Journal of October 26, 1885 :

“ It is rare indeed that an official is able to retain so onerous and responsible a position as treasurer of an important railroad corporation for forty years, as did Mr. John R. Balch for the Providence and Worcester railroad, and the testimony to his ability and integrity is an irrefragible one. As a modest, worthy and honorable citizen, Mr. Balch will be widely mourned, as well as an official.”

His mother married a British officer and went to Halifax, N. S. Hart lived with his aunt, in whose house he was born, until bound out an apprentice to a shoe maker. The aunt was Deborah, his father's sister, and wife of Captain John Forsyth. He was married first in 1772 to Miss Priscilla Holt, by whom he had three children.

Hart<sup>7</sup> was evidently a man of strong individuality, and some eccentricity. The following from the pen of his grandson, the late Rev. William Stevens Balch of Elgin, Ill., shows very much of the character of both.

"I have never strayed far from the plain path of present duty to search the records of ancestry for grace or glory to adorn my own name. I did once ask my grandfather, when grown to manhood, and he over ninety, about our ancestors, whether we were English, Scotch, Irish, Dutch, Greek, Hebrew or heathen. The old gentleman roused up and said rather seriously, 'What is it to you? we have only our own conduct to answer for.' That is very true, I replied, still, it is a satisfaction to know something of one's forefathers. The old gentleman replied, 'I have good reasons to desire no such thing. I have always thought it a disgrace and not an honor, to accept property or houses gained by others, not by myself. I never danced in borrowed pumps.' Then straightening himself into a dignified attitude he consented to gratify his grandson's request. 'I was born in the Old Bay State, town of Newbury. When a child I lived with my mother at my aunt's. I never saw my father. I was told he was a sea captain, and was lost with all his crew on a voyage to the West Indies. Whether so or not I never knew. That was no fault of mine. Yes, my mother left me when young, was married, I was told, and went to live in Nova Scotia, the home of the Tories. I have been told she died there and left me several hundred dollars. I never saw them,—just as well. When fourteen I was bound an apprentice to a shoemaker.' "

The records at Keene, show that Hart had several real estate transactions in that town and Dublin, N. H.

Hart enlisted into Captain William Walker's company, Colonel Reed's regiment, April 23, 1775, and was discharged August 9, 1775. He enlisted again into Captain Gilmour's company, June 29, 1777, and served one year and ten months. When he enlisted in 1777, he was described as age 26 years, height, 6 feet. He re-enlisted as a private in the First New Hampshire, April 24, 1781, for three years, from Dublin, N. H.

334. Nathaniel,<sup>7</sup> son of 170 Nathaniel<sup>6</sup> and Mary [Fletcher] Balch, was born in Providence, R. I., February 26, 1764, and died in Boston, Mass., June 10, 1831. On December 17, 1789, he was married to Miss Mary Stillman, and at the same time Mr. Benjamin Stillman was married to Miss Mary Balch, his sister. Mary, the wife of Nathaniel Balch, Jr., was born July 20, 1766, and died November 8, 1800.

Captain Nathaniel Balch celebrated the 4th day of July, 1818, by taking to himself for his second wife, Susan, daughter of Captain William and Susannah [Foster] Young. She was born in Boston, August 9, 1782. They had two sons.

Both of these sons were born in Boston and baptized at the Old South Church, by Rev. Dr. Wisner, their mother having united with that church in February, 1811. She was a constant attendant of the services at the "Old South" for more than half a century up to the second Sunday before her death, which occurred December 26, 1864. Her funeral took place from the Old South Chapel, in Spring Lane, her entombment being one of the last permitted in the "Granary" burying ground on Tremont street.

Nathaniel Balch, Jr., was commissioned by "His Excellency, Arthur St. Clair, Esq., President of the Congress of the United States of America," on October 20, 1786, to the rank of "Ensign in the second regiment in the army of the United States," the same regiment in which his younger brother William served.

Nathaniel resigned his commission, and in 1796 he was engaged in mercantile pursuits in Boston.

President John Adams commissioned him "Captain in the 15th regiment of infantry, in the service of the United States, to take rank from January 10, 1799." In the summer and fall of that year he was on recruiting service in the Province of Maine. On Wednesday, January 15, 1800, funeral honors were paid by the troops stationed at Oxford, Massachusetts, to the memory of their illustrious leader, General George Washington. Captain Nathaniel Balch was one of the pall-bearers. [History of Oxford.]

335. William,<sup>7</sup> son of 170 Nathaniel<sup>6</sup> and Mary [Fletcher] Balch, was born at Boston, July 11, 1765. He never married. When about 25 years of age he received a commission, signed by George Washington, then President of the United States, dated March 4, 1791, as ensign in the 2d regiment, in the service of the United States. With Capt. John was a farmer, and the records in the Register's office at Keene show that he owned, and lived upon the farm that his grandfather located and cleared. When Lieut. Andrew Balch located at Keene, the country about was a wilderness, abounding with wild beasts. He built his house in a forest. One night John greased his boots and slicked up and went to a party. While on his way home wolves scented him or rather his boots, and gave chase. He ran for his life, and heard them snapping at his heels as he escaped through the house door. He inherited a walking stick that is now in the possession of his grandson John Edwin Balch of Wilson, Winona Co., Minn. Family tradition says it was the property of John,<sup>1</sup> the old planter. The cane is of hickory three feet long, has the appearance of having been varnished, and has an ivory head about one inch deep and the size of a silver half dollar.

When but fifteen years of age he was enrolled as one of the "foot company" of Keene. The Revolutionary War Rolls show that he enlisted in Capt. John Gregg's Co. as private in 1777, age 19. In the same year he served 26 days in Col. Sam'l Ashley's regt. The New Hampshire town papers, Vol. XXI. p. 819 show that John Balch's contract as Post Rider was made on the 27th day of July, 1781. His route was from Portsmouth on Saturday morning, thence to Conway, Plymouth and Haverhill, thence down the Connecticut river to Charlestown and Keene, and back to Portsmouth in fourteen days.

349. Timothy,<sup>7</sup> son of 175 John<sup>6</sup> and Mary [——] Balch, was born at Keene, N. H., about 1760. He died at Orwell, Oswego Co., N. Y., and was buried at Richland, N. Y. About 1788 he married Hannah Damon, of Manchester, Vt. who died at Orwell, N. Y., November 12, 1857. They had three sons and three daughters, all born at Manchester.

New Hampshire Town Papers. Vol. XII, page 320 show that on June 10, 1785, Timothy Balch was appointed Post-Rider, and carried the mail between Portsmouth, N. H. and Brattleboro, Vt. This was the first mail route in the state of Vermont. He moved with his family to Orwell, Oswego Co., N. Y. all that section of the state in those early days was called the Black River country. Here in that then wild country Timothy took up land and cleared a farm on which he lived the remainder of his life.

352. She was married November 5, 1807 to Joel Pond, son of Daniel. He was born March 19, 1756, and died at Keene, February 23, 1821. They lived at Keene, and had one child.

357. Cyrus,<sup>7</sup> son of 177 Caleb<sup>6</sup> and Elizabeth M. [—] Balch, was born at Keene, N. H., July 14, 1765; and died about 1805. He was married about 1782 to Judith Stone. The records of the town of Westford, Vt. show that their six eldest children were born in that town, so they must have gone to live there soon after their marriage. Their four youngest children were born in the town of Enosburgh, Vt.

The Town Papers of N. H. Vol. XII, p. 312 show by Capt.

Ephraim Stone's return of his company, that Cyrus Balch was a member, and received 621 lbs., 1 shilling. These returns were made in 1782 and show service during the Revolution, up to and including the year 1780. The records show a deed from him to Amos Balch for seventy-five pounds of one hundred acres of land.

The name of Cyrus Balch is not found upon the records of Westford later than Feb. 21, 1795.* Soon after this date he moved to the township of Enosburgh, Vt., where he took up land and cleared a farm, and he, with his family, were the first to winter in that town, 1796-97. His land was in the west part of the town, then and now called Balch Hill.

The information for this genealogy concerning Cyrus and his children were obtained with great difficulty. A number of families, scattered from Vermont to Dakota, and having common traditions, were found in various ways. None of them knew the name of their grandfather, or were able to tell where he lived. One of these traditions was that an uncle named Enos was the first child born in Enosburgh, Vermont. Another was that another uncle, named John, was drowned in Lake Champlain, and a third that their grandfather was killed while felling a tree. He was cutting into a tree against which another had lodged in falling. The tree he was chopping suddenly split and kicked back. It struck him under the chin and broke his neck. It was not possible to learn anything from the town clerk of Enosburgh, but the Vermont Gazette gave the name of the owner of the Balch farm. A letter directed to him fell into the hands of his executor, Benjamin Hoyt, who also was familiar with the tradition of the peculiar way in which the owner of Balch hill met his death, and was able from an old deed to fix the Christian name as Cyrus.

*The search of the manuscript records of the town of Westford, Vt., were made by Mrs. Clara Allen (Morgan) Cooley, of that town, a granddaughter of Cyrus.

358. Amos,<sup>7</sup> son of 177 Caleb<sup>6</sup> and Elizabeth [——] Balch, was born at Keene, N. H., July 28, 1767. The first marriage recorded upon the town records of Westford, Vt., is Amos Balch and Betsey Jarvis, married December 10, 1792. They had children, as shown by the records.

707 SUSANNA,<sup>8</sup> b. ; d. April 27, 1795, at Westford, Vt.

708 NATHAN,<sup>8</sup> b. Aug. 10, 1795; d.

The above mentioned records show that Amos Balch bought and sold five different parcels of land between the dates July 31, 1792, and February 21, 1795. He went to Enosburgh in 1796, as appears by the Vermont Gazetteer, but he probably returned to Westford, as his name appears as a witness to a deed in 1799.

The above is all we know regarding this family, and is entirely from records.

359. Caleb,<sup>7</sup> son of 177 Caleb<sup>6</sup> and Elizabeth [——] Balch, was born at Keene, N. H., March 9, 1770. He was married April 3, 1812, to Patience Nye. The Westford town-records show real estate transactions by him in 1812. From these records it also appears that on January 5, 1793, he witnessed a deed as Caleb Balch, Jr., and on January 24, 1795, he witnessed a deed as Caleb Balch, having dropped the Jr. This would indicate that his father died between 1792 and 1795.

362. Thankful,<sup>7</sup> daughter of 179 Benjamin<sup>6</sup> and Elizabeth [Blake] Balch, was born at Keene, N. H., April 23, 1772, and died at Lunenburg, Vt., in 1856. She was married to Azariah Snow, a brother to her sister's husband, John Snow. They moved to Lunenburg, Vt., where they continued to reside, and both died and were buried in that town. Mr. Snow was one of the most influential men in that vicinity, both in church and business. They were both members of the Baptist denomination, of which he was for a long time a deacon.

Mrs. Snow was an unusually energetic and truly good woman, living to the age of 84 years. The last ten years of her life she was entirely blind. They had five sons and one daughter, all born at Lunenburg : John, George, Daniel, Benjamin, Abigail, and Abner.

363. Abner,<sup>7</sup> son of 179 Benjamin<sup>6</sup> and Elizabeth [Blake] Balch, was born at Keene, N. H., March 5, 1774. He married first Miss Lydia P., daughter of Zeno and Lydia Alden. She was born in Stratford, Ct. They had nine children :

John was a house joiner by occupation. In the month of January, 1809, he moved with his family, from Connecticut to Marcellus, N. Y., which was then called moving West. All their furniture, with the mother and small children, were packed into a one horse sleigh, and so part of the family walking and part riding, they made the journey to their new home. The military records of Connecticut show that John Balch, Jr., enlisted from Mansfield, into the First Connecticut Line. Benjamin Throop, Captain, Jedediah Huntington, Colonel. This regiment was raised from and after January 1, 1777, and took the field in the spring of that year. He joined April 26, 1777 and was discharged April 26, 1780. He was a pensioner and resided in New York state. The Pension Department records show that his application was made in April, 1818, and that he was in the battle at Stony Point, N. Y.

375. William,<sup>7</sup> son of 181 John<sup>6</sup> and [—] Balch, was born at Mansfield, Connecticut and died at Halls Corners, Onondaga Co., N. Y. Bazalael was a farmer, and lived in the town of Mansfield, Conn., and all of his children were born in that town. He died of dropsy, from which he suffered for more than two years. His widow survived him a few years.

Bazalael was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, entering the service when but sixteen years of age. Connecticut military records show that he joined Capt. James Dana's company, April 29, 1780. He was a devout Christian, kind and affectionate. He sent his children to church and to school faithfully, and they looked back to the recollections of their early life with pleasure. An incident occurred during the war of 1812 and 14, and related by Mrs. Mackenzie [who was Ruth Balch] to her daughter Helen Mar, is of interest in showing the energy and resources of the household. Bazalael's son John was suddenly summoned to the army, and had to go on the following day, but needed an extra coat of sheep's gray. A black and a white sheep were accordingly sheared, the wool mixed, carded, spun, woven into cloth, the cloth cut, made ready into a well-fitting coat, and warming John's back twenty-four hours after it had left the backs of the sheep. All these operations were performed in the family without outside aid.

Mrs. Mackenzie described her father to her daughter as a dark complexioned man, with dark hair and eyes. He was a man of mild disposition. It was his custom to tell his children, without scolding them, that they might go back to bed if they did not feel well after they had dressed and eaten breakfast!

379. Jonathan,<sup>7</sup> son of 182 Jonathan<sup>6</sup> and Abigail [Williams] Balch, was born at Boston, April 7, 1774, and died at that city in the summer of 1803. He married Miss Elizabeth Hastings, by whom he had two sons.

786 JONATHAN,<sup>8</sup> d. in infancy.

787 THOMAS HASTINGS,<sup>8</sup> d. in infancy.

Jonathan was a lumber merchant in Boston. He left land and a new dwelling house in Friend street, worth some six thousand dollars. His widow married William Dickenson, Aug. 14, 1808.

382. Samuel Williams,<sup>7</sup> son of 182 Jonathan<sup>6</sup> and Abigail [Williams] Balch, was born March 14, 1780, at Boston, Mass. The date of his death is not known. He was living in Dorchester, Oct. 13, 1813, as appears by Suffolk Deeds, Vol. 236, p. 193, but as he is not mentioned in his mother's will, dated Oct. 25, 1815, either by name or representative, it is reasonable to infer that he died between the above dates, and left no children.

384. David,<sup>7</sup> son of 182 Jonathan<sup>6</sup> and Abigail [Williams] Balch, was born at Boston, May 14, 1784. He was alive in 1818, and then junior member of the firm of Ridgway & Balch, of Philadelphia, Pa. This is all that is known regarding him.

385. Alexander,<sup>7</sup> son of 182 Jonathan<sup>6</sup> and Abigail [Williams] Balch, was born at Boston, March 9, 1786, and died July 5, 1812. He married, April 4, 1811, Ann, daughter of Col. Ebenezer and Mary [Glover] Clapp, of Dorchester. She was born December 8, 1792. They had one daughter.

788 ANN ALEXANDER,<sup>8</sup> b. Feb. 4, 1813; m. Francis D. Kidder.

Alexander was a merchant, of the firm of Ridgway & Balch, of Philadelphia, Pa. His widow married John, son of Lewis Wheeler, of Boston.

389. Joshua,<sup>7</sup> son of 186 Joshua<sup>6</sup> and Rebecca [Hopkins] Balch, was born June 9, 1778, and died at Lyme, N. H., April 23, 1833. He was married June 15, 1800, to Miss Nancy P. Shaw, who was born December 17, 1780, and died January 24, 1850. Joshua was a farmer, and lived in the town of Lyme, N. H. They had eight children.

Soon after Arnold was married he moved to Montrose, Penn., and lived in a log house near where the court house now stands. Wild animals were in great abundance, and neighbors scarce. One night while Arnold and his wife were going home from a neighbor's, where they had been spending the evening, a panther took after them, jumping from one tree to another over their heads. They ran with all speed for life, and succeeded in reaching home in safety. The country being so wild and new, they returned to Otsego Co., N. Y., and there raised their family. All the children were born in Otsego County, N. Y., except Diana, who was born in Cortlandt Co., N. Y. About 1825 they returned to Penn. and settled at Rush, on the Wyalusing creek, where they continued to live until removed by death. By trade Arnold was a cabinet and wheel-head maker. [A wheel-head is a part of a large spinning wheel, which was used in making woolen yarn.]

412. Roger,<sup>7</sup> son of 195 Israel<sup>6</sup> and Sarah [Arnold] Balch, was born at Mansfield, Ct., May 17, 1779. His death was caused by the kick of a horse. He died February 12, 1831, at Sherburn, and was buried in that town. When a young man he went to Sherburn, Chenango Co., N. Y., and continued to reside in that town. On the 2nd 'day of February, 1806, he married Miss Hannah, daughter of Stephen Northrup. She was born at Salem, N. Y., June 16th, 1787, and died at Lenox, N. Y., October 5, 1870. Roger and Hannah had seven children, all born at Sherburne. Roger was a farmer by occupation.

Doctor Israel Balch prepared himself for college, entering Dartmouth when eighteen years of age, and graduating at the end of a four years' course. He then went to Amesbury, Mass., and studied medicine three years in the office of Doctor French. He was gifted with a strong scientific mind. He took out several patents and made some very peculiar clocks. He wrote and delivered several lectures on scientific subjects. Many young men sought his office for instruction in medicine and surgery, navigation and higher mathematics. He was a strong advocate of temperance and a firm abolitionist.

He located first at Salisbury, Mass., and practiced there five years, then he removed to Amesbury where he spent the remainder of his life. He had the largest medical library in Amesbury or vicinity. He was a very successful practitioner of medicine and surgery.

He received no aid from his father to defray his educational expenses. His grandmother Peabody made him a present of $450, which was all the pecuniary aid he had that he did not earn himself.

Hannah [Balch] Baker, was left a widow at the age of fifty. She moved to Johnson, Vt., in 1830 and united soon after with the Congregational Church, of which she was an esteemed member. She died in the family of her daughter, Mrs. Moses Fullington, where she was cared for to the last with exemplary tenderness. Eventful were the years through which she passed, remembering distinctly when the first blow for freedom was struck. She was thirteen years of age when the sovereignty of our nation was conceded by the mother country, eighteen when our present constitution went in operation, forty-two when again arms were taken up against England, ninety when our country was threatened with disunion, and still she lived on to see the most gigantic rebellion put down that the world ever saw. All of these epochs in our country's history were retained with unusual vividness in her memory to the last. Her predominant traits of character were industry, prudence, and piety, every one of which, even industry she retained to the last.

443. Robert,<sup>7</sup> son of 222 Robert<sup>6</sup> and Sarah [Dodge] Balch, was born at Topsfield, Mass., February 17, 1772, and died at Jericho, Vt., March 4, 1842. He married Nabby Cram, of Ware, N. H. She died at Jericho, April 17, 1842, without issue. She was a cousin of John Cram, who married Robert's sister Sarah. In 1792, Robert, with his brother Solomon, settled at Johnson, Vt. where they bought three hundred acres of land near the center of the township. There being a defect in the title they had to pay for their land twice.

444. Solomon,<sup>7</sup> son of 222 Robert<sup>6</sup> and Sarah [Dodge] Balch, was born at Topsfield, Mass., October 20, 1773, and died at Johnson, Vt., October 22, 1854. He was married to Ruth Knights, of Antrim, N. H., about 1801. She was born July 22, 1777, and died Nov. 4, 1882. In 1792 Solomon left the parental roof at New Boston, N. H., and settled at Johnson, Vt. upon a three hundred acre farm with his brother Robert. There was born to Solomon and Ruth nine children.

Solomon was married a second time to the widow Philomena [Marcy] Willey, of Jericho, Vt. He died March 31, 1849, aged 66 years, without issue.

Solomon cleared his share of the farm which he bought in company with his brother Robert. He built a house and barns, and a saw mill on a small stream that ran through his farm. Upon this farm he spent the remainder of his life, respected by all who knew him. He was repeatedly elected as selectman, and justice of the peace. He was a man of strict integrity, and very exact in all his business dealings. As showing the opinion his neighbors had of his honesty, the following incident illustrates. An eccentric neighbor would never measure anything unless he could get the "Squire's" ten-foot pole, as no other was right.

Solomon was a portly gentleman, weighing 250 pounds, erect, with a clear blue eye. When pleased, his eye had a merry twinkle, but he could look as stern as the sternest. He was very fond of company. The summer before he died he made each of his grandsons a shot pouch of deer skin with deer horn nozzles. In politics he was a whig.

446. Moses,<sup>7</sup> son of 222 Robert<sup>6</sup> and Sarah [Dodge] Balch, was born at Topsfield, Mass., October 7, 1777, and died at Johnson, Vt., May 7, 1813. He married first Nabby, daughter of Nehemiah Dodge, of New Boston, N. H. In 1794 they moved to Johnson, Vt. Three children was the issue of this first marriage.

T. J. Cram graduated at West Point in 1826, commissioned to a second Lieutenancy in the 4th U. S. Artillery in July, 1826. In April, 1835, he was promoted to 1st Lieutenantcy. He resigned his commission in Sept., 1836. Two years later in July, 1838, he was appointed to a captaincy in the Topographical Engineers, a rank which he retained for no less than twenty-five years. The war of the Rebellion opened the path for advancement, and in August, 1861, he at last obtained his long delayed majority. In Sept., 1861, he was made a Lieut.-Colonel additional aid-de-camp. In March, 1863, he was transferred to the engineers. He was breveted Brigadier General of volunteers in March, 1865. In November of the same year he was promoted to a colonelcy of Engineers. In January, 1866, he was breveted Brigadier General, and Major General, in the regular army for faithful and meritorious service during the war. He was retired from the army in February, 1869, after an honorable career of forty-one years in the military service of his country.

Allen Balch moved into the town of Northfield, Vt., in 1829. He always had the merited respect and confidence of his fellow citizens. His end was quite sudden, his daughter on returning from church one Sunday, found him lying upon the floor in an insensible condition, having had a stroke of paralysis. Allen and his wife belonged to the denomination of Freewill Baptists.

Allen Balch was a Democrat, but because Jackson vetoed the U. S. Bank act, he turned Whig, and continued as such the remainder of his life.

495. Horatio Gates,<sup>7</sup> son of 239 Rev. Benjamin<sup>6</sup> and Joanna [O'Brien] Balch, was born at Danvers, Mass., October 16, 1777, and was baptized with his twin brother, George W., by the Rev. Mr. Holt, at Danvers, Oct. 26, 1777. He died at Lubec, Me., in 1850. He studied medicine, and was a physician of marked ability. The early part of his life was spent in and near Bangor, where he married his first wife, Miss Rhoda Dutton, a sister of Judge Dutton, a lawyer of considerable note at Bangor. Horatio G. was quite prominent in politics, was a Democrat up to Van Buren's administration, when he became a Whig. He was a member of the Legislature at Boston, before Maine was a separate state, and also the first Representative from Washington county after Maine became a state. In 1820 he was living at Lubec, Me. In 1821 or 2 he moved to Machias, Me., and soon after received the office of high sheriff, which he held till 1830, when he moved to Lubec again. That year he received the appointment of inspector of customs at Lubec, under Jackson's administration, which office he held about nine years. He was a member of the Congregational Church. He was very benevolent, as many since his death have given testimony to his kindness and consideration of the poor. By his first wife, Rhoda Dutton, he had eight children.

Jeremiah O. Balch moved to western New York about 1825. He first engaged in mercantile pursuits, but later, it being better suited to his education, he became an editor and publisher, as well as a practical printer. He published various newspapers in western New York, principally in Rochester. About 1835 he moved to Illinois, and later to Michigan, where his family followed in the spring of 1836. He was here considered one of the foremost and ablest editors of his day in Michigan. His work was chiefly done on the Statesman and Telegraph, at Marshall, and the Whig, at Ann Arbor. In politics he was first an old-line Whig, and when the Republican party was formed joined its ranks and became a most staunch and energetic supporter of its principles. His was a trenchant pen, and a most scathing one when battling for his party. In the war of the rebellion he was universally for the Union, and notwithstanding his advanced years, did good service for the cause through the press. Nor was his hatred of disloyalty confined entirely to words, for when nearly or quite 80 years of age he raised his cane in the physical rebuke of disloyal utterances by a neighbor, with such effect as to break it, whereupon his loyal fellow-citizens and friends procured a very handsome new stick and presented it to him with much formality and words of high approbation. The last work on his paper was in denunciation of Andrew Johnson.

He was an accomplished Latin scholar and linguist, and was respected by the editorial fraternity and all as an upright and honorable citizen.

501. Phineas Carleton,<sup>7</sup> son of 250 Jonathan<sup>6</sup> and Abigail [Carleton] Balch, was born at Newburyport, Mass., June 20, 1797, and died at Rowley, Mass., January 24, 1880. He was a deacon in the church at Byfield, and was a christian gentleman of quiet virtues. He filled wisely and well many offices of trust in the town and church, and was highly respected and beloved by all who knew him. He married Jane Kezer, daughter of Samuel and Olive [Kezer] Merrill of Byfield. She was born May 24, 1797. They had but one child.

Thomas Hutchinson was a farmer, and superintendent of the burial ground at Groveland; also proprietor of "Balch Grove," a popular picnic ground on the Merrimac River. This grove gave the name to the town. It is a fine tract of pine-clad hills, and level ground, and can be reached by steamer on the river where there is a wharf for landing, or on the other side by a street railway, which connects Haverhill with Groveland about three miles distant. It was formerly known as "Uncle Billy's Grove." Thomas H. inherited this property from his uncle 249 William<sup>6</sup> whom he took care of in his old age. The old house in which the 58 Rev. William,<sup>4</sup> 127 Deacon William,<sup>5</sup> and his uncle 249 William,<sup>6</sup> had lived, he tore down and built a new one in which he resides at this time.

506. Jonathan,<sup>7</sup> son of 250 Jonathan<sup>6</sup> and Mehitabel [Carleton] Balch, was born at East Bradford, October 5, 1808, and died November 15, 1892, at Groveland. He was married March 20, 1829, to Sally, daughter of Paul and Sally [Morse] Hopkinson, a cousin to his brother Leonard's wife. She was born September 24, 1810. They celebrated their golden wedding March 20, 1879, more than one hundred and fifty guests were present. Mr. Balch was great hearted, broad and liberal in his opinions. He stood against the slave power, when it cost reputation and caste to be an abolitionist. He was a great lover of music and was connected with a band of music in early life. As a neighbor and friend he was among the best, and as a husband and father he was not excelled by any in the community. He was thoroughly honest, upright and substantial.

Jonathan was a boot and shoemaker, and resided at Groveland. To him and his wife were born ten children.

510. Benjamin,<sup>7</sup> son of 253 Benjamin<sup>6</sup> and Lois [Phippen] Balch, was born at Salem, Jan. 25, 1804, and died in the same town where he always resided, November 5, 1863. On the 12th of February, 1829, he married Caroline L., daughter of David and Mary [Pratt] Moore of Salem. She died June 13, 1880, in the 75th year of her age. Benjamin was a master mariner in the East India trade. Shortly after his marriage he went as mate of the Glide to the Fiji Islands. The ship was totally wrecked in a hurricane, and the crew, except a few, killed. He was held by the natives, at that time utterly barbarous, for over two years. They curiously tattooed his hands, feet and portions of his body, and the colors held bright to the day of his death. The story is told in a small book entitled "The Wreck of the Glide." He was for some voyages captain of the celebrated ship George, a clipper of great local fame in the Calcutta trade. He was also wrecked on the coast of Zululand, South Africa. Hot and unhealthy climates broke down his constitution and he was an invalid for several years. Benjamin and Caroline had three children.

Frothingham, hardware dealer, as a clerk, and about 1822, he established himself in the same business, in Newburyport, and remained in trade for about fifteen years, and early in his career became interested in foreign freighting, which he carried on with the late Edmund Swett, and after retirement from the hardware business, he became part owner in a good many ships, trading to foreign ports. Mr. Balch also became interested in cotton manufacture, and was one of the first to introduce it in Newburyport. He had an interest in the Bartlett and Ocean Mills, and was for many years a director of the James, now the Victoria mill. He was also for a number of years a director of the Merchants Bank, a director of the Newburyport Mutual Fire Insurance Company, and Vice President of the Institute for Savings, which latter place he resigned about a year before his death, on account of age and increasing infirmities. He was a noted accountant and kept his own accounts by double entry. For more than half a century he was one of the active supporters of the First Religious Society, in Newburyport, filling many of its offices, and more than sixty years ago was organist of the church. Mr. Balch had a strong constitution, having never required the advice of a physician until he was taken with pneumonia a week before his death, though he had been gradually failing in strength for several years. He retained his faculties wonderfully until the last.

525. John Theodoric,<sup>7</sup> son of 257 Daniel<sup>6</sup> and Martha [Tarbox] Balch, was born at Newburyport, October 13, 1799, and was christened John Tarbox. He died February 24, 1847. He was considered quite a wit, and a star in society in his youth. He married Elizabeth Jones, daughter of George Thacher, of Biddeford, Me. Her father was a member of Congress from Massachusetts from April, 1789 to March, 1801, and at the time of his death was judge of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts. Mrs. Elizabeth Jones [Thacher] Balch was a very superior woman. They had five children.

535. Sarah,<sup>7</sup> daughter of 261 John<sup>6</sup> and Eunice [Bartlett] Balch, was born at East Bradford, December 21, 1790, and died at Georgetown, Mass., February 8, 1893. On March 22, 1837, she was married to Rev. Isaac Braman, of Georgetown, being his second wife. Rev. Dr. Braman was pastor of the South church for a period of sixty years, loved, honored and revered, and during this long pastorate he never received a salary exceeding $400 per annum. Dr. Braman died December 26, 1856, in his 89th year. Mrs. Braman visited Newburyport when in her 94th year. During the summer of her 98th year she attended church and visited among her neighbors. She retained her faculties remarkably and was a most delightful and agreeable conversationalist and a very intelligent companion. Her memory was very accurate, and she could readily locate all the different branches of her family. She narrated with great vividness the scene of the great fire in 1811, in Newburyport. She remembered "Lord" Timothy Dexter, as he appeared on the streets with cocked hat and cane, and wearing a blue cloak lined with a bright red material; of going to his funeral and seeing his dead "lordship" in his coffin with his sword laid upon it, and many other incidents in the life of this eccentric man. Mrs. Braman held a reception upon her 102d birthday and over one hundred persons paid her their compliments. She was cheerful and in good health. About two weeks later when walking across the room she fell, breaking her right arm near the shoulder. This accident upset her whole physical economy and she rapidly failed and died at the ripe old age of 102 years, 1 month and 18 days. She never had any children. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. John Rounds Smith, pastor of the Memorial Church, in which he was assisted by several of her former pastors.

536. Sophronia,<sup>7</sup> daughter of 261 John<sup>6</sup> and Eunice [Bartlett] Balch, was born at Newburyport, February 14, 1793, and died in that town, June 24, 1872. Benjamin was engaged in the insurance business. He was a remarkable man, far seeing and somewhat eccentric. His eccentricity rose to such a degree that his mind became somewhat unbalanced. He was considered one of the ablest statisticians in the country. Our present national banking law is nearly word for word as he designed it and advocated long before the civil war. He organized the first life insurance company in the country. The Pacific railroad schemes were originated by him before they were dreamed of by others. For more than fifty years he advocated the Darien ship-canal. A writer said of him: "He was called insane, but he knew more than any sane man he had ever met, particularly on the subject of banking and insurance."

On the 3rd day of July, 1862, Joseph H. married his second wife, the widow C. Olivia Marr, of Plaquemine, by her he had no issue. She was living at New Orleans, Louisiana, in 1888.

Joseph H. Balch studied law in the office of Gov. Williams at Lancaster, New Hampshire. About 1845 he went to Louisiana, and settled at Plaquemine. In 1864 he was a member of the State Legislature at New Orleans. In 1868 he removed to New Iberia, where he continued to reside till his death. Joseph H. Balch was one of the most prominent men in the community in which he lived, and was respected and beloved on account of his superior talents and amiable qualities. He died of pernicious malarial fever, leaving a widow and three children, upon whom the love and veneration of the community was most bountifully bestowed.

601. Frederick B.,<sup>8</sup> son of 286 Joseph<sup>7</sup> and Elizabeth [Legro] Balch, was born at Lancaster, N. H., February 16, 1825. On March 4, 1848, he married Thankful, daughter of John and Sarah Vincent, by whom he had one son, born at Manchester, at which place Frederick B. is now living.

Henry Brace Balch for a time attended the Western Reserve College, at Hudson, Ohio, but did not graduate. After leaving college, he travelled for the Bible Society in Virginia, Illinois and Wisconsin. In 1849 he settled at Meadville Pa., and opened a bookstore. In 1863 he removed to Titusville, Pa., and travelled as agent for a Hartford publishing house until 1869 when he removed to Benzonia, Mich. In pushing his agency he was pleased to style himself "A Michigan Picket." Over this signature many readable articles appeared in several of the Michigan newspapers in the Grand Travers region, where his home was located. He was outspoken in his hatred of tobacco, alcohol, and all kinds of narcotics, and intoxicants. He and his wife were members of the Congregational church. In politics he was a staunch Republican.

Albert Vestus is a man of remarkable and sterling qualities. He received his education at the common district school, at select schools at Schuyler Falls and Keesville, N. Y., and finished at the Plattsburgh Academy at the age of sixteen. He was an apt scholar, possessing a retentive memory, and was quite an athlete. He could clear over 13 feet at a standing jump with dumbbells. On leaving school he entered on a mercantile career in New York city, but a serious illness led him to give it up. When twenty years of age he was employed as a teacher of convicts at Clinton state prison, after which he was appointed a keeper. In 1850 he located at Weyauwega, and was, in 1853, the first to make a purchase of land from the United States in the town, upon which he has lived continuously since that time. He there took a government contract of surveying, and through this work made himself thoroughly acquainted with the timber and mineral lands of Northern Wisconsin, and became largely engaged as a land agent. He has been largely interested in the development of northern Wisconsin. He was postmaster from 1861 to 1867, was a member of the Legislature of Wisconsin in 1867, and has held some civil office almost continuously either in county or town since 1852. Early in life he united with the First Presbyterian church at Plattsburgh, N. Y., and was prominent in the organization of the Presbyterian church at Weyauwega, of which he has been an elder since 1857. He has represented the Winnebago County Presbytery three times in the General Assembly. He united with the Freemasons, and has taken the Royal Arch degrees. In politics he is a staunch Republican.

Albert V. was married again June 4, 1891, to Madeline, daughter of Maurice and Mary Ann [Dobler] Blind. She was born in Kiffis, Alsace Lorain, August 21, 1851. In the fall of 1875, she came to America. In 1881 she returned to Europe to perfect her German education at the University of Gottingen. Returning to America in two years, she entered the Millersburg Female College, at Millersburg, Kentucky, as a teacher of Modern Languages.

Galusha B. was born and reared upon the farm on which his grandfather located in 1800. He finished his schooling at the Plattsburgh Academy, and after teaching district schools for two seasons entered the Berkshire Medical College at Pittsfield, Massachusetts. Here he was under the tutelage of Dr. Harry Childs and his son, Dr. Timothy Childs. He then finished his medical education at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Medical Department of Columbia College at New York City, and graduated in 1860. After graduating he practiced first at Saranac, and then at North Lawrence, New York. At the outbreak of the Civil War he passed the examination of the board of examiners for medical staff appointments in New York regiments, and was commissioned assistant surgeon of the 98th New York Infantry, October 20, 1861. The regiment was at that time being recruited at Malone, N. Y.

In the spring of 1862 he went to the front with this regiment. It was assigned to the Army of the Potomac, and went to the Peninsula under General McClellan. Upon the taking of Yorktown he was detached from his regiment and assigned to duty in the general hospital there, and for a time was in charge of the steamer State of Maine, transporting sick to Baltimore. While thus engaged Dr. J. Simpson, the medical director at Baltimore, said in a letter to the Surgeon General that the condition in which the State of Maine arrived was highly creditable to Dr. Balch, that the sick were well cared for and that the sanitary condition of the vessel was in a much better state than that of the others that had lately arrived.

Contracting typho-malarial fever at Yorktown, he lay sick in hospital for about six weeks. Having returned to his regiment early in August before he had fully recovered, the condition of his health led him to resign on Sept. 20, 1862. Returning north he located, as soon as his health would permit, at Sheffield, Massachusetts, and practiced his profession till December, 1863, when, feeling restored to health, he accepted a commission as Assistant Surgeon of the Second Regiment of Veteran Cavalry, New York Volunteers. With this regiment he went to the Department of the Gulf in February, 1864, and was the only surgeon with the regiment during the Red River campaign of that year, and with it in the battles of Alexandria, Grand Ecore, Camptee, Pleasant Hill, Cane River and Yellow Bayou.

During the summer of 1864, and winter following, the regiment was stationed at Morganzia Bend on the Mississippi river, and was kept constantly scouting up and down both sides of the river between Baton Rouge and the mouth of the Red river, having frequent sanguinary skirmishes. The Doctor was almost always out with these scouting parties, and consequently was frequently exposed to the bullets of the enemy.

In March, 1865, the regiment was sent to Pensacola, Fla., and joined General Steel, who moved around into the rear of Mobile, Ala., to co-operate with General Canby in capturing that city. After the surrender of Fort Blakely the regiment moved out through the state of Alabama, and on April 11, fought the battle at Mt. Pleasant, one of the last of the war. After the surrender of all the opposing forces the regiment was sent to Talladega, Alabama, where it remained until it was mustered out on November 8, 1865.

In the spring of 1866 the Doctor located at Plattsburgh, N. Y., and purchased a drug store. This was destroyed by the great fire of Plattsburgh, in 1868. In 1872 he moved to Yonkers, N. Y., where he is now practicing his profession. In 1876 he was appointed Health Officer for the city and organized the Health Department and made it one of the best in the state at that time. This office he held two years.

In 1877 he was elected vice-president of the Westchester County Medical Society, and, in the year following, was chosen as its president and is still a member of that society. He was one of the organizers of the Yonkers Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and since its organization in 1881 has continued as its president at the unanimous desire of its directors. In 1867 he became a member of Clinton Lodge, 155, of F. and A. M., and has taken the Royal Arch and Council degrees. He served two years as thrice illustrious master of Nepperhan Council R. and S. M's, No. 70. During the year 1883 he was Commander of Kitching Post, No. 60, G. A. R., and was Commander of John C. Fremont Post, No. 590, for seven years. The Doctor and Mrs. Balch are members of the First Presbyterian Church. His first ballot was cast for Abraham Lincoln, in 1860, and he has voted the Republican ticket ever since. He was one of the organizers of the Yonkers Historical and Library Association and is its librarian. The work of compiling this Genealogy was taken up by him in 1874, and has occupied his spare moments for twelve years.

642. John Timothy,<sup>8</sup> son of 314 Chester<sup>7</sup> and Lucy [Smedley] Balch, was born at Plattsburgh, N. Y., October 21, 1836. He is of a kind and gentle disposition, affectionate, jovial, and enjoys society. The strict puritanical ways of his father, and uncongenial feeling that existed between him and his stepmother, induced him to leave home in 1856. He went first to his sister's home at Amboy, Ills., and there he found employment with the Illinois Central R. R. Co. In the spring of 1858 he went South in the employ of the Mississippi Central R. R. and in 1860 was in the employ of the Mobile and Ohio R. R. He remained within the Confederate lines in the employ of this latter road until 1864, when he came through the lines at Vicksburg, Miss. Thence he went to St. Louis and was in the employ first of the Ohio and Mississippi, second as general baggage agent of the Wabash for seven years, and third at Union depot for six years. Since 1881 he has been assistant baggage agent at Union depot, Kansas City. He is a Democrat and a member of the Westminster Presbyterian Church at Kansas City. On June 20, 1872, he married Margaret J., daughter of Frank P. and Margaret Traynor. She was born at Davenport, Iowa, May 1st, 1854. They have one child.

647. Manning B.,<sup>8</sup> son of 321 William Skinner<sup>7</sup> and Caroline M. [Martin] Balch, was born at Pownal, Vt., September 23, 1836. In 1859, he married Clementine, daughter of John H. and Eliza Wager, of Saratoga, N. Y., by whom he had one son who died in infancy. She died in August, 1860. He enlisted in the Union Army in 1861. In 1865 he became a lecturer for the Good Templars in Wisconsin, and afterwards in Massachusetts. In 1869 he entered the Methodist Episcopal ministry in the West Wisconsin conference, was presiding elder of the La Cross district in 1883, and of the Madison district in 1887.

On August 11, 1867, he married Hattie L., daughter of Hon. Dr. William and Mary [Beebe] Monroe, of Fayette, Wis. She was born July 31, 1846. They have had one son.

1300* WILLIAM MONROE,<sup>9</sup> b. Nov. 25, 1871.

648. Edward N.,<sup>8</sup> son of 321 William Skinner<sup>7</sup> and Caroline M. [Martin] Balch, was born at Williamstown, Mass., March 2, 1841. At the breaking out of the Civil War he was in Wisconsin, and enlisted in the twenty-second Wisconsin Volunteers. He died in the army hospital at Lexington, Ky., January 1, 1863, from exposure in the service. He never married.

649. Carrie V.,<sup>8</sup> daughter of 321 William Skinner<sup>7</sup> and Vesta H. [Child] Balch, was born at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., June 24, 1860. She was married Nov. 17, 1880, to George D. son of Daniel and Fatima [Shedd] Harvey, of Auburndale, Mass., where they reside. He was born Dec. 20, 1840, and is a wholesale dry goods merchant at Boston, Mass. They have no children.

655. Alonzo W.,<sup>8</sup> son of 326 Thomas<sup>7</sup> and Delia [Persons] Balch, was born at Hartford, Ct., September 16, 1837. He was married May 31, 1865, to Joanna B. Rohr, and lives in New York City. He is a wholesale dealer in teas and wines.

1302 DAVID CLARK,<sup>9</sup> b. April 27, 1866, at New York City.

656. Frederick A.,<sup>8</sup> son of 326 Thomas<sup>7</sup> and Delia [Persons] Balch, was born at Hartford, Ct., August 22, 1839.

He was a wood engraver, but lost his business owing to improved methods of illustration. Worry over this led to his untimely death on July 10, 1896. This was exactly seven years even to the hour and minute after the death of his son Claude. He was a man of scrupulous integrity, unselfish, and devoted to his family. On November 22, 1867, he married Celeste A. Brasier, daughter of Jean Claude Brasier De Latour, she was born at LaRoche [Haute-Saevoie], France, on January 10, 1842. She is a dressmaker in Brooklyn, New York. Two children have been born to them, both in Brooklyn, N. Y.

1303* ELEONORE MARIE AMELIE,<sup>9</sup> b. Dec. 1, 1868.

1304 CLAUDE ALFRED,<sup>9</sup> b. Oct. 11, 1873; d. July 10, 1889.

1307 FRANK COLLINS,<sup>9</sup> died in infancy.

1308 GRACE COLLINS,<sup>9</sup> b. Nov. 18, 1865.

Collins Lawton is the last male descendant of 71 Timothy,<sup>5</sup> son of 22 Joseph<sup>4</sup> and Mary [Osgood] Balch, of Boston. He prepared for college at the Providence High School and entered Brown University in 1851. He pursued an English course, but left the University, in 1854, without graduating, to enter upon a business life in New York City, as a clerk in a dry goods commission house. After a few years he left to take charge of the business of a manufacturing jewelry firm. Next he went into the manufacturing and jobbing jewelry business on his own account, and subsequently became interested in the development of the then new material "celluloid" and is now one of the managers of the Celluloid Company. In 1864 he united with the First Presbyterian Church at Tremont, N. Y., then a suburb of New York city. In this church he has at different times filled the various offices trustee, deacon, and elder, and for fifteen years enjoyed the confidence of the church officers by being annually elected superintendent of the Sabbath School.

1323 MARIA,<sup>9</sup> b. June 23, 1820; d. April 4, 1848.

Joel Balch was a man of a strong and active mind, but had little opportunity for an education, having gone to Vermont among the first settlers there. His wife taught the first school in the town. He was not rich, but industrious and frugal, and lived comfortably, and enjoyed the respect and confidence of all who knew him. He never sought office, but was often called upon to serve as one of the selectmen, justice of the peace, representative to the Legislature, and in places of trust in the neighborhood and town. He was a great reader of the Bible, but could never agree with the close communion Calvinism of his day.

666. Deborah,<sup>8</sup> daughter of 333 Hart<sup>7</sup> and Dorcas [Somers] Balch, was born at Keene, N. H., November 13, 1780. She married Lemuel, son of Josiah and Hannah [Hobbs] Abbot, of Amherst, N. H. He was born May 13, 1764, and died January 19, 1841. They lived at Windham, Vt., and had seven children: Lemuel, b. April 3, 1799; Hart B., b. Dec. 29, 1800; Sally B., b. Nov. 17, 1802; Lucius, b. Feb. 3, 1804; Lucia, b. Aug. 5, 1807; Marcius, b. Dec. 1, 1809; Marcia, b. Nov. 26, 1811.

668. Asa,<sup>8</sup> son of 333 Hart<sup>7</sup> and Dorcas [Somers] Balch, was born May 12, 1786, and died at Andover, Vt., in 1872. He married Betsey Parker; both were quite old when married, and they had no issue.

669. Francis S.,<sup>8</sup> son of 333 Hart<sup>7</sup> and Dorcas [Somers] Balch, was born at Andover, Vt., September 2, 1788, and died at Shirley, Mass., August 25, 1857. On February 7, 1810, he married Sally, daughter of James Dickerson. She was born at Shirley, January 24, 1790, and died in that town, December 28, 1871, and was buried by her husband. Immediately after his marriage he went to live at Mitchelville (then a part of Shirley, now of Ayer), and engaged in flour-milling for Levi Dodge. He worked in the mill several years, then bought a farm near by. He was short of stature, of medium weight, and quick in his movements. He loved the country life, hunting and fishing. They had four children, all born in the town of Shirley.

1824* DORCAS,<sup>9</sup> b. Nov. 26, 1811; d. Oct. 23, 1886.

1344* CARRIE MARIA,<sup>9</sup> b. Dec. 7, 1841.

673. Jacob Abbot,<sup>8</sup> son of 333 Hart<sup>7</sup> and Dorcas [Somers] Balch, was born June 4, 1800, at Andover, Vt., and died at Newburyport, Mass., August 27, 1881. He was married at Chester, Vt., April 20, 1829, to Huldah J. Burton, daughter of Samuel Burton, one of the pioneers of Vermont. She was born at Andover, Vt., October 23, 1803, and died at Newburyport, Mass., August 28, 1893. Her mother was a cousin of Gen. Israel Putnam. At the time of Jacob Abbot's marriage, both he and Huldah were living at Andover, Vt., but the record of their marriage is at Chester, Vt. They had one daughter, born in Newburyport.

1345 HELEN B.,<sup>9</sup> b. Dec. 5, 1835; m. Moses H. Fowler, July 8, 1874.

674. Maria S.,<sup>8</sup> daughter of 334 Nathaniel<sup>7</sup> and Mary [Stillman] Balch, was born March 20, 1790. She married Dr. David Torry, and had two sons.

675. William,<sup>8</sup> son of 334 Nathaniel<sup>7</sup> and Mary [Stillman] Balch, was born March 11, 1792, and was lost at sea sometime after 1826, as he was in Boston in that year. He never married. William was, like many Balches, a sailor, and commanded several vessels in the merchant marine service.

676. Nathaniel,<sup>8</sup> son of 334 Nathaniel<sup>7</sup> and Mary [Stillman] Balch, was born at Boston, February 13, 1794. In 1826 he was a printer in Boston. In 1831 he was in Baltimore, Md., and probably died in that city a few years afterwards, unmarried.

677. Harriet,<sup>8</sup> daughter of 334 Nathaniel<sup>7</sup> and Mary [Stillman] Balch, was born at Boston, November 14, 1795. She married a Mr. Grafton.

678. Benjamin Stillman,<sup>8</sup> son of 334 Nathaniel<sup>7</sup> and Mary [Stillman] Balch, was born at Boston, July 9, 1797. Early in life he removed to Baltimore, Md. About 1857, he discovered a mode of rapidly cutting stencil plates by means of nitric acid, this proved valuable to him, but the fuming acid proved detrimental to his health, as he wrote in his last letter to his relatives in 1850.

679. Edward Lawrence,<sup>8</sup> son of 334 Nathaniel<sup>7</sup> and Susan [Young] Balch, was born at Boston, May 31, 1816, and was baptized at the "Old South Church" by Rev. Dr. Wisner. He died at Boston, November 21, 1869. On Sunday, December 1, 1844, he was married at Jamaica Plain, by the Rev. Dr. Gray, to Miss Martha Willis, third daughter of Bradford, and Rebecca [Atwood] Lincoln. She died at Boston, April 4, 1882, at the age of 71 years and eight days. They had two children, the first of whom was a daughter, b. Nov. 11, 1845, and died the next day.

1346* WILLIAM LINCOLN,<sup>9</sup> b. April 2, 1847.

Bradford Lincoln, the father of Mrs. Edward L. Balch, was descended—through Stephen Jr., David, Mathew, and Job, of Hingham, Mass., from Stephen Lincoln, who came from Windham, Eng., in 1638, and through his mother, Mercy Hersey, on her maternal side, from Gov. William Bradford, of the Plymouth Colony.

Edward Lawrence Balch when a very young man was employed for a short time in the office of the first city clerk of Boston,—which received its charter in 1822,—and was at an early age apprenticed to the printers trade, his employers being the Merriams at Brookfield, Mass. Returning to Boston, he made a specialty of music printing and for many years a large share of the music book and concert printing of the city issued from his office. For a time he had charge of the printing of "Dwight's Journal of Music." He was the first printer of the "Boston Musical Times" and of the "Congregational Quarterly" magazine. He was a patentee of a form of movable music type for school-chart printing. He was an officer of the Mendelssohn Choral Society, and an active member for years of the Handel and Hayden Society and the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanics Association.

680. William Young,<sup>8</sup> son of 334 Nathaniel<sup>7</sup> and Susan [Young] Balch, was born at Boston, March 10, 1819, and died in that city December 17, 1872. He was a picture frame maker, and resided for several years at Hillsboro, Illinois. He was married October 24, 1844, by the Rev. James Angier, to Maria Swift, daughter of William, and Elizabeth Beal, of Milton, Mass. They had two daughters born at Milton.

Samuel Albert worked for many years for the Knickerbocker Ice Co., of New York, then he went to California and engaged in mining and farming. He then returned east and engaged in the ice business again. About 1882 he returned to the Pacific coast. He was of quiet, gentle disposition, but extremely reticent, and never told his family who his relatives were, or told his brother of his marriage. Because of his prolonged absence from home, his daughter, Mrs. Smalley, became anxious after his welfare, and in the spring of 1893 her husband looked in the New York directory, and finding the son of the author of this Genealogy with a similar name, called at his office and made known the facts concerning his father-in-law's marriage. As Samuel Albert had not communicated with his brother in Vermont for some time, it was not possible to obtain his address at the time. Early in the next year, Samuel Albert suddenly appeared at his daughter's home, was shown his genealogical record and admitted that it was correct. He remained for a few days and then suddenly disappeared. Notice of his death was published in a San Francisco paper; it was cut out and sent to the author of the Genealogy by a correspondent in Tacoma, and through it Mrs. Smalley first learned of her father's death just three months after it occurred.

In 1882 John married his second wife, a Miss Pope, of Shawano, Wis. She was born at Wurtemberg, Germany, April 10, 1842. As a boy John A. was full of mischief and fun. When 20 years of age he bought his time from his father for forty dollars, and in the early spring of 1844 left home for Keeseville, New York, to learn flour milling. From Burlington, Vermont, he walked twelve miles across Lake Champlain, on the ice, which was deemed unsafe for teams. He remained at the mill until 1849, and then, on December 18, took passage, with three others, on the brig "Orbit," from New York, around the Horn, to San Francisco. The journey took four months and twenty days, and cost two hundred dollars. John worked a short time in the gold mines at Weaver Creek, was taken sick, spent all his money, and then went to Oregon, landing at the site of the present city of Portland. Here he soon found employment as a carpenter, first at five, and then at eight dollars a day, with tools and board. After a time he returned to the California mines, and was doing very well, when news of his mother's illness led him to sell out and return home by way of the isthmus. Soon after his return he married and took charge of the flour mill at Peru, New York. In 1858 he took charge of the mill at Ausable Forks, New York, and two or three years later he moved to Iola, Wisconsin. He was a Democrat, and a hard working, honest, temperate man.

959. Alma A.,<sup>8</sup> daughter of 452 Allen<sup>7</sup> and Hepzibah [Dodge] Balch, was born at Unity, N. H., June 6, 1828. She never married. Her father gave her the old homestead and personal property at Northfield, where she now lives. She is a lady of ability and kindly disposition, and has rendered much assistance in collecting material for this Genealogy.

960. Ezra D.,<sup>8</sup> son of 452 Allen<sup>7</sup> and Hepzibah [Dodge] Balch, was born at Charlestown, N. H., May 6, 1830, and died at Iola, Wisconsin, Sept. 6, 1867. He was married January 1, 1850, to Martha E. Nye, of Northfield, Vermont, and removed to Iola in 1855. He was a farmer, a member of the Methodist church, superintendent of the Sabbath school, and class leader. He also held various town offices. His six children were born at Iola, except the two eldest, who were born at Northfield.

Capt. John Balch spent the active years of his life at Trescott, Me., where he was largely engaged in ship-building, and advanced that branch of industry to a state of great prosperity in that part of the country. He represented his fellow townsmen repeatedly in the legislature and other public offices. He was an active friend of the temperance cause, and other objects of social progress and enterprise.

Several years before his death, he removed from Maine to Roxbury, Mass, and was engaged in commerce with England, Australia, and the Pacific coast. Severe reverses in business marked his last years, but they were borne with singular fortitude, and served only to bring out other and brighter sides of his character which had less opportunity to display themselves during his days of prosperity.

George W. Balch was trained early to business pursuits, first in Michigan, and next at Chattanooga, Tenn., where, at the age of 17, he engaged in the dry goods business. About 1851 he became also connected with the telegraph, which was then first introduced in that region. Knowledge of this business he had previously acquired at the North. He was the first, and for a time the only practical telegrapher in East Tennessee. In 1852 he returned North, and regularly entered the telegraph service, first at Detroit, Michigan, then at Chicago, and returning again to Detroit, in 1853-4, he there became superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph Company. In 1865 he was appointed assistant general superintendent of that company, with headquarters at Rochester, N. Y. In 1866 he removed to New York city, as assistant to I. H. Wade, president Western Union Telegraph Company. In 1867-8 he returned to Detroit and engaged in commercial business. In 1871 he was elected president of the common council, and for a time was acting mayor. Subsequently he served three years as president of the Board of Education of that city. He was president of the American District Telegraph Company and of the Telephone and Telegraph Construction Company, and also of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company and of the Michigan Telegraph Company, and also president of the Detroit Electrical Works. Later he entered on railroad construction, and became vice-president of the Detroit, Butler & St. Louis Railroad Company (an adjunct of the Wabash R. R. Co.) For 25 years he was engaged in the grain business at Detroit, and for the past twenty years, in connection therewith, conducted the grain business in New York city, retaining residence, however, continuously in Detroit, Mich. As chairman of the New York Produce Exchange Canal Committee, he promoted the improvement of the New York state canals, under whose efforts the present $9,000,000 improvement of the state canals was mainly brought about.

1121. George Edward,<sup>8</sup> son of 524 William<sup>7</sup> and Hannah [Stone] Balch, was born at Newburyport, August 7, 1822, and died in the same town, August 23, 1889. He graduated at Exeter Academy. At the age of 22 years he was given the command of the bark Oberlin, and five years later commanded the full-rigged ship, "The Columbus," from Boston to Akyab. While bound from Akyab for Flushing the upper cabin was broken down by a tremendous sea during the night, which took him with it, head first, through the lee bulwarks to his waist, when the boards sprung back and held him half in and half out of the ship. While in this position one knee was severely injured by a loose spar, and he was insensible when rescued. While expecting every minute that they might founder, they sighted a Dutch vessel in distress, with missionaries on board. Captain Balch had his men carry him on deck to see the situation and give orders. Volunteers went to the relief of the vessel. The Dutch sailors were drunk when rescued, and at their urging some of their chests were taken off, but instead of clothing, they contained whiskey. Unknown to the officers, this was given freely to the men, and all hands refused to man the pumps. Captain Balch, though suffering excruciating pain, with pistol in hand, quelled the mutiny. For this act of humanity and heroism he was given a gold medal by the South Holland Institute. The cyclone lasted three days. Seventeen days later they made the Isle of France. A physician there proposed to amputate his leg, but Captain Balch would not consent, and it was saved. On his homeward voyage, in April, 1851, in the storm that carried away the Minot Ledge lighthouse, the ship was wrecked, and they were left upon the back of Cape Cod for forty-eight hours, when they were taken off naked and barely alive. He had a third narrow escape. When four days out from Boston, his ship, the "Howadji," was struck by lightning, and he and his crew were rescued by another ship just before theirs went down.

Captain Balch was married October 21, 1852, to Elizabeth Johnson, daughter of Peter LeBreton, of Newburyport. She was born April 17, 1826. They have four children.

1128. Fanny Stone,<sup>8</sup> daughter of 524 William<sup>7</sup> and Hannah [Stone] Balch, was born at Newburyport, 'January 2, 1837. For several years she has been president of the day nursery for the children of the poor, in St. Louis, Missouri. She was married Sept. 30, 1863, to Calvin Milton Woodward, who was a captain in the 48th Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteers, during the civil war. In 1865 he was appointed professor of mathematics and applied mechanics in Washington University, St. Louis, Mo. He held the office of dean of the Polytechnic School for twenty-five years. He is the author of a work on the "Theory and Construction of the St. Louis Bridge." They have had nine children: Alice Balch, b. July 25, 1864, d. May 19, 1865; Clara Lincoln, b. July 20, 1865; Bertha, b. Aug. 29, 1867, d. Dec. 21, 1870; Fanny Louise, b. Dec. 9, 1869; Hilda, b. Aug. 21, 1871; Margaret, b. Feb. 7, 1874; Alexander, b. Sept. 5, 1876, d. July 1, 1877; Calvin Balch, b. Oct. 27, 1878, d. 1129. Charles Carrol,<sup>8</sup> son of 524 William<sup>7</sup> and Hannah [Stone] Balch, was born at Newburyport, May 9, 1841. He graduated at Harvard in 1862, and decided to study medicine. He was drowned, August 27, 1863, while bathing at Salisbury Beach.

1130. George Thacher,<sup>8</sup> son of 525 John Theodoric<sup>7</sup> and Elizabeth Jones [Thacher] Balch, was born at Biddeford, Me., October 2, 1828, and died very suddenly in New York city, April 15, 1894, and was buried at Troy, N. Y. He was married, November 8, 1859, to Harriet Delafield, daughter of Hon. John P. Cushman, a judge of the New York Supreme Court, living at Troy. She lives at Saratoga. They have had no children.

Colonel George T. Balch graduated from West Point Military Academy in 1852, and soon after was commissioned a lieutenant of artillery. In April, 1861, he was ordered to Fort Pickens, Florida, with the artillery under the command of Colonel Harvey Brown. The war department soon recognized his remarkable organizing and executive abilities, and called him to the Ordnance Bureau at Washington, where he remained until the close of the war. The completeness of his organization in the ordnance department enabled all the accounts to be closed and the force of clerks reduced to the few needed in times of peace, almost as soon as the troops were mustered out. Having been promoted through the various grades to that of lieutenant colonel during the war, he resigned at its termination, and formed the Remington Plow Company. Not meeting with success in this undertaking, he soon terminated his connection with it, and passed into the service of the receiver of the Erie Railway Company, to straighten out its affairs. While in this position he thoroughly inventoried the property of the company, and in this work discovered to them real estate titles amounting to over one million dollars that had been overlooked and forgotten. At the direction of Mayor Hewitt, of New York city, in 1886, he made a careful study and investigation of the health department and of the street paving contracts of the city, and in this capacity made a scathing report on the repaving of Fifth Avenue and many other frauds perpetrated on the city by contractors. From his investigation of the health department he was led to the study of the foreign-born residents of New York city. His remarkable ability for thorough and accurate work came to the attention of the Board of Education of New York, and led to his appointment as actuary of that board. His original and thorough methods in these various capacities have been embodied in various books and reports from his pen. "A General Classification of Railway Rights, Realities and Personalities," J. J. Little & Co., printers, New York, 1878, concisely sums up his methods of taking the inventory of the Erie Railway Company's property. "The Sewage Question in Saratoga" appears in a report from the Board of Sewer Commissioners to the Board of Trustees of that village in 1885. "Teaching Patriotism in Our Public Schools," The D. Van Nostrand Co., publishers, brings timely before the American public the importance and the methods of inculcating loyalty to the country and its flag.

He was tall and well proportioned, a man of sterling integrity, and excellent business ability. In 1838 he entered the Boylston Fire and Marine Insurance Company as its secretary. In 1853 he became its president, and held the position until it was ruined by the great Boston fire of Saturday, November 9, 1872. The next Monday a new company, now known as the Boylston Insurance Company, was formed, and he was chosen its president, and retained the office to the time of his death. He was also president of the Boston and Providence Railroad, and of the Boston Fire Underwriters' Union, vice-president of the Provident Institution for Savings, and a trustee of the Roxbury Latin School. He was a trustee of Forest Hill cemetery corporation for twenty-one years, and was its president from 1876 to 1889.

No man ever bequeathed to the community the recollection of more kindly traits of character, a warmer and more sympathetic nature, or was more conscientious in adherence to the right, than Joseph Balch. He was a loyal friend, a kind and thoughtful neighbor, a public-spirited citizen, and a large-hearted Christian gentleman.

1145. Francis Vergnies,<sup>8</sup> son of 532 Joseph<sup>7</sup> and Anne Lathrop [Noyes] Balch, was born in Boston, February 3, 1839. He took the degree of A. B., in 1859, at Harvard College, and in 1860 graduated from Harvard Law School, and was admitted to the bar. He first became a partner with Francis Winthrop Palfrey, and came into professional relations with George S. Hillard. In 1862 he joined the Twentieth Massachusetts Infantry Volunteers, of which his partner, Mr. Palfrey, was lieutenant colonel, but fell out after a few months, on account of sickness, without having been in any engagement. After a prolonged convalescence, he re-joined, in the practice of his profession, Col. Palfrey, who had been wounded and discharged. In 1868 he married his cousin, Ellen Maria, daughter of Francis V. and Elizabeth [Porter] Noyes, and great granddaughter of William Bartlett, of Newburyport, a successful merchant. She was born July 11, 1837. They had eight children.

Aaron Leland Balch was a Universalist clergyman. He was brought up under the strictest kind of Calvinistic Baptist doctrine, and his means of education and improvement in early life were much restricted. He graduated in 1836 from the Norwich (Vt.) University, at the age of 21, and went to live in New York city. He commenced his ministerial labors at Woburn, Mass., and next removed to Newport, N. H., where he resided until June, 1839, when he settled with the societies in Fall River and Swanzey.

Rev. William Stevens Balch received fellowship as a minister of the General Convention at Saratoga, N. Y., in September, 1827, and ordination in Claremont, N. H., in June, 1828. Up to 1831 he preached in the various towns of Windham county, Vermont, and then, after spending a year at Watertown, he removed to Claremont, N. H., and supplied there, and in Hartland and Springfield, Vt., and Newport, N. H., until a new church in Claremont was finished. Here he was very actively employed in all kinds of missionary work. In March, 1836, he was settled over the society in Providence, R. I., which was divided between restorationism and ultra Universalism. In two years the large church was crowded, and a second society was formed in the city. Having become interested in what was known as the "Dorr" movement, and freely expressing his wish to have a "Republican form of government," by a constitution, and seeing a political storm brewing, he accepted the call from New York, and settled there in November, 1842.

REV. WM. STEVENS BALCH.

After seventeen years' hard work in preaching, lecturing, and writing on religious and moral reform topics, he went to Ludlow, Vt., and supplied in various places. At Galesburg, Ill., he preached five years, and removed to Hinsdale in 1870. In 1871 he went to Elgin, Ill. In 1877 he started for California, but stopped for three years as a supply at Dubuque, Iowa.

When in Providence, R. I., Mr. Balch gave a course of lectures on "Language," which were published in 1838. He also wrote a "Grammar of English Language," explained according to the principles of truth and common sense, which passed through four editions. In 1849 his volume, "Ireland as I Saw It," was issued, and in 1881, "A Peculiar People," the first edition of which sold in eight weeks. He was the author of a "Sunday School Manual," published in 1837.

His business capacity was evinced in his raising funds for the theological school at Canton, N. Y., taking charge of the location, plan, and rearing of the building, and selection of the principal. He afterwards completed the raising of a large fund for the institution. He devoted much time to the business of making the Christian Ambassador of New York a denominational paper, and placing it on a sound financial basis. His work in these particulars was well and faithfully done.

His character is summed up as follows by Dr. J. G. Adams, in "Fifty Notable Years": "Mr. Balch was always a ready and popular speaker. Although in favor of fraternal organization for the good of the cause, yet his ideas in reference to creed and to centralized authority were not accordant with those of many other of his brethren, who hold in high estimation the work he had done in the spirit and truth of the gospel.

"His eminent services to the church and cause of righteousness entitle him to be ranked as one of the foremost preachers of his generation. His active and able participation in the temperance cause, and all other moral questions brought before the American people, clearly rank him as one of our most worthy and respected citizens. His pronounced convictions and firmness in maintaining them, with his bold and fearless hatred and denunciation of evil, are characteristic of the family.

"Dr. Balch had a commanding presence, a powerful physique, a strong and active mind, a lofty ideal, and a tender heart. He maintained a pure heart and a spotless life. He sympathized with all ranks and conditions of men, and no one stood more clearly, consciously and heartily than he on that plane of intellectual hospitality which is as wide as the race. He was an ardent and practical lover of all that was good and noble in man, and an ardent and practical hater of all selfishness, meanness, greed, hypocrisy and pretence. His influence for good was great and wide."

Joseph Pope Balch, although prepared for college, evinced such a desire for mercantile life, that, at the age of 14 years, he entered his father's drug store as clerk, and eventually became a partner. In 1841 he joined the Providence Marine Corps of Artillery, and the exciting season of the following year intensified his military ardor. In 1857 he was commissioned brigade major and inspector of the Second Brigade of Rhode Island. He was appointed one of the majors of the First Regiment in 1861, and accompanied its second detachment to Washington, where he was untiring in his efforts toward improving its discipline and equipment. On the appointment of Col. Burnside to the command of a brigade, Major Balch succeeded to the command of the regiment, and in the battle of Bull Run was distinguished for his coolness, steadiness and courage. This gained for him from the President the brevet of Lieutenant-Colonel, Colonel, and Brigadier General of volunteers in the army of the United States. After the disbandment of the First Regiment, in August, 1861, he continued to render valuable services to the state and country in enlisting and organizing regiments and batteries for the war. On May 26, 1863, General Balch was commissioned brigadier-general of the Second Brigade of Rhode Island militia. In October of that year the brigade, consisting of over three thousand men, was reviewed by Governor James Y. Smith, and conceded to have furnished the finest military display ever witnessed in the state. He was social in his habits, devoted in his attachments, and generous in his hospitality. He was a member of the Rhode Island Society for the Encouragement of Domestic Industry, and was also a member of the Providence Franklin Society.

Death came to him suddenly. While home from his store for dinner, he was taken with an internal hemorrhage, from which he died in a few hours.

1350. Mary Ann,<sup>9</sup> daughter of 681 Joseph<sup>8</sup> and Mary Ann [Bailey] Balch, was born at Providence, R. I., October 7, 1823, and died August 31, 1889. On the third of April, 1861, Benjamin Franklin Balch enlisted in company A, 17th Ohio Infantry, a three months' regiment. They were in the first battle of Bull Run, under Gen. Hunter, above the bridge. He was captured, paroled, went home to Ohio, was exchanged July 29, re-enlisted into company O, 18th Ohio, on the 7th of the following month, for three years. At the battle of Stone River, Tenn., he was badly wounded, and left on the field for dead, and put in Pine Forest prison for eight and a half months, was then taken to Mobile, and from thence to Andersonville, where he remained nearly nine months. He kept the record of dates by cutting notches on a stick. Finally he escaped at night through a tunnel, and after great hardships, reached Gen. Sherman's lines, 15 miles south of Dalton, barefooted, bareheaded, and scarcely a garment left on his emaciated body, which was reduced from 175 to 115 pounds weight. After 15 days' rest, he went to Washington, was interviewed by President Lincoln, and given some money by him with which to go home to Ohio. In Key's "Andersonville Prison" he is spoken of as the man who acted as prosecutor at the trial of the New York toughs, which resulted in the hanging of several of them for murder. Soon after his return home from Washington he re-enlisted into company I, 92d Ohio Volunteers. At the battle of Columbia, S. C., he was permanently disabled by a wound in his left hand.

THE MARYLAND FAMILY.

PREFACE TO MARYLAND FAMILY.

Two families bearing the Balch name appear about the middle of the eighteenth century in Maryland. Their descendants are now settled chiefly in the southern states, southern Indiana and Illinois, Missouri and Kansas. Persistent efforts to trace their ancestry has yielded but little trustworthy information, but in the absence of other British records, it is to be presumed that they came from the family in Somersetshire, England.

A few land records have been found in Maryland. The earliest is in the land office at Annapolis, in which the name is spelled with a "t," and is as follows:

"I, John Baltch, do assign over unto John Lloyd all my right, title and interest of one Right due unto me for my Transportation in this Province, as witness my hand this 30th day of December, 1663.

The mark of X JOHN BALTCH."

Witness,

DAN'L JENIFER.

From time of the very first settlements, in 1634, land was to be obtained in the first instance only as a premium to encourage settlement. A single man was given 100 acres, which was subject to a nominal yearly rental. This land he could transfer for a consideration, as the above entry shows.

In 1683 the Proprietary proclaimed new "Conditions of Plantation," as the term ran, by which any one could obtain warrants for any quantity of land, not already disposed of, by the payment of a small amount of purchase money, and afterwards of a trifling annual "quit rent." This system continued until after the Revolution.

The next entry containing the name Balch, which has been found in the Maryland records, was made seventy-five years after John Baltch disposed of his right. It shows that there was a grant for a tract of land called "Balch's Abode," amounting to 36 acres, and lying in Baltimore county, on the north side of Deer creek. It was surveyed for John Balch, October 1, 1738, and patented to him December 14, 1739.

In the same locality the conveyance of a tract of land called "Bond's Hope" to James Balch, by Jacob Giles and Isaac Webster, on November 2, 1743, is shown by the records in the clerk's office of the Superior Court of Baltimore.

Four eminent Presbyterian clergymen of the Scotch-Irish type are first found on the north side of Deer creek, in what is now Hartford county, then Baltimore county, Maryland. One of these was Rev. Dr. Hezekiah Balch, of Greenville College, Tennessee. The three others, Rev. Hezekiah James, Rev. Dr. Stephen Bloomer, and Rev. James Balch, were brothers, and had three other brothers, Amos, William Goodwin and John, who followed agricultural pursuits. They were born in the order named, between 1741 and 1760, and the six brothers were sons of James Balch.

While three grandchildren of James Balch were living, three apparently inconsistent traditions were reduced to writing.

One of these traditions is from Rev. Thomas Bloomer, son of Rev. Stephen Bloomer Balch. It is that his great-grandfather, the father of James, was named John. He wrote a poem on the stamp act, was married in Wales, probably to a Bloomer, and came to Maryland about 1720 or 1725, and settled on Deer creek, but removed to Mecklenburg in 1769. With him was a brother, probably named Hezekiah, who was the father of Rev. Dr. Hezekiah Balch.

The second tradition is from Mrs. Albina Bloomer Mann, daughter of Rev. James Balch. It is that her paternal ancestor, of the fifth or sixth generation back, was kidnapped with other boys and girls on the coast of Wales, to be brought to America and sold to planters for a sufficient length of time to pay their ocean passage. He fell in love with a fair captive named Ann Bloomer, and in due time they were married. After taking them, the captain of the vessel became suspicious of detection, and set them ashore on the coast of Scotland, where they remained for several years, were married, and then emigrated to America. Dr. Calvin W. Balch has also given this tradition, except as to the marriage, and says that it was James, the father of Rev. James Balch, who was taken to Scotland, and there apprenticed to a shoemaker. While playing on the beach the steward of a vessel stopping for water offered him passage to Georgetown, which he gladly accepted.

The third tradition is from Zeno Campbell, who married Ann Kincade, daughter of William Goodwin Balch. It is that the first Balch was Hezekiah, of Cecil county, Maryland. He was stolen away from his people when quite a child, it is thought from Wales. He married a woman named Bloomer, and they had three sons and a daughter—James, John, Thomas, and Rachel. James married Ann Goodwin, and they, with their family, came to Mecklenburg county, North Carolina.

In the absence of facts, speculation on the relative credibility of these traditions is of little use. The story of the kidnapping is described by Dr. Calvin W. with minuteness of detail and assurance as to its accuracy, but it is not held by the descendants of either Rev. Stephen Bloomer or John, but those of the latter have such a story concerning an ancestor in a female line.

The characteristics of the family, observable in both the earlier and the later generations, are a general adherence to the Presbyterian denomination, high morality, decision of character, general intelligence and unflinching courage, coupled with keen penetration and self-confidence amounting sometimes almost to intolerance. Ever true to the land they live in, each earnestly battled in the civil strife for the side his state espoused.

In what follows the male descendants of James Balch, of Rev. Dr. Hezekiah Balch, and of William Balch, who is said to have been a brother of Hezekiah, will be quite fully traced. There are also several families in North and South Carolina who are probably related, but they have given no information.

FIRST GENERATION.

1. James Balch,<sup>1</sup> concerning whose parents no records have been found, is said by tradition to have been the son of John and Ann [Bloomer] Balch. On November 2, 1743, he purchased a place known as "Bond's Hope," on the north side of Deer creek, in Baltimore county, now Hartford county, Maryland. He married Ann Goodwin, probably a year or so after this purchase. They removed to Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, probably in 1769. Their children were as follows :

- 2* ELIZABETH,<sup>2</sup> b. ; d.
- 3* HEZEKIAH JAMES,<sup>2</sup> b. 1745; d. 1776.
- 4* STEPHEN BLOOMER,<sup>2</sup> b. April 5, 1747; d. Sept. 22, 1833.
- 5* JAMES,<sup>2</sup> b. Dec. 25, 1750; d. Jan. 12, 1821.
- 6* MARGARET ANN,<sup>2</sup> b. 1752; d. 1848.
- 7* AMOS,<sup>2</sup> b. ; d. after 1834.
- 8* RHODA,<sup>2</sup> b. ; d.
- 9* RACHEL,<sup>2</sup> b. ; d.
- 10* WILLIAM GOODWIN,<sup>2</sup> b. ; d. Oct. 14, 1822.
- 11* JOHN,<sup>2</sup> b. Nov. 1760; d. May 27, 1849.
- 12* JANE,<sup>2</sup> b. ; d.

SECOND GENERATION.

Descendants of James Balch.

2. Elizabeth,<sup>2</sup> daughter of 1 James<sup>1</sup> and Ann [Goodwin] Balch, was born on the North side of Deer creek in Maryland, and was married to James Ashmore and had seven children: William, James, Samuel, Amos, Hannah, Margaret, and Rhoda.

3. Hezekiah James,<sup>2</sup> eldest son of 1 James<sup>1</sup> and Ann [Goodwin] Balch, was born about 1745, and died early in life unmarried in the spring of 1776. In 1766, he graduated from Princeton College, and was licensed by the Donegal, Pennsylvania, Presbytery. In 1768 it was ordered that he supply four sabbaths north of the Kittatinning hills for which the Synod was to allow him four pounds. In 1770 he was ordained by the Donegal Presbytery, and in the same year the Presbytery of Orange was formed in North Carolina, and he together with Rev. Dr. Hezekiah Balch, whose relationship has not been proven, and several others, were erected into it by the Synod. He was for about seven years a pastor of the united congregations of Poplar Tent and Rocky River, in Mecklenburg county. His name does not appear on the church records after 1774, when he was reported absent from the Synod of Philadelphia.

In the convention at Charlotte of May 19 and 20, 1775, which declared independence of the British Crown, he was a prominent actor, and was one of the committee who prepared the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence. To his eloquence on that occasion, is attributed its unanimous adoption on May 20, 1775. At a railroad meeting, in 1847, at Poplar Tent church, funds were raised for a suitable monument to his memory. There was present, Abijah Alexander, then ninety years of age, who had been present at the funeral, and was able to point out the precise place of burial in the graveyard of the church.

4. Stephen Bloomer,<sup>2</sup> son of 1 James<sup>1</sup> and Ann [Goodwin] Balch, was born April 5, 1747, and died September 22, 1833, at Georgetown, District of Columbia. He was married July 10, 1781, to Elizabeth, daughter of Col. George Beall who received from Queen Anne a grant of land which included nearly the whole of Georgetown. She died June 27, 1827. They had eleven children.

13* HARRIET,<sup>3</sup> b. 1786; d. 1841.

14* ALFRED,<sup>3</sup> b. ; d. 1836.

15* LEWIS PENN WITHERSPOON,<sup>3</sup> b. Dec. 31, 1787; d. Aug. 29, 1868.

18 HEZEKIAH JAMES,<sup>3</sup> b. ; d. unm. 1827.

20* ANNA ELEANORA,<sup>3</sup> b. ; d.

Rev. Stephen Bloomer Balch, S. T. D., graduated from Princeton College in 1774, and took charge of a classical academy at Lower Marlborough, Maryland, over which he presided until 1801. He was appointed Captain of his pupils who were old enough to be enrolled in the state militia, and was in actual service for two years. In 1780 he commenced his ministerial work in Georgetown, and organized and presided over the Bridge street Presbyterian church to the day of his death. On November 5, 1828, he married Mrs. Elizabeth King who lived only eighteen days after their marriage. His third wife was Mrs. Jane Parrott whom he married November 9, 1830. In a letter to his brother James, dated Georgetown, January, 14, 1805, he describes his family as follows: "My own family is large. We have had ten children: two of them are dead: eight survive. My two eldest sons are now at Princeton College. Alfred the eldest will graduate next Fall. Lewis Penn Witherspoon the Fall after next. They both promise well so far. Two others of my sons George Ninan Beall Balch & Hezekiah James Balch are both in stores in this town & draw wages for their services. My youngest son Thomas Bloomer Balch is at the Latin school in town. My eldest daughter Harriet is in her 20th year & is a fine blooming girl and might be well married if she choose but she appears to be averse from matrimony as yet. We have other two daughters Anna Eleanora & Elizabeth Maria both young, but they are promissing. If things are to turn out well we are to expect another son or daughter before long."

5. James,<sup>2</sup> son of 1 James<sup>1</sup> and Ann [Goodwin] Balch, was born on the north side of Deer Creek, in Maryland, December 25, 1750, and died January 12, 1821, at White's Prairie, Sullivan county, Indiana. In 1772 he married Susanna Lavinia Garrison, who was born February 13, 1758, and died in 1834, and was buried in Pleasant Prairie cemetery, Coles county, Illinois. They had ten children.

23* AMOS PRIDO,<sup>s</sup> b. 1775; d. Aug. 27, 1846.

25 MARTHA,<sup>s</sup> b. ; d. ; m. John McMillan, Russelville, Kentucky.

26* MARY,<sup>s</sup> b. ; d.

28* ETHELINDA,<sup>s</sup> b. ; d.

29* ALBINA BLOOMER,<sup>s</sup> b. Nov. 25, 1797; d. Nov. 17, 1832.

30* CALVIN,<sup>s</sup> b. ; d.

31* JOHN LUTHER,<sup>s</sup> b. Dec. 27, 1800; d. Oct. 8, 1870.

32* JONATHAN EDWARDS,<sup>s</sup> b. 1803; d.

Rev. James Balch was nearly six feet in height, well proportioned, and of erect presence. He was a man of clear perceptions, of strong convictions, always active, courteous and kind, and did much to allay prejudice and inspire hope in the dark days of the Revolution. He earnestly labored for the education of all classes, as the hope of the country under a free government. But sparseness of population, scarcity of money, and the Revolutionary struggle and Indian raids rendered the introduction of any general educational system next to impossible. Families gathered into communities and hamlets for mutual protection, and their farms radiated around these centres, often at a distance of several miles. Guns were carried into the fields when men went to plow or harvest the grain. Only a small portion of these early pioneers could either read or write, and some of them cherished such an obstinate prejudice against educated people that it was difficult to maintain schools of the most primary character.

In the fall of 1786 he was called by the congregation at Sinking Springs through the Presbytery of Abingdon, at an annual salary of seventy pounds Virginia money. In May, 1787, his name first appears on the rolls of the Synod as licensed by the Presbytery of Abingdon, Maryland. At this same meeting of the Synod, Abingdon was charged with irregularity in licensing him, as he was said to be under suspension by the Presbytery of Orange, but the Synod decided that he was a proper candidate for the Presbytery of Abingdon, since he had been restored to church membership by the Presbytery of Hanover. The cause of the suspension does not appear on the record of the Synod. He commenced his labors at Sinking Spring in 1786, was over that church nine years, and was dismissed in 1795. Next he moved to Poplar Creek, near the line of Anderson and Roan counties, Tennessee, and here organized the Poplar Creek church. In the summer of 1798 he was on his way to Russelville, Kentucky, and in 1799 was supplying the churches of Mount Tabor and Concord, Kentucky. A peculiar nervous epidemic prevailed through the region, and during church services strong men became so overcome with a sense of sin that they fell prostrate, as if slain in battle, and women would jerk their heads with such force that their hair would crack like a whip. Many ministers regarded this as a special work of the Holy Spirit, and taught that if it were resisted the spirit would not always strive, but take everlasting flight. Rev. Mr. Balch opposed these views, and proved his position when preaching in a church noted for these outbursts by successfully commanding their omission. In 1816 he moved from Russelville, Kentucky, to the home of his son-in-law, on Turman's Creek, in Sullivan county, Indiana. He began his work here at once by preaching in private houses, in barns and groves, and soon a hewed log meeting house, known as Hopewell Presbyterian Church, was erected, the first in the county, if not in the state. By its door he was buried. Nearly sixty years after his remains were removed to the Presbyterian cemetery, north of Graysville, and there stands a modest marble monument erected by his descendants.

6. Margaret Ann,<sup>2</sup> daughter of 1 James<sup>1</sup> and Ann [Goodwin] Balch, was born in 1752 on the north side of Deer creek, in Maryland, and died in the spring of 1848. She married Alexander Kelso, a wheelwright. He was in the Revolution. After leaving North Carolina they moved to Knoxville, Tennessee. His conscience led him to give his slaves their freedom, and to move away from slavery, about 1820, into Indiana. Alexander and Margaret Ann Kelso both lived to be nearly a hundred years old, and had six children—Charles, Dorcas, Nelvey, Mary, Ann Goodwin, and James Balch. All were Presbyterians and strong abolitionists. Charles and James Balch Kelso were farmers, and the latter was a soldier in the war of 1812, and was at the battle of Cowpens. H. A. Kelso, M. D., of Paxton, Illinois, is a grandson, and Margaret Ann [Kelso] Dryden, of Neoga, Illinois, a granddaughter.

7. Amos,<sup>2</sup> son of 1 James<sup>1</sup> and Ann [Goodwin] Balch, was born on the north side of Deer Creek, in Maryland, and went with his father's family first to North Carolina, then to East Tennessee, and finally to Kentucky. He died after 1834 in Bedford county, Tennessee. He married Ann, daughter of Samuel Patton, who was born about December 1, 1760, and died April 5, 1824. They had seven children.

40* JAMES CALVIN,<sup>3</sup> b. April 19, 1803; d. April, 1857.

Amos was a Presbyterian. He served nine months in the Revolutionary war, and in 1812 applied for a pension. In a letter dated March 9, 1834, he wrote the following to his son, Alfred Moore: "I truly rejoice that you live in a state where the curse of slavery dare not show its head, and where republican principles prevail. With regard to myself, I still teach school not far from Lexington (Tenn.). I still board at Mr. Wadley's. I enjoy tolerable health for a person of my age. I expect to continue my school till the middle of August next."

8. Rhoda,<sup>2</sup> daughter of 1 James<sup>1</sup> and Ann [Goodwin] Balch, was born on the north side of Deer Creek, in Maryland. She did not marry, and was a strong-minded, self-poised woman, strong in the old-fashioned Presbyterian faith, and considered one of the cleverest women in Tennessee.

9. Rachel,<sup>2</sup> daughter of 1 James<sup>1</sup> and Ann [Goodwin] Balch, was born on the north side of Deer Creek, in Maryland. She married John Houston, and lived on Pistol creek, Blount county, Tennessee.

10. William Goodwin,<sup>2</sup> son of 1 James<sup>1</sup> and Ann [Goodwin] Balch, was born on the north side of Deer Creek, in Maryland, and died October 14, 1822, at the home of his nephew, 17 George N. B. Balch, near Moulton, Alabama. While but a child, his father moved to Mecklenburg county, North Carolina. He was a farmer, and removed with his family to Shelbyville, Tennessee, and finally to Alabama. He married Elizabeth, daughter of John and Martha Rodgers, in North Carolina. She died in August, 1837. They had five children.

11. John,<sup>2</sup> son of 1 James<sup>1</sup> and Ann [Goodwin] Balch, was born about November, 1760, and died May 27, 1849, near Dandridge, Tennessee, where he was buried. He married Barbara, an older sister of Ann Patton, who married 7 Amos Balch. They had six children.

For a short time John was in the Revolution, being but a lad, and was at Sumpter's defeat in South Carolina when the men were compelled to flee in wild confusion, without putting on their shoes. He was also in a battle in which about 800 Whigs gained a victory over 1000 Tories, but lost five of their captains. He was an uncompromising Whig, and voted for Harrison and for Clay. In Hopewell Church, at Dandridge, he was an elder under Rev. Robert Henderson, son-in-law of Rev. Dr. Hezekiah Balch. Because of his hasty temper, however, he resigned from the eldership. He was an old bluestocking Presbyterian, but was led into Hopkinsianism, with which his pastors were in strong sympathy.

12. Jane,<sup>2</sup> daughter of 1 James<sup>1</sup> and Ann [Goodwin] Balch, is said by tradition to have married a Mr. Rankin, and that many ministers upon the Assembly roll are her descendants.

THIRD GENERATION.

Descendants of James Balch.

13. Harriet,<sup>3</sup> daughter of 4 Rev. Stephen Bloomer<sup>2</sup> and Elizabeth [Beall] Balch, was born at Georgetown, D. C., in 1786, and died in 1841. In 1809 she married first James Reid Wilson, of the United States navy, and in 1826 she became the second wife of General Alexander Macomb, who was Commander-in-Chief of the United States army, and fought in the battle of Plattsburg, in 1814. She possessed a stately and commanding appearance and great decision of character.

14. Alfred,<sup>3</sup> son of 4 Rev. Stephen Bloomer<sup>2</sup> and Elizabeth [Beall] Balch, was born at Georgetown, D. C., and died in 1836. He graduated at Princeton College in the fall of 1805, and became a law partner of James K. Polk. He was appointed by President Polk a judge of the United States District Court in Florida. He also lived at Nashville, Tennessee, and was a judge in that city. He possessed considerable property, which passed to his nephews, 65 Robert M.<sup>4</sup> and 66 Charles C.<sup>4</sup> He first married Miss Lewis, and afterwards Miss Newman, and they had one son.

Judge Lewis P. W. graduated from Princeton College in 1806, studied law with Roger Brooke Taney, afterwards Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, and was a judge in the highest state court in West Virginia. He became a strong Abolitionist, and impoverished himself by liberating his slaves and sending them to Liberia. On one occasion during the civil war, when there was fighting near his house and bullets were flying thick, although quite aged, he came out and cheered the Union forces. In the Historical Magazine for September, 1863, he gives his experience as a private soldier in 1814, at Baltimore in a regiment of Loudon, Virginia militia.

Amos Prido with his brother-in-law William White went from Russelville, Kentucky, to Busiro Prairie, Knox county, Indiana, where they arrived August 1, 1815. The location proving unhealthy, he and several other families, after a search, moved north in the fall to Turman's settlement. Ten or twelve years later he moved to Illinois, and lived first at Shelbyville, and finally at Greenville. He was a farmer and was an elder in the Presbyterian Church.

see, February 17, 1776, and died in Fountain county, Indiana, February 12, 1832. In the spring of 1796 she married William, son of William and Mary White, who was born March 27, 1776, in Washington county, Virginia, and died March 21, 1878, in Fountain county, Indiana. They lived for a time in Greene county, Tennessee, and then bought land in Roan and Anderson counties, and by accident their house was built on the county line. William White was the captain of a militia company for several years. During the war of 1812, his company was kept busy with the Indians who had been supplied with arms by the British. His company under Gen. Jackson was in the engagement of January 22, 1814, on the Tallapoosa river at the mouth of Emuckfaw creek, and also in the celebrated fight at Horse-Shoe Bend on the Tallapoosa on March 27, 1814. In 1815 Capt. White led his brother-in-law Amos Prido Balch and other emigrants to Busero Prairie, Knox county, Indiana. While living in Tennessee they cultivated flax, which they spun, made into cloth, and into the tent in which they lived for a time at Busero Prairie. In the fall, they moved north to Turman's settlement and Capt. White built a cabin three miles south of the present village of Fairbanks. He owned 1,500 acres of land on Helts Prairie in Vermilion county, and a large tract of river-bottom land now known as White's Prairie. They had eight children born in Roan county, Tennessee, except the youngest, who was born in Sullivan county, Indiana. William Bloomer, b. Nov. 1, 1797, d. Jan. 10, 1847, m. Elizabeth I. College in 1843, and from Lane Theological Seminary in 1846. He was married June 24, 1846, to Caroline LaMonte, who was born at Middleburg, Schoharie county, New York, Oct. 14, 1821. They lived in Attica, Indiana, until the fall of 1852, when they went to California. There he had charge successively of the Presbyterian churches in Redwood City, Oakland, Carson City, San Leandro, and Los Angeles. He was superintendent of public instruction for two years in Nevada, was chaplain in the legislature for two sessions, and for more than four years was state mineralogist. He is the author of Reports on the Mineralogy of Nevada, and a Genealogy of James Balch and his descendants from which extracts have been made for this Genealogy.

During the war with Great Britain John Mann volunteered in the Fourteenth Regiment of Kentucky militia, and was in the battle of New Orleans, on January 8, 1815. In 1816 he moved into Indiana, and after living three years in Sullivan county, secured a farm near the present site of Rockville, where their first winter was spent in a comfortable shelter of split rails and bed quilts, on the edge of a dense forest. Deer and wild turkey were abundant. That was the happiest winter of their lives. By spring a set of house logs were hewn a few acres were ready for the plow, and a little later they were happy in the possession of a home of their own. The children were taught the Shorter Catechism, and hymns from Watts and McClellan's selections were sung to the accompaniment of the spinning wheel. In 1827 they moved to Kaskaskia, where he was an active elder in the church for over 45 years. He was a blacksmith, but also carried on a farm. His first vote was for Jackson, then he was a Whig and lastly a Republican.

30. Calvin,<sup>3</sup> son of 5 Rev. James<sup>2</sup> and Susanna L. [Garrison] Balch, was born in Tennessee, and went with his parents to Russelville, Kentucky, and also to Sullivan county, Indiana, in 1817. His first wife was Mary Peoples, of Bussero Prairie, Indiana. She lived but a short time, and he married Patsy McClure, of Vincennes. He died a few years after his second marriage.

31. John Luther,<sup>3</sup> son of 5 Rev. James<sup>2</sup> and Susanna L. [Garrison] Balch, was born at Russelville, Kentucky, December 27, 1800, and died upon his farm at Lerna, Illinois, October 3, 1870. He was married November 10, 1829, to Melinda Newton, daughter of John and Margaret [Lester] White, who was born in Roan county, Tennessee, May 4, 1808, and died at Lerna, Illinois, January 10, 1865. They had eight children.

John Luther moved in 1831, with his wife and child and a colony of Presbyterians, to Pleasant Grove township, Coles county, Illinois, which was then sparsely settled, and located on a farm of 200 acres. St. Louis was their nearest market for farm produce, and it had to be hauled 150 miles with horses or oxen over rough roads. The nearest store was ten miles away. In his house raising he was assisted by Thomas Lincoln, the father of Abraham Lincoln. The house covering and floors were of split lumber, and the work was done with imperfect farm tools, no luxuries, and scant necessities. He taught the first school in the township, and assisted in organizing the first Sunday school. For it he purchased a library, which he brought 75 miles on horseback. Out of this school grew the Pleasant Prairie Presbyterian Church.

His health failing, he sold his live stock, rented his farm, and spent three years in Randolph county, Illinois, and there wrote articles for the local papers on the political issues. He was a Whig, and afterwards a Republican. He and his wife were Presbyterians, and she was a good illustration of Solomon's description of a virtuous woman.

Rev. Dr. Lewis P. W. attended three years at West Point Military Academy, and one year at Princeton College, where he graduated in 1834. He next entered the General Theological Seminary in New York, was ordained deacon, and was in charge of St. Andrew's church, Philadelphia, for ten months. While still deacon he was called to St. Bartholomew's church, New York, where he remained from 1837 to 1850, and cleared the church of debt. He was then obliged to leave New York for his health, and for five years he was rector of the parishes of Chester and West Chester, Pennsylvania. For five years he was rector of Christ church, Baltimore, Maryland, and during the winter of 1858 and 1859 was in charge of Christ church, Savannah, Georgia. From 1859 to 1866 he was rector of Emanuel church, Newport, Rhode Island, and was for six months at Bristol, Rhode Island. He was secretary of the House of Bishops from 1858 to 1866. From 1866 to 1871 he was canon of the Cathedral of Montreal, Canada, chaplain to the Metropolitan, and secretary of the Montreal Diocesan Synod. Over the Church of the Ascension, Baltimore, Maryland, he was rector from 1871 to 1873. Next in Huron, Canada, he was archdeacon of Kent, canon of the Cathedral, chaplain to the Bishop, president of the Hellmuth Boys' College, and vice-president of the Girls' College until November, 1874, when he became rector of Grace church, Detroit, Michigan, where he remained to the time of his death, six months afterwards.

Dr. Balch was a man of most charming manners. As a preacher he was at once impressive and powerful, and at times eloquent. His sermon at Newport on the death of Lincoln produced an effect on those who heard it which is still remembered. He had an extraordinary power of raising money for churches in debt. He secured the discharge of the indebtedness of eleven churches during the forty years of his ministry.

FIRST GENERATION.

1. Hezekiah Balch,<sup>1</sup> was born in 1741, on the north side of Deer Creek, in the neighborhood of "Bond's Hope," Maryland, and died at Greenville, Tennessee, in April, 1810. His father is said by tradition to have also been named Hezekiah, and he was probably a cousin of James Balch, of Maryland, the head of the preceding family. He was twice married, first to Hannah Lewis. She possessed a fine intellect and great personal attractions, but in after life was under some mental derangement. They had six children.

7* ELIJAH WHITFIELD,<sup>2</sup> b. ; d. 1822.

Rev. Hezekiah Balch, D. D., married second in 1808, Ann, daughter of Robert Luckey, of New York State. She was born in Pennsylvania, and died in 1835, aged 72 years, at Jonesborough, Tennessee. They had no children.

Rev. Dr. Balch had dark, lustrous eyes, an erect frame, and commanding presence. Frankness, intrepidity and earnestness characterized his address, but strong convictions and rash impulses led him into many bitter strifes. Between 1758 and 1762 he was a student at Princeton College, but the college records show that he graduated in 1776 in the class with Rev. Hezekiah James Balch. When Orange Presbytery in North Carolina was formed, in 1770, he was ordained as an evangelist. At Greenville, Tennessee, in 1783, he assisted in the regular organization of Mount Bethel church. Under his pastorate Dr. Watts' version of the Psalms was introduced, against violent opposition, but the church took the lead in the valley of the Holston and Tennessee rivers, and was the scene of constant and at times of powerful revival. At this time Dr. Balch, with his predecessor in church and educational work, Dr. Samuel Doak, participated in efforts to organize the chaotic elements of the short-lived state of Franklin.

Greenville College, the first west of the Alleghany mountains, was founded by him, and a charter obtained August 20, 1794. It was located on a large farm three miles south of Greenville, which he had purchased, and he ably presided over it until his death, sixteen years later. He made long tours south and east in the interest of the college, and, while travelling north in 1795, was much impressed with finding that those ministers whose religious sentiments were questioned were of the most assistance in obtaining donations. His spirit of inquiry led him to embrace the views of Dr. Samuel Hopkins, known as Hopkinsianism. Then followed a civil suit to eject him and his adherents from the meeting house, besides which he was called to trial sixteen times before the Presbytery, four times before the Synod, and once before the General Assembly. At this last he made a profound impression, as he contended that his views were the Bible truth. His answer to the charges brought against him was accepted by a clear majority, and he was by obvious implication acquitted. During these trials his scholars, to the number of nearly a hundred, were neglected and obliged to go home. On his return, in the midst of a most tumultuous scene, he retired with a large part of his congregation to a wide-spreading tree and read the papers relating to his trial. Under it he conducted services for several months, until the decision in the civil suit restored the meeting house to them as the ascertained majority.

A lightning stroke, by which he lost his barn, hay and horse, was interpreted by his persecutors as a token of God's anger, but so great was his sense of God's love and adorable sovereignty, that to him the burning of his property was a joyful opportunity for him, by abasing himself in the dust, to exalt his God. At the death of his wife, his words were: "Blessed be God, absolute, unconditional submission to His will is a plaster sufficient for every sore." In his will he gave his soul to his God to be made for Christ's sake, in boundless grace, an eternal vessel of mercy in Heaven, or in righteous judgment for his sins, a vessel of everlasting wrath in hell. Thus did Dr. Balch refuse to make conditions with God, but cordially submitted without reserve for time and for eternity.

An extended biography of Dr. Balch, by his co-worker and successor in Greenville College, Rev. Charles Coffin, D. D., is in Sprague's Annals of the American Pulpit, and other accounts are in Foot's Sketches of North Carolina and the History of the Synod of Tennessee.

DANFORTH BALCH.

1. Danforth Balch, whose ancestry has not been traced, crossed the plains in 1847, and took up a donation claim of 348 acres of land on what is now the northwest corner of Portland, Oregon. Here he cleared about 20 acres, lived with his wife Mary Jane, and nine children were born. On October 17, 1859, he died. Then commenced a studied plan of legal robbery and twenty-four years of litigation, through which the minor children were turned out upon the world, without education or property, with the exception of John, who saved about $5,000. The children were as follows:

- 2 ANN HAMILTON, b. 1844; lives in Portland.
  - 3 HOSEA, b. 1846; lives in California.
  - 4 JOHN, b. 1854; lived on Sauvies Island, near Portland.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

Each person bearing the Balch name is designated by a number. Wherever, in the tabulated lists of children, this number is followed by an asterisk [*] it indicates that the person is more fully described in the next chapter.

The small figures, following the names, indicate the generations removed from the first known settler in America.

The abbreviations are: b., born; d., died; d. y., died young; d. s. p., died without children; m., married; unm., unmarried.

Wherever the genealogy of a female is extended in small type, the names of her children are printed in small capitals; the names of the grandchildren are printed in italics; and the names of great-grandchildren and persons marrying into the family are printed in ordinary type.

Dates are uniformly given throughout this work according to the calendar in vogue at the times they designate, all prior to September 3, 1752, being old style, and all subsequent to September 14, 1752, being new style. Prior to 1752 it was not the custom to begin the new year until the twenty-fifth of March, so that events occurring in January, February and March up to the twenty-fourth were usually dated at the time in the years preceding the ones in which it is now necessary to regard them as having taken place, in order to correctly compute their anniversaries. Wherever such dates are given both years are noted, the first being the year currently written, and the second being the historical year, by which it is now customary to remember the date. The old-style calendar was ten days ahead of the present calendar, prior to March, 1700, and eleven days ahead between March, 1700, and September 3, 1752. To bring an old-style date over to new style, for the purpose of ascertaining its true anniversary, the ten or eleven days' difference should consequently be added.
